Second Skylab crew 'moves in'

SKYLAB CREW DEPARTURE

As the Saturn 1B rocket carrying three astronauts heads for the Skylab space station, its exhaust is reflected in the water near Cape Kennedy. The Saturday launch was flawless.

Man's longest space venture is under way

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 2 astronauts moved into America's orbiting station Saturday night and wrapped up the start of man's longest space adventure—a 59-day study of the sun, earth and man himself. Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma readied the space laboratory for an unprecedented research program designed to benefit both the scientist and common man.

The astronauts started out ahead of schedule in their housekeeping tasks but Bean reported at 9:45 p.m. EDT that he and Garriott experienced a slight feeling of nausea in moving about in the big spaceship too quickly. And he said Lousma took a motionsickness pill and skipped dinner.

"We've had to move extremely slowly to keep from causing any vestibular problems with ourselves," Bean said, referring to himself and Garriott. "By that, I think both Owen and I have a little bit of stomach awareness so we tend to be fairly careful how we move."

Dr. Paul Buchanan, the flight suregon, said later that Lousma "is having slight nausea with rapid and frequent movements." He said Bean and Garriott were well and did not sound excessively tired after he talked to them privately by radio.

After docking with Skylab on the first try, Bean, Garriott and Lousma entered their new space "penthouse" and turned on the lights and air conditioning like vacationers reopening a summer home.

"From telemetry, your systems are looking good," ground communicator Bruce McCandless told the pilots before they settled down for the night.

The crew will spend two days setting up the spacious living quarters and moving equipment from their Apollo ferry ship. Included in the bulk of materials are two spiders— Arabella and Anita—and an aquarium of minnows scientists will study to learn more of the effects of weightlessness on life.

Skylab, seen in a television picture beamed back to earth, looked like a giant windmill supsended 270 miles above the cloud-speckled United States. The station was in its 1085th orbit on the 76th day since launch.

ASTRONAUTS' DESTINATION

This is the view of Skylab that the astronauts had as they approached the orbiting space station Saturday night. They plan to stay in the station for 59 days studying the sun, the stars and the Earth.

Some holdouts; hostages released

150 convicts surrender

McALESTER, Okla. (UPI) — About 150 rebellious convicts, some drunk on moonshine whiskey, laid down their weapons Saturday and released 11 hostages held during 22 hours of rioting and burning at the Oklahoma State Prison.

But a handful of hard-core convicts refused to surrender their knives, meat cleavers and axes. The militants returned to their cell blocks where they vowed to kill any prisoner who did not take part in the carnage.

One prisoner, who did not take part in the riot, had his throat slashed in front of a guard who was escorting him back to his cell. One other prisoner was killed, slashed again and again apparently by fellow inmates, during the first hours of the rebellion.

Guards refused to enter the cell block to search for weapons. A prison spokesman said 80 per cent of the locks in the cell blocks were destroyed. An attempt was made to secure the buildings with chains.

Ed Hardy, an assistant to the governor, said a search of the shattered compound for weapons and more bodies might not begin for days.

"You are going to find inmates who are injured. You are going to find inmates who are dead," Hardy said.

Twenty-six persons were injured during the rebellion. Five of the injured were prison employes who were among the 21 original hostages captured when the riot began Friday.

Two hundred nonmilitant convicts huddled in a small fenced-in compound in the northeast corner of the prison Saturday night and said they would never return to their cells.

"I am never going back in there," said Larry Fink, editor of the prison newspaper, The Eye Opener. "I don't want to be killed."

The 200 pacifist inmates are protected by a double row of chain link and barbed wire fences and national guard troops standing 12 feet apart.

Gov. David Hall flew by helicopter from Oklahoma City to McAlester and met with inmate leaders on their demands for amnesty and prison reform. The governor had refused to meet with the rebels until all the hostages were released.

Demands to be heard

Martha Mitchell fumes at Ehrlichman testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, angered by testimony of former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, said Saturday night that she is demanding to be heard by the Senate Watergate Committee.

"My name is being taken in vain," she said in a telephone call.

Mrs. Mitchell said she had heard her name mentioned in the hearings, "and I feel I have a right to be heard."

She said she was disturbed by the testimony of President Nixon's former chief domestic adviser, John D. Ehrlichman, who testified before the committee for four days last week.

"He is arrogant, insolent and insipid," she said. "If I had really known what I had been up against in the Nixon administration, I would have really been scared, by God ... I would have asked the press to protect me."

Asked what her husband, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, thought of Ehrlichman's testimony which linked him to the bugging and subsequent coverup, she said, "My husband is protecting the President."

"I demand to testify," she said. "I want to clear up a lot of facts."

Mrs. Mitchell said Ehrlichman, in a deposition in the Democratic party's $6.4 million civil suit against the Committee to Re-Elect the President, had testified that she was responsible for Mitchell quitting his job as head of the re-election committee.

"I get more furious every day about testimony that John Mitchell was influenced by me," she said.

The committee's chief counsel Samuel Dash has indicated his desire to call Mrs. Mitchell as a witness. But Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., has quietly put his foot down against her appearance.

Central Valley alerted for smog

FONTANA — Smog passed the alert level in the Central Valley area Saturday, reaching a peak of .48 parts per million parts of air in Fontana.

The Air Pollution Control District reported the alert beginning at 3:45 p.m. and running until 7:05 p.m. Residents are asked to minimize car driving or physical activity during the alert periods.

Senate votes tight election spending curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A reform-minded Senate voted Saturday to impose tight spending limits on presidential and congressional candidates and crack down again on "fat cat" campaign contributors.

By an overwhelming 70-11 vote, the Senate approved a spending limit of 10 cents per eligible voter in primaries and 15 cents in general elections for senators and House members.

Then by voice vote, the Senate added a provision that presidential candidates could spend only 75 per cent of the same amount in the general election and the full amount in the primaries.

Also by voice vote, the Senate approved an amendment that would limit to $25,000 the amount any individual could contribute to political campaigns in a single year.

It approved another by voice vote that would require all members of Congress and congressional candidates to make public disclosure of their income and assets.

March protesting killing erupts into violence

DALLAS (UPI) — About 2,000 persons, disrupting what had been planned as a peaceful protest of the killing of a 12-year-old boy by a policeman, attacked police, tossed bottles through windows in the downtown area Saturday and forced storekeepers to barricade front doors.

Witnesses on Main and Commerce streets, where the disturbance was centered, said small crowds of demonstrators ran along the sidewalks, shouting insults at police and throwing rocks, bottles and, in one instance, a sidewalk newspaper stand through windows.

There were no reports of shooting.

Several groups of demonstrators attacked police, and at least one officer beaten by one of the mobs was admitted to a city hospital. However, a police spokesman said officers showed good restraint in dealing with the demonstrators.

"Our officers took a lot," said Sgt. J. L. Gage, who helped rescue the patrolman who had been assaulted, B. D. Bridges. "They sure did."

Police said the incident started out as a peaceful protest march, but rapidly became a "major disturbance," in the words of Police Chief Frank Dyson. Primarily Mexican-Americans were involved in the march, but police said there were about half Chicano, 35 per cent black and 15 per cent white involved in the violence which followed. Most of the demonstrators were teen-agers.

Thunderstorms and rain showers passed through Dallas during the night, easing police fears of a recurrence during the nighttime hours. Police said they would remain on alert through the weekend.

France sets off second explosion

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (UPI) -France exploded a second nuclear device in the South Pacific Sunday, continuing its atmospheric testing despite protests from a halfdozen nations, New Zealand officials reported.

"It could safely be assumed that today's blast was not the hydrogen bomb," a defense ministry spokesman here said, referring to press reports that a one-megaton device would be exploded.

The blast occurred at 11:03 a.m. New Zealand (7:03 p.m. EDT) time after a yellow balloon carrying the device was hoisted over Muroroa Atoll, 720 miles southeast of Tahiti, a spokesman for the New Zealand defense ministry said.

The first explosion in France's 1973 series occurred last Sunday and was estimated at five kilotons, a force equal to the explosive power of 5,000 tons of TNT, by New Zealand officials.

Actor Winfield released on bond

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI) -- Paul Winfield, whose portrayal as the head of a black family during the Depression in the movie "Sounder" earned him an Academy Award nomination this year, was free under $1,000 bond Saturday on a marijuana charge.

Winfield, on location for the filming of "Huckleberry Finn," was arrested at a motel where he was having dinner. In the film, Winfield plays the part of Jim, a runaway slave.

Half million pack in at rock festival

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — A half-million young people, packed together in a 95-acre swarm that carpeted every inch of space at a sprawling auto race course, swelled a rock music festival Saturday into one of the largest public gatherings in the nation's history.

The giant crowd, a rebirth of the "Woodstock Nation" outpouring four years ago, swirled in a sea of music and dance that rolled on from noon to midnight in this rural upstate hamlet.

A driving late-afternoon thunderstorm that broke the 90-degree heat did not interrupt the festival atmosphere. Many of the blue-jeans clad fans disrobed and danced in the downpour.

A New York state Health Department official said he thought the turnout was "the largest public gathering ever held in the United States."

State Police Lt. Richard C. Tonzi estimated there were 500,000 people present. "There are 95 acres of wall-to-wall people," he said.

Sheriff's deputies who mingled in the crowd said they were impressed with the lack of trouble.

One deputy walking by a bare-breasted young woman said, "I'm having a hell of a good time and it makes me feel young again."

The happy atmosphere of the festival was marred late Saturday when a sky diver, with his parachute streaming above him, plummetted to the earth, a few yards from the shocked crowd. The victim was not immediately identified.

Music from such well-known groups as the Grateful Dead, The Band and the Allman Brothers was the prime attraction at the "Summer Jam" festival.

Schuyler County Sheriff Maurice F. Dean, who commanded a force of about 450 lawmen at the site, said, "We have four or five times as many people here as we do at our races and we're getting less than half the trouble.

The auto course is the site of the U.S. Grand Prix, an annual racing event that draws up to 125,000 spactators.

"This crowd has spirit," said Monte A. Houston, Dean's assistant, who also was at Woodstock in 1969. "Everything has been running smoothly, outside of the traffic problem."

Open drug sales and use, a typical feature of rock festivals, were visible, but the problem was not severe.

Early Saturday evening, while the music continued, some people began leaving in hopes of avoiding the massive traffic jams that had tied up traffic for miles around this Finger Lakes community before the festival began. Police estimated that 100,000 fans had walked in from as far as 20-30 miles away after roads became jammed by thousands of abandoned cars. One official predicted the traffic jam might last until Wednesday.

Rapid transit will take too long to clear the air

Pollutant-free engine must come first-Alioto

By PAUL HILL
P-B Staff Writer

FONTANA — The development of a pollutant-free engine, not rapid transit, is the initial step in licking the smog problem, according to San Francisco Mayor Joseph P. Alioto.

"You can do all the talking you want, but it's going to be a long time before you get rapid transit in the Los Angeles basin," Alioto said. "You can't stand the kind of days we are having today much longer."

His remarks came during a press conference which was also attended by Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-14th Dist., and State Sen. George Moscone, D-10th Dist., prior to a Democratic fund-raising dinner here Friday night. California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., who also spoke at the dinner, did not attend the press conference.

All four men are potential nominees for the governorship in 1974.

Alioto said it was not necessary to simply get a substitute for an internal combustion engine because "there appears to be workable devices that will get more milage for gallonage with less pollutants."

However, in order to do that, Alioto pointed out that automobile makers—not only in Detroit but in Western Europe and Japan—must be given "strong economic incentives" to manufacture the engines. The incentives, he said, would lead to competition between the auto companies for a breakthrough in this area.

He charged that competition among the automobile manufacturers for a pollutant-free engine is non-existent today, and put the blame on former United States Atty. Gen John Mitchell. Mitchell, he said, made a deal with the automobile companies in 1969 which "cemented a conspiracy among automobile manufacturers not to develop a smog-free engine competitively, but to do it collusively." He also said that as early as 1953, the car markers had agreed not to constuct a smog-free engine competitively.

The deal, Alioto contends, requires compulsory cross-licensing and royalty-free licensing on the part of all automobile manufacturers concerning the invention of the engine.

Alioto, Waldie and Moscone agreed that the smog problem must be met head-on on the local level without waiting for state or federal aid. They said that local areas must assume responsibility for means of transportation other than the automobile, and they cited as an example the Bay Area Rapid Transit System as a means of doing so.

Moscone also said that the highway trust fund should be opened to provide money to the communities for mass transit, and that a "bolder" approach should be taken towards industry regarding control of air pollution.

On the issue of reapportionment, Alioto differed from Waldie and Moscone that reapportionment powers should be taken out of the hands of the state legislature.

Moscone said the state legislature has failed in its consitutional duty on reapportionment because it has placed the interest of the public a far second to its own. The senator is one of the principal co-authors of Senate Constitutional Amendment 1 which, if accepted, would take reapportionment from the legislature and give it to a five-member commission selected out of a group of 50 people chosen by the state's Supreme Court chief justice.

Waldie agreed with the thrust of Moscone's attitude, but added:

"I've been a participant in reapportionment, and I've been the recipient of others who did the reapportionment. In neither instance did I find that I was able to assert public interest over private interest.

"It wasn't that I or other legislators were not cognizant of our consititutional duty, but we rationalized that the strength of our party, or the strength of our paricular incumbency, was in fact consistent with the well-being of the people we sought to represent."

Waldie said that matter should be taken away from the legislature, but that he was not certain the constitutional amendment discussed by Moscone was the way to do it.

Alioto, who has been before the United States Supreme Court and various other courts in the country as a lawyer, said that reapportionment is one of the area's that the courts "have no business in, but somehow manage to intrude themselves."

He said that districting is "basically a legislative matter, and a matter for the executive." The courts, he added, are "ill-equipped to make the political determination which I think are involved in reapportionment.

"If there was a working relationship between a strong governor and a legislature, and based on mutual respect, you would get an apportionment," he said.

Women, children flee

Forest fires in three states

Forest fires burned out of control Saturday in three western states, forcing the women and children to flee one small town and destroying some homes in another.

About two dozen persons left the town of Ranch Haven near Hallelujah Junction in western Nevada, hit by the worst of the fires which also broke out in California and Idaho.

About 1,750 firefighters from five states battled the flames in widely separated areas.

The western Nevada fire started by lightning already had blackened more than 25,000 acres. About 1,200 men and planes dropping fire retardants fought the flames, and more fire crews and equipment were flown to the scene from the Bureau of Land Management headquarters at Boise, Idaho.

Authorities said, there was little hope of containing the fire before Sunday.

Another lightning-set fire charred 8,300 acres at Red Rock, north of Reno, but authorities said it apparently had been contained.

A total of 1,200 men from Idaho, Utah and California, as well as Nevada, fought the three fires in addition to several smaller ones.

Fires burned out of control in the Klamath National Forest of northern California, consuming 1,600 acres and destroying five homes at the community of Somes Bar near Eureka. The fire broke out Friday, and a Forest Service official said he could not predict when it would be brought under control.

About 250 men were fighting the flames with another 500 ready to join in. Temperatures in the area ranged up to 100 degrees, and winds of 30 miles an hour fanned the flames as they broke out.

Other fires burned in Calidornia far to the south in the vicinity of San Luis Obispo. About 6,400 acres were blackened there.

In Idaho additional smokejumpers were sent Saturday to the scene of a fire that had swept about 640 acres in the Kaniksu National Forest northeast of Sandpoint.

About 300 men were on the fire lines, including smokejumpers from Missoula, Mont. The fire was the first in the Kaniksu National Forest this year.

Navy halts aerial team performances

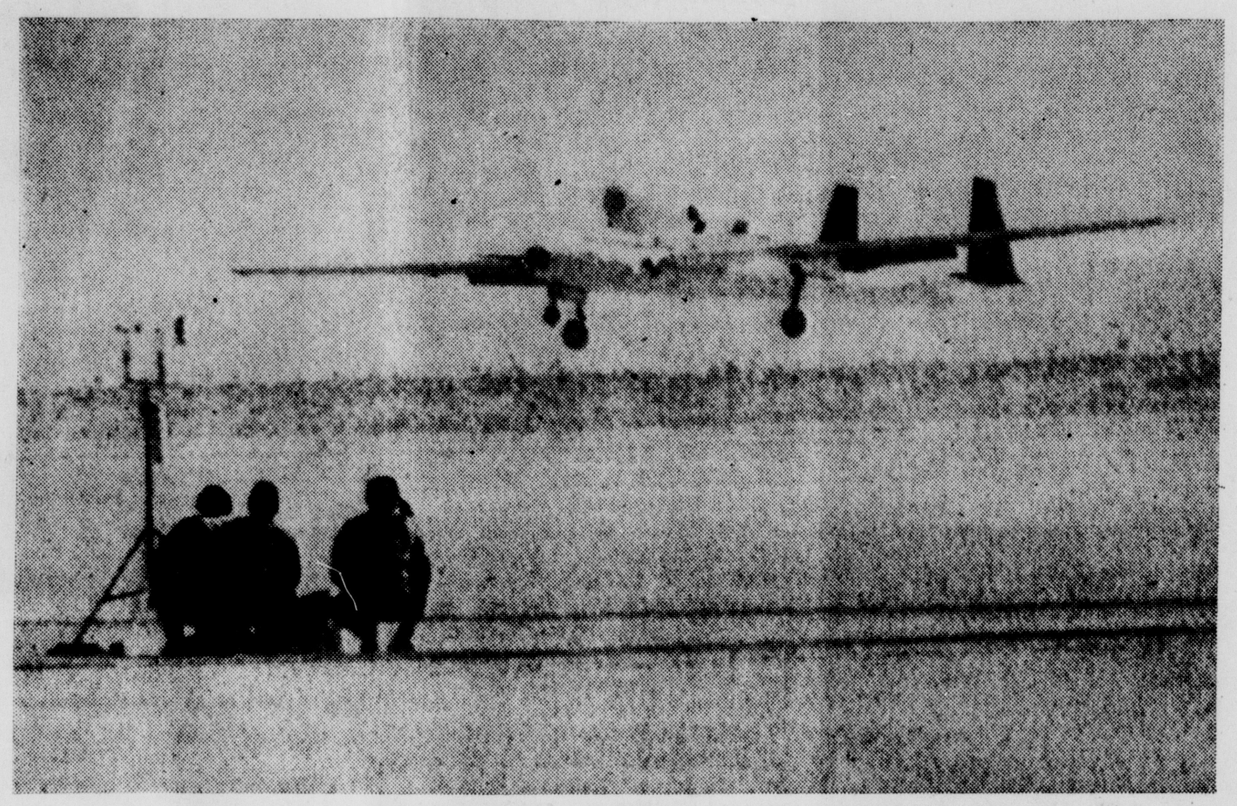
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy Saturday cancelled the rest of the 1973 schedule of performances by its famed "Blue Angels" acrobatic flying team because of a series of crashes that killed three fliers and destroyed six planes.

This year has been the worst ever for the Blue Angels, and it was the first time their spectacular, high-precision aerial demonstrations have been called off in mid-season since the team was organized in 1946.

Although Blue Angel pilots escaped unharmed in two earlier crashes —at El Centro, Calif., March 8 and Lakes Charles, La., July 8 —three were killed last Thursday in a two-place collision over the Lakehurst, N.J., naval air station.

Memorial services for the three —Lt. Cmdr. Skip Umstead, 30, of Detroit, Marine Capt. Mike Murphy, 29, of San Antonio, Tex., and PO 1.C. Ronald Thomas, 20, of Ponca City, Okla. —will be held Tuesday at Pensacola, Fla., naval air station, their home base.

The cancellation will affect 22 previously scheduled performances through November. So far this year, the Blue Angels had put on 17 shows in 11. European cities, including performances at the Paris air show, and 14 demonstrations in a dozen U.S. cities.



AIRCRAFT'S MAIDEN VOYAGE

119-year-old store closes because of beef shortage

YREKA, Calif. (UPI) — A victim of beef shortages and price freezes, Jim Bryan Saturday closed the door on his City Meat Market which has served this rustic Northern California community continuously since the gold rush.

"About 60 per cent of my business is meat lockers, and I can't get the cattle I want," said Bryan, owner of the 119-year-old store.

"We can get some meat, but the freeze on beef is holding back the sale and slaughter of beef cattle," he added. "We just can't continue to operate, and pork prices will be going out of reach even if we can buy it."

The market was first opened in the boom days of 1854 by a German immigrant, and has been in Bryan's family "60 or 70 years."

"I've been here about 20 years myself, and my father a long time before me," he said.

Transportation bill OK seeks better gas mileage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Saturday approved a nearly $8 billion money bill for the Department of Transportation that includes $2.1 million for research on how to get better gasoline mileage in cars.

The measure, approved on a 79-1 roll call vote, is $197 million more than the House approved last month but $85 million less than the administration requested. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, cast the lone vote against the bill.

The bulk of the increase over the House measure —$140 million —was for programs that had not received legislative authorization when the House passed its bill. The cuts in the administration request were spread over several items in different agencies.

The bill provides $2.9 billion in new appropriations and another $5 billion to pay off earlier contracted obligations. It would fund the DOT and related agencies such as the Federal Aviation Agency and the Coast Guard for the 1974 fiscal year that started July 1.

The Senate measure, like the House-passed bill, would provide $2.1 million for the DOT to come up with a system within three years that would "achieve a 30 per cent reduction of fuel consumption" in autos while still not "sacrificing emission controls or performance."

Also in the bill is $4.3 billion to continue construction of the Interstate Highway system as well as aids for urban and rural highway programs.

The measure would also provide funds for 686 additional air traffic controllers as requested by the FAA.

Electrical problem forces delay in underwater hunt

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (UPI) — Electrical problems Saturday forced two divers hunting for a $2 million treasure to surface in their underwater living chamber and delay for several more days an attempt to cut into the sunken luxury liner Andrea Doria.

Rick Whitney, a spokesman for the divers, said the underwater habitat lost its electrical power Saturday morning as the divers were preparing to cut into the hull of the liner, 240 feet beneath the surface about 45 miles south of Nantucket Island.

Forced to use emergency battery power, the divers and the crew aboard the support ship Narragansett decided to raise the chamber when it became apparent the electrical problem could not be corrected at the scene.

Divers Donald Rodocker, 27, and Christopher DeLucchi, 22, of San Diego, former Navy frogmen, remained inside the habitat as it was raised and were undergoing decompression while it was towed to port.

Whitney said the electric breakdown appeared to be in a cable.

"We estimate it will be at least three days before they can resume their dive," Whitney said. He said at no time were the divers in danger.

Jeers turn to friendship for Russians Fishermen leave with warm feeling

COOS BAY, Ore. (UPI) — Laden with bushels of fresh fruit, 62 Soviet fishermen left Saturday with a warm feeling for Americans.

When the fishermen arrived aboard their crippled trawler Nadhodka two weeks ago they were greeted on the docks with curses, jeers and obscene gestures.

West Coast fishermen deeply resent Soviet havesting of fish off the Pacific Coast, and police were assigned to protect the Nadhodka.

But curiosity got the best of the residents of this fishing and lumber community, and soon they made their initial gesture of friendship with a rock concert at dockside.

Then Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., managed to cut through immigration and customs regulations that kept the seamen from coming ashore.

Parties and tours of coastal saw mills and cheese factories were organized. Plenty of hamburgers, french fries and beer were served by local residents at a picnic.

"I am very pleased with the tour and the expedition and everybody," said Ivan, the ship's first mate. "The people of Coos Bay and the surrounding area have been very pleasant."

Ivan said he hadn't been a fisherman very long. Before going to sea to discover how fishermen live and work, Ivan said he had been an assistant editor for an eastern Soviet newspaper.

Coos Bay Mayor Wendell Pynch said the bad feelings expressed on the Soviets' arrival did not represent the views of the majority.

"All they (the Soviets) were asking for was to be treated in the same way as if we were over there—if we were in the same circumstances. It could have been quite an ordeal."

The Nadhodka, whose bow was damaged in a collision with another Soviet fishing ship which then sank in fog, rejoined the Soviet fishing fleet off the Oregon coast.

Guilty of contempt

Bible says okay to handle snake, pastor claims

NEWPORT, Tenn. (UPI) — Rev. Liston Pack, the snake handling mountain pastor of the Holiness Church of God in Jesus Name, was found guilty Saturday of contempt of court.

Pack was fined $150 on three counts of contempt for violating an injunction barring him from handling poisonous snakes during worship services.

A fellow pastor, Rev. Aldred Ball, was found guilty of two counts of contempt and fined $100.

Pack has been in the news since two members of the congregation of his church died when they drank strychnine as a test of their faith.

21 GOP solons ask suspension of investigator

WASHINGTON UPI) — A group of 21 Republican senators asked the Senate Watergate committee Saturday to suspend its top investigator, Carmen Bellino, and to look into charges that he illegally bugged President Nixon's 1960 campaign.

GOP National Chairman George Bush earlier this week made public three affidavits containing the allegations against Bellino.

Bellino denied the charges immediately.

The 21 senators who asked for Bellino's suspension made their request in a letter to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the select Senate commiteee that is investigating the Watergate scandal.

The letter was instigated by Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., and among those who signed it were Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and his deputy, Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan.

The letter said that "among other things, the affidavits allege that Mr. Bellino was deeply involved in illegal bugging of the presidential campaign of President Nixon in 1960.

"Considering the nature of the current investigation by the Select Committee and the position of Mr. Bellino, it would seem prudent to conduct an immediate investigation and to grant leave to Mr. Bellino pending resolution of these grave charges.

Marcos wins

MANILA (UPI) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos appeared Saturday night to have won overwhelming endorsement in a two-day compulsory referendum to remain in office and administer the Philippines indefinitely under martial rule.

Jackson labels White House fiscal policies a 'horror'

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., linked Watergate with the Nixon administration's economic policies Saturday and said, "In the long run, the worst 'horror' concocted in the Nixon White House may be the economic mess."

"I think the incompetent Watergate burglars may be the ones who designed the administration's economic policy," Jackson said in remarks prepared for a Democratic party fund-raising dinner.

"On the other hand," he continued, "perhaps the deep thinkers who designed the disastrous economic policies are the same characters who planned the idiotic burglaries and other 'White House horrors.'"

Jackson was the featured speaker at the $100 per plate dinner honoring former Gov. and Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes' birthdays. State party officials hoped the annual affair would help erase the $50,000 in debts they accumulated from campaigning last year.

"There will be more indictments in the Watergate mess, but the nation has already indicted the Nixon administration for crippling our nation's economy," Jackson said.

He accused the President of doing nothing to solve the energy shortage, while Congress is "moving forward with our mandatory fuel allocations act, the Alaska pipeline, the energy research and development bill, an energy Conservation act and a strategic reserve bill."

He also pledged his senate investigations subcommittee would continue a thorough search for improprieties in the Soviet wheat sale last year.

Officer claims assault

Cleveland mayor pleads innocent to charges

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mayor Ralph J. Perk, charged with assault and battery by a police officer, pleaded innocent Saturday in municipal court and called the charge "ridiculous."

Judge Lillian Burke postponed the start of the trial until Aug. 28. In the interim, an effort is to be made to subpoena film from a Cleveland television station.

"This incident has been embarrassing to me, my family, to most of the members of the Police Department, to the city of Cleveland and to the office of mayor," Perk said.

Patrolman Arnold Hovan filed the charge against Perk in connection with an altercation in City Council chambers Monday night.

Hovan claimed Perk grabbed and shook him after he made some remarks to the mayor about his veto of legislation giving police and fire fighters fully paid hospitalization.

The warrant was obtained Wednesday but Perk was out of town. He was arrested in his office on Friday.

Prior to entering the courtroom, Perk told newsmen that he hoped the incident would result in the police department becoming more courteous in dealing with citizens at all times.

"It made me realize that there may be a small minority of policemen who are guilty of police brutality and I was not aware of it," said Perk.

"I will give greater concentration to any complaint of police brutality from citizens who come to me in the future," he said, prior to his court appearance.

There were several people waiting to meet Perk when he arrived.

"We're behind you," one man shouted.

Perk shook hands with everyone in sight.

Aid hiked to offset bombing halt

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The United States is boosting its military aid to Cambodia, particularly in the areas of field artillery, in hopes of offsetting the effect of the U.S. bombing halt Aug. 15, an authoritative source said Saturday.

The source said the United States is giving government forces 155mm artillery pieces that can fire heavy, medium-range barrages to do some of the work the bombs have been doing.

He said the U.S. also was increasing the number of armored personnel carriers and light aircraft, such as the T28 prop driven plane, being sent to the armed forces of President Lon Nol.

The source stressed the increase in military aid conformed with present U.S. law. He said the "readjustments" in the program merely represent an effort to speed up delivery of military equipment.

The source said, however, that what Cambodia needs now far more than military equipment is men to fill the depleted ranks of the Cambodian army.

Estimates of government forces defending Phnom Penh, for instance, range from 5,000 to 10,000 troops. Rebel strength encircling the capital is estimated at about 20,000 men.

The government is broadcasting appeals in Phnom Penh for volunteers to form a militia to help defend the city. Several weeks ago, the government began drafting men into the armed forces, and it also has cracked down on deserters and soldiers absent without leave from their units.

"The Cambodians desperately need men," the source said. "If they can get their draft off the ground and get men to the front lines, they may have a chance."

The source declined comment when asked if the government's recent decision to create a military draft came too late. He said only that it would be difficult to train new recruits to fight an insurgent force already closing on the capital.

POMONA — A Pomona man who was shot Friday night following a family fight, was listed in satisfactory condition in the intensive care unit at Pomona Valley Community Hospital early Saturday night.

The man is Thomas Michael Hatch of 1687 Calatina Dr.

His wife, Cynthia Ann Hatch, 25, is still in custody for attempted murder.

According to the police, the shooting followed an argument between the couple over money.

Crisis center broadens service to all needing help

POMONA — Professional and volunteer members of the Pomona Open Door staff, seeking additional financial support in the community, announced an expanded program during a 12-hour open house Saturday.

Thirty five year old John Hinze, an ex-Chicago cop now a senior at Cal Poly, was named director of the youth crisis intervention center July 17, after having served as consultant and adviser.

"Our services," said Hinze, "although primarily directed at the 14 to 24 age group, are available to any individual in time of crisis or emergency."

Through the center's hot line, 623-6017, the staff accepts referrals on a 24-hour basis to do individual, short-term counseling, family counseling in which a youth is the identified client and counseling for young couples.

Group activity is scheduled each night of the week. A general open rap group meets on Mondays at 7. Special groups, with outside leaders, gather on Tuesdays at 7. Another general rap session takes place Wednesdays at 7. Each first and third Thursday a gay discussion group conducts meetings at 7. Second and fourth Thursday nights are unscheduled.

A narcotics and barbiturate addicts group meets at the center each Friday at 7.

Geared to group

"We invite all young people to attend our Monday and Wednesday night groups," said Hinze. "They are neither confrontive or didactic in nature, but rather are geared to the concerns and interests of group members.

"Although many of our young clients are drug users, we do not limit our services to this area.

"Our primary concern, regardless of the presenting problem, is to help the client attain maximum social functioning and effectiveness."

Open Door, sponsored by the Pomona Valley Mental and Emotional Health Association, depends entirely on donations from agencies, organizations and individuals, Hinze said.

He said Senate Bill 714 may provide funding by October.

Hinze is assisted by one live-in counselor, Cathy Foster, a June graduate of Cal Poly who majored in social services. He said he has immediate staff openings for two more counselors with some experience and education in the field, and would like to hire a couple. He said a third opening for a counselor would exist soon.

Anyone interested in talking with Hinze regarding these positions may reach him at 629-6018.

Eleven volunteers donate their time counseling clients. They, with the full-time staff, cover such ereas as venereal disease counseling, suicide intervention and legal-medical problem pregnancy referrals.

Two brothers jailed in assault on officer

ONTARIO — Charges of injurious assault on a policeman are expected to be sought against two brothers arrested early Saturday morning after a traffic violation erupted into a struggle between the brothers and two officers at California and Grove streets.

The brothers are Nardo Lerma, 30, of 1049 Nocta St., and Ruben Lerma, 29, of 941 Peach St. They were arrested in the parking lot of the Point Cafe. Bail of $2,500 was set for both men.

Officers Dean Cain reported that he spotted a car go through the intersection of Holt Boulevard and Vine Avenue at a great speed, and he followed the car to the cafe parking lot.

He said he saw Nardo sitting in the driver's seat and drinking from a beer bottle.

Cain told Lerma he was being cited for speeding, failure to stop at the stop sign at Sunkist and Euclid avenues, and having an open container in the car.

Lerma who had gotten out of his car said, "what open container?" and reportedly spilled the remaining contents on Cain's citation book, and his uniform, officers said.

According to the police, Ruben jumped on Cain's back and applied a strangle-hold. In the following minutes, Cain fired his gun and another officer used mace to subdue the two brothers, they added.

Both Ruben Lerma and Cain were treated for injuries at San Antonio Community Hospital and released.

Bed sheet escape fails

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four convicts, including a suspected member of the police-hating Black Liberation Army, were caught by prison guards Friday shortly before they planned to climb to freedom down a rope made of bed sheets.

Deputy Correction Commissioner Jack Birnbaum said during a news conference that the early morning search was prompted by reports officials received of unusual activity on the floor of the Brooklyn House of Detention during the past few weeks.

Guards found the four had already cut through eight quarter-inch thick bars to their cells and were preparing to break a window and slide down an 87-foot, bedsheet rope to the street when they were apprehended.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Minor earth tremors hit the Managua area Friday, but there was no report of injuries or damage.

"People living in wooden homes outside the city went into the streets," UPI correspondent Leonardo Lacayo said. "But there was no panic— partly because the center of the city, where the tall buildings are, is still almost abandoned."

Two shocks lasting about five seconds each occurred Friday at about 2:45 p.m.

Last steam yacht on exhibit in San Diego

Visitors will soon be welcome aboard the last steam yacht in existence, the Medea, which will be anchored next to the Star of India in San Diego's harbor.

The yacht, the latest addition to the Maritime Museum, made its final voyage from Vancouver Island to San Diego recently.

Aboard the yacht as ship's doctor and a crew member was Dr. Robert Allen of Claremont. A physician on the staff of Pomona Valley Community Hospital, Glendora Community Hospital and Foothill Presbyterian Hospital, Dr. Allen also has served a tour of duty in the Navy.

The yacht was built in England in 1904 for a wealthy Britisher who wanted a suitable boat to take 10 guests up a river for grouse shooting. The yacht is constructed of tough low-moor ironwood, teak and English oak.

She served the French, English and Norwegians during both World War I and II. The yacht was among the hundreds of vessels used during the Dunkirk evacuation during World War II.

As she was purchased by a series of owners, many structural changes were made. However, when she was recently purchased by Paul Whittier, retired oilman from Los Angeles, to be donated to the museum, the Medea was restored to her original lines.

Whittier spent $300,000 on the purchase, restoration and transportation of the yacht. She was renovated at Vancouver Island. Included in her new furnishings are carpets which were taken from the famous Empress Hotel in Victoria, B.C.

During the 10-day trip down the west coast, Dr. Allen reported, the yacht stopped at San Francisco where it was exhibited.

The Medea then spent one week at the Long Beach harbor for some additional restoration before it made its ceremonial entrance into the San Deigo harbor accompanied by some 100 boats of all sizes.

San Diego officials were on hand to officially welcome the yacht and its crew during dockside ceremonies. The Medea will undergo its final polishing at the San Deigo Yacht Club prior to being moored at the museum and opened to the public.

New species of nematode found again

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A new species of nematode, a potential crop pest, has been found in Fresno for the second time in two years, the state Department of Food and Agriculture have reported.

The department said the nematode, or microscopic roundworm, was identified in the department's Sacramento laboratory after it was found in a soil sample taken from beneath a flowering plum tree by two Fresno county agricultural aide. A previous find was made in 1971 under a banana tree in Fresno.

Some species of nematode can do "a great deal of damage" to crops, the department said.

Current 'boom' to continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government reported Friday that its latest index of leading economic indicators signaled a steady continuance of the current economic boom.

The index dropped abruptly in April, causing many observers to speculate that the two-year economic expansion was beginning to tail off. But it has resumed its upward march, posting strong 2.1 per cent gains in May and 1.9 per cent last month.

Inflation, rather than genuine economic strength, could be behind much of the June rise, since industrial materials prices, which have risen fast in the past two months, made the strongest increase of any of the eight indicators now available for June.

The three other indicators rising last month were contracts and orders for plant and equipment, building permits, and the price-labor cost ratio.

Production of Timber to be urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting on White House orders, the U.S. Forest Service is putting prime emphasis on boosting timber production this year while cutting back recreational facilities in national forest.

The new policy —described as an effort to help ease inflation —could force closing of some forest campgrounds, biggest single recreation resource available to outdoors vacationers.

John R. McGuire, chief of the Forest Service, said the tentative "guidance" in operating priorities for the year which began July 1 had been sent to the agency's field offices.

Rise in milk cost approved

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Food and Agriculture Director C. B. Christensen Friday approved a six cent per gallon milk price hike sought by California's dairy industry.

The increase, effective Aug. 9, will mean the following increases by half gallon in the following cities: Riverside, 57 to 60; San Diego, 57 to 60 cents; Los Angeles 56 to 59 cents; Fresno 56 to 59 cents; San Francisco 58 to 61 cents; Sacramento 55 to 58 cents and Eureka 60 ½ to 63 ½ cents.

Christensen said the price increase was granted because of hikes in feed prices to dairymen. But, he warned, the boost was not likely to satisfy producers.

Watergate just 'all good fun'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Watergate, the British newspaper executive said, "does seem to be the national entertainment."

J. M. Sindall of the Lincoln, Tutland & Stamford Mercury, Stamford, England, is one of 30 newspaper executives from the United Kingdom touring the United States.

Visiting the offices of the Chicago Today newspaper, Sindall said the Watergate hearings which are televised daily "flowed right over our head."

"But," he added, "It does seem to be the national entertainment."

Disillusioned, bored juror tries to improve system

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. William R. Pabst Jr., recently had an experience common to many Americans: he was called as a juror but sat on only two or three trials in an entire month.

He whiled away the rest of the time in the jury lounge or went back to his regular job on days his services as a juror were not needed.

Many individuals who see jury service as an essential civic duty are disillusioned by similar experiences. Some never get inside a court room, much less in a jury box. And many lose money in the process.

Federal jurors get $20 a day and 11 cents-a-mile travel allowance. Most states pay less. And while some people continue to collect their salaries, others lose financially.

Study grant

Griping is all most can do. But Pabst, a systems analyst in Washington, D.C., thought he could do more. First he wrote a paper for the American Statistician. Then he obtained a small grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) and started a study of District of Columbia courts.

Now he is working on state courts in Georgia and Colorado on a $100,000 LEAA grant.

"I think we're going to be able to create the basis for a lot of reforms this year," he told UPI.

The Federal Judicial Center here also is attempting to save money and promote efficiency in juror utilization. The trick is to cut down on the number of jurors called and still have enough available when a judge wants to start a trial.

Federal Judge Alfred P. Murrah, director of the Judicial Center, is particularly concerned with citizens' attitudes toward the judicial system because jury service is the only court experience for millions of Americans.

Improve attitude

If people "don't have to stand around in jury rooms patting their feet and getting asthma from cigarette smoke" they will find their duty more agreeable and will have a more positive attitude toward it, he feels.

"By just exercising a little prudence and by training ourselves and thinking about it we can effect substantial economies," Judge Murrah added.

Only about 10 per cent of all lawsuits in this country are settled by jury trials and Murrah estimated that a jury trial costs roughly $750 a day.

In the year ending June 30, 1972, jury fees cost the taxpayers $10.6 million. Total jury expenditures, including subsistence, mileage, meals and lodging, came to $13.5 million.

Sift voting lists

Federal jurors are chosen from the general population by a sifting process starting with the voting lists. Joseph L. Ebersole, the Judicial Center's director of innovations and systems development described it:

Numbers 1 to 10 are placed in a hat. Someone picks a number, say 7. Then every seventh name on the voting list is picked up. This could sift out about 100,000 from a population of a million.

These names are placed in a master "wheel," a mechanical or computerized device designed to choose people at random. In the old days, a rotating wheel actually was used and some one reached into it to pick names.

The "wheel" is set to produce names of about 1,000 persons, who then are sent juror questionnaires. Some excuses are received and the number falls to about 850.

Jury box

"This is called a qualified wheel," Ebersole explained, and about 150 individuals are summoned at random to report the first of a specified month. Perhaps 10 per cent have excuses and the rest go into a jury pool.

There are now 135 people available for trials at the beginning of a typical month. These may be divided into four panels, which go to separate court rooms. Eventually, after both sides in a lawsuit exercise challenges to particular individuals, 12 people finally are sitting in the jury box and the trial can start.

The Supreme Court has ruled that both civil and criminal cases may, under the constitution, be tried by juries of fewer than 12 persons. But Pabst doesn't see this development as of great consequence.

"More important is the way jurors are brought into court and the way they are treated while there," he said.

Uncertainty reigns

Uncertainty as to when jurors will be needed is the main problem. For instance, an impending civil trial can be eliminated by a settlement on the courthouse steps. Pretrial motions are unpredictable; they can take half a day. A criminal defendant can change his plea to guilty.

The chief judge sometimes determines the size of the jury panel or all the judges may agree among themselves.

The Judicial Center discovered that in 95 per cent of civil trials a panel size of 23 would have been sufficient whereas the average actually ranged from 30 to 32.

William A. Stoever of the Institute of Judicial Administration in New York conducted a study for the federal district courts in that city and came up with the two-thirds rule.

Two-thirds theory

It was determined that 40 was a maximum panel for criminal cases and 25 for civil cases. Thus the theoretical maximum for two criminal trials and one civil trial would be 105, but the jury clerk now works with two-thirds of 105, or 70. He calls 54 or 80, depending on trial starting times. Those remaining from the first one or two are available for the third.

From January through June of 1972 this plan saved about $278,000, according to Ebersole.

James Davey, clerk of the district court in the District of Columbia, said efficiency has improved there but more can be accomplished.

Davey, over some objections, got in touch with charitable organizations and as a result juror volunteers with time on their hands are stuffing toys at children's hospital.

"No matter how hard you try, there's going to be some waiting time," he said.

Woman wins in birth control case

Youth forsake radical ways, turn to religion

By ROBERT STRAND

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — With hippies nearly extinct and radicals fading on the campus, vast numbers of middle class youth are turning their search for a changed world to a new spiritualism.

In a shift as large as it is austere and exotic, the talk of the day concerns Yoga, meditation and the contemplative life. Drugs and easy sex are out, mysticism is in.

Mantra prayers begin at 4 a.m. A ritual master teaches walking on hot coals. Devotees spend hours in asana postures.

Life of St. Paul

Christians adopt the life of St. Paul, and Jews return to the mysticism of the stern and pious hasidim.

Astonishing though the switch to spiritualism may seem, serious scholars see the impact on national life to be as potentially substantial as that of the Haight-Ashbury and the Students for a Democratic Society.

Just as most people knew somebody's son who turned flower child or shouting activist, so soon many may shake their heads over an acquaintance with a shaved skull, turban or pajama pants.

The eastern mystical discovery by the young perhaps started with the trips of the Beatles and Mia Farrow to India and Maharishi Mahesh Yoga, mentor of the transcendental meditation technique.

Proposed for schools

Now TM, as it is called, is practiced by Army generals, Wall Street brokers and California legislators. Its teaching has been proposed for the San Francisco school system.

Gradually since the Haight-Ashbury turned from love to terror in 1967, Gurus, dervishes, roshis and swamis came to lecture American youth. Lamas, driven out of Tibet by the Red Chinese, brought a Buddhist discipline new to the United States.

One rock star after another cried out messages of an aquarian age to come, messages incomprehensible to youngsters' parents.

The list of all-out new spiritualists includes Alice Coltrain, Carol king, Clint Walker, Kate Taylor, John Fahey and Mahavishmu John McLaughlin.

Crowd stunned

In Berkeley, a recent dopesmoking audience was stunned when acid rock king Carlos Santana, known for hair to his waist, emerged on stage in a POW cut and an Indian shirt. He set up an altar with a photo of his guru, Sri Chinmoy, and gave a spiritual concert.

Jerry Rubin, one of the Chicago Seven activists, and Yippie co-founder, is very mellow these days experimenting with ESP seminars, a synthesis of eastern techniques.

Another of the Chicago Seven, Rennie Davis, gave a Berkeley speech last April that shook the new left from coast to coast. He announced his adoration of a 15-year-old boy, the Guru Maharaj Ji whose devotees are expected to fill the Houston Astrodome in November.

"If I didn't blieve with my entire soul that Guru Maharaj Ji is going to save the planet, then I wouldn't be placing myself so far out on a limb," Davis said.

For three hours the SDS cofounder spoke softly and sweetly in the face of shouted obscenities from a furious audience of 1,000, mostly radicals.

When Davis allowed that President Nixon has good in him, too, a flurry of tomatoes flew, screaming youths rushed the stage, and Davis responded, "I love all of you very much."

Hippies and activists long were divided over whether the world can best be saved by changing the social system—or by changing one's self. Davis spent years storming the system, then switched.

Impossible to count

The numbers involved in the eastern and Christian varieties of the new spiritualism are impossible to pin down.

The Mandala, a Berkeley store dealing exclusively in the metaphysical and mystical, sells 75,000 books annually.

"Be Here Now," a book by Dr. Richard Alpert now known as Baba Ram Dass, has sold 300,000.

Alpert, a former Harvard professor who with Timothy Leary was a pied piper of LSD, returned from India as a spiritual teacher. He dismissed drugs as unnecessary.

"Spiritual Community Guide," an underground paperback, lists 371 ashrams and related activities in California alone.

Yoga practice

One scholar guesses the nation now has 500,000 practicing members of various eastern religious groups, not counting enthusiasts and persons simply using Yoga to limber up.

To that number may be added youthful thousands of the Jesus movement with similar mystical impulses, and perhaps an estimated 300,000 Neo-Pentacostalists active in mainstream Catholic and Protestant churches.

In the new spiritualism of youth, almost everyone is under 30, comes from middle and upper class families and is college educated. Eastern groups attract youths of all religious backgrounds, but Catholics and especially Jews appear in disproportionately high numbers.

Drugs not needed

Most have been heavy drug users, and all proclaim drugs are not needed to get high. They say righteous life can keep you high all the time.

Given their background, the significance may not simply be the new spiritualists' happening —as much as what they dramatize about doubts and hopes among young millions who never will go so far as to carry a dhoti or paint their foreheads with a tilak.

All respect Yoga and meditation, and practicing Christians and Jews still find appeal in the central thrust of the various oriental faiths, the changing or elimination of desire.

All seek joy and ecstasy in daily religious experience, and, with some exceptions, all think each major religion offers a true path to the same reality. Some paths, however, are held to be straighter than others.

Messiah coming

New spiritualists firmly believe humanity verges on a quantum jump forward. It is called the new age, the Aquarian Age, the dawning of a new consciousness, or the coming of the Messiah.

Ivan Finmay, 26, self-proclaimed former atheist and son of a Newark, N.J., liquor salesman, explains:

"Our parents worked hard to be middle class, and God was excluded from our life. He was cut out of the deal.

"Our generation seeks to experience the oneness of the world, to improve the planet. God promised to send us a Messiah, to show us how to improve ourselves and the world. We all feel he is coming in our lifetimes."

Among those involved in eastern groups and practice are students of the Jesuit Theological Seminary at Berkeley. To concerned parents, the Rev. Michael J. Buckley, the rector, would say:

"If a person becomes more loving, more gentle and more peaceful by standing on his head, you should be delighted."

Father Buckley cites historian Arnold Toynbee's belief that the most important 20th Century development will be, rather than technology, the confrontation of Christianity with eastern religion.

Christianity, he says, is turning east where it will absorb new religious ideas and techniques—just as the early Christians assimulated Greek philosophy in the Mediterranean world.

Edward Brown, a Zen Buddhist priest, comments: "The way Americans live hasn't satisfied young people. The standard way of relieving suffering—a well-paid job, a family in suburbia—hasn't worked.

Eliminate desire

"The cause of suffering is desire, and the way to relieve it is to eliminate desire."

"People seek something to improve their life—not the philosphy of Sunday go-to-meeting religion—but something that works," says the Rev. Earl W. Blighton. "There is a handbook for what works, the new testament."

Blighton, who also sees the coming of a new age, is director of the Holy Order of MANS, a mystical group which has grown in a decade to operate 81 "stations" manned by 1,000 black garbed persons under life vows, mostly youths.

Jacob Needleman, author of the "The New Religions," says the notion that the intellect, through science and psychiatry, will solve all problems has soured.

"We have all we wanted—cars, television, money, a sexual revolution, women's liberation—and it doesn't make people happy. The quality of life has not changed.

"Real religion is based on hard hitting psychology, telling us what is wrong with us, how we sell ourselves short. Ancient religion had this, and saw everything Freud saw, and more.

"Real religion has a practical method for changing the psychological structure of man. That, to me, is the religious core the west has lost."

Needleman and Rev. Buckley suspect the spread of eastern practice in the U.S. will force a new Christian understanding of its own mystical traditions.

Spiritual center

Among the young, hopes run far higher. They will ask Mayor Joseph L. Alioto to proclaim San Francisco a world spiritual center on the occasion of the autumn equinox.

Sam Bercholz, 25, Berkeley publisher, predicts that America will become "a beacon for the rest of the world" because "spiritual experience comes in desperation, and people are very, very hungry."

The forecast from the old red factory housing San Francisco's Sino-American Buddhist Monastery—founded by young Americans who spend their time studying sanskrit and Chinese texts—is more guarded.

Bhiksu Heng Ching, 29, formerly Steven Klarer and son of an Air Force colonel, leads a life so austere he sleeps sitting up, and has not lain down in four years. He says:

"A lot of it is faddism. But the time certainly is ripe for the real McCoy."

Cannery workers ratify strike-settling pact

OAKLAND (UPI) — Northern California cannery workers have ratified a strike-settling contract by a 2-1 margin. Terms will affect 85,000 Teamsters at peak season in 5 canneries.

The workers walked off their jobs last week and returned to work recently after the tentative settlement was reached in negotiations at Washington, D.C.

The previous pay range of $3.15 to $5.25 an hour was increased to $3.50 to $5.77 effective July 1. Raises the next two years will increase the range to from $3.90 to $6.27.

By June, 1976, overtime pay will be required for work beyond 40 hours weekly. The workers now don't get overtime until after six days and 48 hours.

Changes in working conditons and job classifications and other fringer benefits such as prepaid drug and dental programs also are included.

The Old Courthouse Museum in Vicksburg, Miss., houses the largest collection of Civil War Americana in the South.

English kings celebrated

Bath, a town that gives visitors a royal welcome

BATH, England (UPI) — All over town there are crowns —golden crowns, wooden ones, jewel-studded replica crowns.

A hardware store window holds rows of glittering crowns made from can openers and knives and tea strangers. A teddy bear king in a toy shop's stuffed-animal coronation scene wears a gilt paper one.

These days Bath is awash in crowns. They're an appropriate symbol for "Monarchy 1000," a celebration of 1,000 years of English monarchy which is turned Bath festive all summer long.

At the center of the celebrations is an ambitious exhibition called "Sovereigns." It could be a dry-as-dust history lesson about monarchs who have worn England's crown since Edgar the Peaceful was crowned in Bath Abbey church on May 11, 973. It isn't.

History is served by a long, tangled family tree—a concoction of fluorescent wires which traces the present Queen Elizabeth's ancestry back about 1,300 years. But straight history is not the point.

Its purpose is to illustrate aspects of monarchy—the monarch as warrior, as builder, as lover, as a human being. One of its sections brings many of these crowned heads to life through objects they wore or owned.

Queen Victoria, on the evidence of an etching, was an inept artist, but her beloved Albert was highly skilled. King George V might have parked his royal bicycle against that wall in 1926, next to the huge studded chest which brought part of Catherine of Aragon's dowery of jewels from Spain 400 years earlier.

Those riding boots seem entirely too tiny to have slipped onto the first Queen Elizabeth's feet, but she wore them when using the saddle lying next to them. Much-married Henry VIII may not have had much use for his rosary, its beads incredible boxwood carvings to designs by Holbein.

In one case is a miniature sailor suit worn by Victoria's son Bertie, who bulged into Edward VII. In another is a plain white shirt, still poignantly tinged with blood, which King Charles I wore when they chopped off his head in 1649.

Kingly Associations

All these kings and queens knew Bath, as did many, many others. This glorious little city 107 miles west of London got its first royal grant in 676. It had associations with 11 monarchs before Edgar was crowned here a millenoum ago.

Yet the Bath everyone knows is barely 200 years old. About that time high society flocked here to take the medicinal waters and be seen, and Bath vibrated with names still famous today—Lord Nelson, Jane Austen, Sheridan, Gainsborough.

Under the 18th Century Hanoverian Georges, Bath rebuilt itself. It carved new streets on the steep slopes of its River Avon valley and lined them with unified terraces, crescents, colonnades, even a shop-lined bridge, which are marvels of architectural grace, proportion and restraint.

Today Bath is cleaning the grime of two centuries off its cream-colored stone treasures. But the work is piecemeal and interrupted by water shortages, so that two or thee houses gleam in a uni-three houses gleam in a uni-

Sixty Events

Within and around these Georgian buildings, Bath has scheduled a chess tournament, a musical festival a military tattoo—60-odd events in all. There's even a swimming party in the 2,000-year-old Roman baths which gave the city its name.

"Sovereigns" and "The World of Saxon Kings," companion exhibits of objects from the 9th to 11th centuries, runs every day until October. There's a children's party and a flower festival, a student review poking fun at King Edgar and a costume ball poking fun at all royalty. 8

In "Sovereigns," on a wall covered with historic cracks about England's kings and queens, is one slogan which could only have come from the students who designed the exhibition.

"Henry I," it says, "snores."

Salaries of union leaders are listed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Labor Department has answered the question: Who is the highest paid labor leader in the United States?

He is Frank E. Fitzsimmons, the president of the 2-million member Teamsters Union, who drew $125,000 last year, plus $6,481 in expense allowances.

The second highest paid labor leader is Murray W. Miller, the Teamsters' secretary-treasurer, who is paid $100,973 with $13,255 in allowances.

The Labor Department issued a list of union leaders' salaries Wednesday.

It showed that some leaders of small unions are highly paid while some leaders of large unions are modestly compensated.

The recently retired Joseph Curran, president of the 30,000 to 40,000-member National Maritime Union, drew $35,257 in salary and allowances and expenses of $6,835.

In contrast, Peter Bommarito, president of the 216,000 member Rubber Workers Union, drew only $25,000 plus expenses of $6,041 in 1972.

Leonard Woodcock, pesident of the economically powerful United Auto Workers, which has 1.4 million members, was paid $38,134 plus expenses of $9,315.

The only other union official to receive as much as $100,000 a year was President Hunter P. Wharton of the 400,000-member Operating Engineers, who was paid $80,833 and drew allowances of $22,200.

President C.L. Dennis of the 300,000-member Railway and Airline Clerks received $70,000 salary and $21,068 expenses.

Laborers Union President Peter Fosco at $75,000 and AFL-CIO President George Meany at $72,960 had higher salaries than Dennis, but their expenses allowances were not nearly as much—$5,599 for Fosco and $1,816 for Meany.

Steelworkers President I.W. Abel, who represents about 1.4 million workers, was paid $60,000 plus $9,937 expenses.

Finland tries to 'snuffout' public smoking

HELSINKI (UPI) — Cigarette smoking in public may become a criminal offense in Finland if a special government committee gets its way.

A cigarette smoking committee has recommended to the government that smoking be prohibited or restricted in nearly all public places. Breaking the law would result in a fine or jail.

The committee also recommended that cigarette advertising be prohibited, that tobacco not be sold to persons under 15, and that cigarette machines not be placed in areas where children can readily use them.

The Minister of Social Affairs and Health has taken the report under advisement and has circulated it to several government agencies. If the government accepts it, the proposals would be brought before Parliament.

Professor Eero Tala, chairman of the committee, said general reaction to the report has been favorable. "Newspapers from the far right to the far left have given us favorable headlines," he said. "There is a feeling we should do something to protect the non-smoker."

The committee recommended that all ofices, factories, hospitals, schools and trains would have to provide special rooms for those wanting to smoke. Anyone who smoked in a general area and was asked to stop and refused could be arrested.

"There is a general opinion that people should be allowed to smoke as much as they want, but non-smokers also have the right to fresh and clean air. Therefore, we think it is justified to have rules restricting where people can smoke," Tala said.

The committee exempted cafes and restaurants from the restrictions because no one is forced to go to such places, Tala said. Even so, each establishment would have to maintain sufficient ventilation to ease smoke congestion. Banks and government offices were included on the list because people have to go there for business, he said.

The committee was formed one year ago at the request of the Ministry of Social Affairs and Health.

"The ministry was concerned about the side effects of smoking among non-smokers," Tala said. "There has been recent evidence that non smokers do suffer from the side effects of smoking. Headaches are the most prevalent ailments."

The Finnish Heart Association has been concernd about smoking since Finland for several years has had the world's highest mortality rate in heart disease

"We are realistic people," Tala said. "We know it is impossible to stop smoking habits if you have a law against all smoking. But we can begin to phase it out."

Bank offers steaks for new accounts

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Persons were going into the building with $200 and coming out with steaks. But it didn't mean the price of beef had gone up again.

The building was a bank and the steaks were part of a promotion to celebrate the bank's opening.

The National Bank of Affton, as well as Manchester Bank and the Manchester Bank-Hampton office in the St. Louis area, began giving away free steaks Thursday to persons opening a checking account with $200 or more.

Reedy gives high points, lowdown on presidency

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first thing that strikes you about George Reedy is his pipe.

He chews it. He pokes at it. And sometimes he smokes it.

Reedy, LBJ's former press secretary, was in town to plug his latest book, "The Presidency In Flux." It's a little book, all about America and politicians and what's wrong with both.

As a man who once walked in corridors of power in the White House, he talks, naturally enough, about Watergate and the two presidents he has known best, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon

Different Types

"They were essentially two very different types of men," he said.

"Johnson liked to gather a lot of people around him and try to dominate them.

"Nixon, on the other hand, is a more isolated, introverted man. I knew him quite well when he was a young congressman and I worked for the United Press. I spent two years of my life devoting 75 per cent of my time to him during the Alger Hiss case and the amazing thing was that after all that time how little I knew of him—practically nothing.

"But the one thing I did learn was that this was a man who keeps very close counsel with himself. There is something locked in him. This man does not want to reveal himself. I know of no newsman who ever really knew him."

Although President Nixon was re-elected by one of the largest majorities in the history of the country, Reedy believes the Watergate scandal is eroding his political power.

"Now I don't think that President Nixon ever had much of any political power, at any time. He was elected on a lot of negatives — McGovern scared the hell out of a lot of people and they went over and voted for Mr. Nixon.

Power vanishing

"His major amount of power has been that the majority of the American people are loyal to their president and they are willing to obey the laws and follow his leadership. But that power is rapidly vanishing because of the impact of Watergate.

"And I think that he won't have too much for the next couple of years, and by and large, it will be negative power. He will be able to keep up the house-keeping function of the White House and he will be able to do the sorts of things a president can do if he doesn't have to go to Congress.

"For instance, he can exchange all sorts of representatives with China, but if he has to go to Congress for something, I think he will be in an awful lot of trouble."

Turning toward the political campaigns that now use high-priced public relations men as gurus, Reedy said he really doesn't like them because they reduce the dialogue between politicians and their constituents.

"The public relations man is now the high priest of politics. I used to really enjoy listening to politicians. They used to talk about people. Now all you hear is talk about their image. You can't sell a man the way you sell a bar of soap."

Dim image

Perhaps a man whose image was dimmed the most by electronic politics was President Johnson.

"During his early days of the presidency, he was quite colorful, holding press conferences in haystacks and in airplanes. But he did not come across well in a formal television press conference. He felt he was bound by the rules of rhetoric that are laid down in a high school debating class. He was really at his best when he forgot that the TV camera was on.

"There were two occasions at press conferences when he forgot about the camera and he began to stomp up and down the stage and for awhile the American people had a glimpse of a really magnificent man. But you really didn't see this too often because somehow he thought he had to make these respectable appearances on television."

Reedy, however, said he is not willing to guess whether or not historians will have a more favorable view of President Johnson's years in the White House, especially because of Vietnam.

"But somewhere along the line," he said, "he's going to start, not necessarily looking good, but looking big."

Carport spurs 3-year hassle

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — When Fred Anderson and some friends decided on July 4, 1970, to build a carport they had no idea what the ramifications would be.

Three years, several court actions and an election later the carport is still there, but with one addition, a three-foot setback—and that was the cause of all the trouble.

The original carport had no setback and city inspectors ordered it torn down.

Anderson refused and after a trial was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $500.

The penalties were suspended on condition Anderson serve three days in jail and tear down the carport.

He continued the battle through the appeals courts and went so far as to run for the City Council, but he lost on both counts.

Finally, a carpenter friend of Anderson's cut the carport back three feet, satisfying the building inspector, and ending what had started out as "just a weekend beer party."

College in Stockton for 'Latins'

Spanish is key language at Covell, English second

By DUSTON HARVEY

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI) — Elbert Covell College calls itself the "only completely bilingual four-year college in the United States," but ony one language is spoken in class—Spanish.

The only exception is English, taught as a second language for Latin American students, who make up about 40 per cent of the 163 "Covellanos."

The mixture of students from North America and Latin America is as important to Covell's bicultural program as its hemispheric academic orientation, according to Provost Gaylon Caldwell

Both groups of students—who reside together in dorms, attend the same classes and share a common dining room— generally become fluent in the others' language by the end of the sophomore year.

"This school is dedicated to inter-American studies, it's not a Latin American studies program," said Caldwell in his office on the University of Pacific campus 60 miles east of San Francisco.

Part of a Cluster

Covell is one of three liberal arts cluster colleges at the university, a private school with 4,000 students on its Stockton campus and a hefty $2,600-a-year tuition fee, which makes it hard to attract Latins.

"We want a social and economic mix," said Caldwell. "We don't want all our Latins to be rich. About 65 percent had some kind of scholarship or financial help last year. Nearly all of them work."

Fifty-four men and 17 women from south of the border enrolled at Covell last year, tending to major in business administration, economics and bilingual education.

"I came because I wanted to go to school in the United States," said Rodrigo Zulueta, 22, a darkly handsome business administration graduate from Santiago who transferred to Covell two years ago from a Chilean law school.

Living standard attracts

Caldwell said that Zulueta's reason is the main one for the Latin Americans.

"They like the way we live and our standard of living. They come because they want to get to the United States"

He said Covell, which emphasizes the breaking down of "narrow nationalism," tries to convince the Latin students to return home after graduation and make their contributions to their homeland.

About 75 per cent do return home immediatelv after &raduation and another 15 per cent remain in the United States to enter graduate school. Those who go home migrate to government ministries, business and college level teaching. Language

Teaching majors

The enrollment of North American students at Covell was 26 men and 66 women with the heaviest concentrations of majors in language teaching anl political science. Caldwell said the North American women "enrolled because they loved the language or liked their high school Spanish teacher." The Provost said the men usually had some Spanish and wanted to "get into a school like this."

A recent survey showed 26 per cent of Covell's U.S. graduates were living and working in Spanish-speaking countries and 50 per cent more had obtained jobs where Spanish fluency was mandatory. "A lot of the girls marry Latins and go home with them," Caldwell added.

When Covell was founded 10 years ago, Mexican-Americans were deliberately excluded from the North American contingent to prevent it from becoming a Chicano school. This policy has been changed in recent years and Chicanos and Puerto Ricans are actively recruited—making up about a third of next year's North American freshmen.

CMC research unit gets $374,866 grant

CLAREMONT — Municipal Systems Research of the Claremont Men's College has received a $374,866 grant from the federal government to begin a year-long study on urban data collection, social services and planning.

The group, a management consultant to the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), will be looking at problems of confidentiality and invasion of privacy.

"Many cities have computerized data on income, through building permits, personal property or welfare records," comments Carl F. Davis, director of the group.

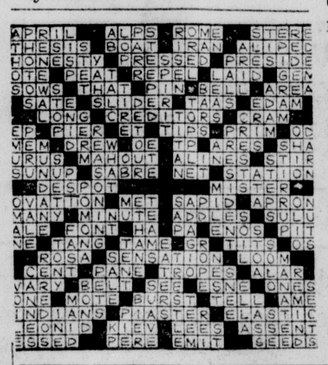
"When correlated, it gives a rather complete file on the citizen. Just how much information should be released, and to whom, will be one of our goals."

Another program which the group will undertake is to determine what new programs should be undertaken in the next five years in the area of a human resources delivery system. It will focus on regional or statewide systems and attempt to correlate these with existing HUD programs.

The group will examine all direct service to the citizens by municipalities. These will include health, education, welfare and the impact of these services on other public agencies such as fire, police and transportation.

According to Davis, information developed by the group will be made available not only to HUD, but to all cities of 50,000 population or over. Hopefully, he added, all systems will be computerized and can be adapted to local communities.

Systems Research, located on the CMC campus since last October, includes a number of Claremont faculty members and students on its staff. The group specializes in developing urban information systems.



For 70,000 boy scouts

It's jamboree time

NEW CASTLE, Pa. (UPI) — Halfway around the world is a long way to go for a camping trip, but nine boys from India are making the hike. So are boys from Australia, Japan, Greece, England and other faraway places.

The attraction is the quadrennial Boy Scout Jamboree, being held this year, Aug. 3-9, in two places for the first time. Jamboree-East will be held here in western Pennsylvania at Moraine State Park. Jamboree-West will hold forth at Farragut State Park, Idaho, site of the last Jamboree in 1969.

Appoximately 40,000 scouts are expected to take part in Jamboree-East, 30,000 in Jamboree-West. They'll come from every state in the union as well as foreign lands. For example, among boys who'll be camping at Moraine State Park are 32 from Boy Scout Troop 1510 in Monessen, Pa., only 50 miles from the campground.

At the suggestion of the Scouts themselves, the Jamborees this year will have as one theme, "Ecology and Environment " Hence, the Moraine Jamboree will have over 100 booths and exhibits on conservation and wildlife management. "We hope," said William Jackson, Sr., site chairman, "that the exhibits will show how we can all help the ecology and make the world a little nicer place to live."

Also in line with the ecology theme, Jackson said, "we expect to leave the park in better condition than we find it. The state of Pennsylvania had planned to do considerable work on Moraine anyway. By holding our Jamboree here we've put that work ahead of schedule by years."

During the Jamborees the boys will be kept busy fishing, canoeing, swimming, playing ball, taking part in patrols and hikes, engaging in art and other instructional programs — and just plain getting to know other Boy Scouts from throughout the United States and the world.

Feeding such assemblages is a huge undertaking, and the food available for hungry young appetites is based in large part on the experience of past Jamborees and the Scouts' own suggestions.

Among menu items at Moraine will be 79,000 10-inch loaves for hero sandwiches, 44,000 mountain trout, 120,000 chickens, 50,000 cases of assorted canned foods, 380 crates of apples, 8,236 pounds of carrots, 313 boxes of banans, 800 cans of orange juice concentrate and 594,000 fresh oranges, 14,280 pounds of tomatoes, 175 cases of cabbage, 21,060 heads of lettuce, 400 dozen doughnuts, 288,000 eggs, 40,000 pounds of butter, 18,000 hamburger buns. And that's a very partial list. Potables will include hundreds of thousands of quarts of milk, tens of thousands of bottles of soda.

The Scouts will be bunked at 24 campsites, each holding 1,500 to 2,500 boys and advisors.

Predict European demand for U.S. corn to decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — While some livestock producers and traders worry about whether export demands for corn will leave enough for home consumption in the 1973-74 marketing year, an Agriculture Department study predicts there could be a decline in European demand for U.S. corn by1980.

The study by department economists noted that U.S. corn sales to Europe over the last decade averaged about 8.2 million tons a year before jumping to 12 million tons last year, when production dipped in other countries.

If more normal production conditions return, the study said, European farmers may increase their production by 1980 to 33.4 million tons, more than double the 1969-71 average.

This would leave an import need of only 11.6 million tons, with the U.S. supplying about 7 million tons of the imports, the study said. Experts said most of the expanded European production would likely come in France.

Island poses hot threat

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI) — An 80-square mile floating and drifting island of volcanic pumice posed a threat to shipping in the South Pacific today.

Lt. Ross Bell, commander of the Coast Guard unit in American Samoa, said the huge layer of light, rock-like material entrapped a New Zealand ship three days ago.

The Union South Pacific, a carry-on vessel owned by the Union Steamship Co., of New Zealand entered the pumice field about 160 miles southwest of here on Wednesday night.

Erma Bombeck

Male sex symbols come and go. Movie stars. Athletes. Astronauts. But I have never seen women so whipped up over politicians . . . or the Kissinger syndrome as it is called.

Ever since the Watergate investigating committee got their own TV series, the principals have become household words: sexy and cute to name a few. It is not unlikely that any day now the Congressional Record will come out with a Senator-fold.

Frankly, it takes a bit of getting used to. For years, Congress, the Cabinet and the President have been spared the irritations of being mortal. The President is never photographed with a cigarette (if he smokes), a glass of booze (if he drinks), getting a traffic ticket, or standing in line at an X-rated movie.

He has also enjoyed sex immunity.

Personally, I have always put Presidents in the same category as Santa Claus and Mickey Mouse (sensuality dropouts). Residents of the White House have children who are divinely conceived and retire to the Lincoln bed wearing a necktie and a stovepipe hat.

The very idea of Woodrow Wilson fooling around or Teddy Roosevelt basting himself in "Brut" is enough to make you an undecided.

Not my friends. They have never been so high on politicians. In their description, Sam Ervin is a "Teddy Bear," Edward Gurney has a voice that could lure you out of a tree and Howard Baker is just plain "adorable."

"I thought you were all high on Paul," I charged.

"Paul who?" they asked.

"Newman."

"Is he a lawyer for the committee or the defense?" they asked.

Some say women's interest in politicians is a return to patriotism. If I could only believe that. But Ihave seen women look at Senators Percy, Kennedy and Bayh, and can truthfully say I have never seen them lust for a flag in quite that way.

"You are just being stubborn," said one of my friends. "You don't want to admit that politicians are flesh and blood and just as sexy as movie stars. Just read Barbara Howar's new book on Washington and how she had an affair with an unnamed U.S. senator."

At this point in time, I think it relevant to point out that the name of the book is "Laughing All the way." The defense rests.

Chess

The perplexities of Bobby Fischer

Success in America may have its ironies: especially if your name is Bobby Fischer.

Although a legend for more than a decade, Bobby only earned a moderate income at best. His professional life featured continual conflicts with chess promoters and organizers. Once he forfeited an important match over scheduling disputes.

He lost a chance to become world champion four years earlier than he did because of another quarrel over scheduling. He had bitter struggles tournament after tournament over playing conditions. His latter efforts have set higher standards for grandmaster tournaments and are appreciated by Fischer's colleagues).

Now as world champion, he can command literally millions of dollars in income if he wishes. He can have his demands for playing conditions satisfied down to the last detail. He is the idol and scapegoat of tens of millions of Americans who witnessed his escapades before and in Iceland and his relentless battering of Boris Spassky both off and on the board. His foibles, his future matches, his refusal to garner a fortune (so far) are topics for articles, stories and gossip.

Yet his essential accomplishment has not been fully appreciated: His extraordinary performance at the chessboard in Reykjavik. Although everyone knows that he defeated Spassky, few appreciate the magnificence of his effort. Fischer's second, Father William Lombardy, aptly described one aspect of his achievement when he observed while the match was in progress that, "This is the most exciting chess played in a world championship match since the days of Steinitz."

According to some newspaper accounts, Bobby is now withdrawn, depressed and not on top of the latest developments in world chess. Is Fischer suffering a natural letdown after achieving his lifelong dream and raison d'etre? Bent Larsen, the Danish grandmaster, has suggested that Fischer is still affected, perhaps irrevocably, by the strain of the events of last summer.

Spassky himself, although visibly recovered according to observers, confesses to still being depressed by his own defeat in Reykjavik.

Bobby's situation is different, of course. After all, he was the winner. But his role was even more frenzied; he was perhaps even more subject to extremes of emotion and tension.

It is most unofrtunate that Fischer excites such relentless curiosity. It seems he will always be in the public eye. He will undoubtedly be forced over and over again to relive some of the more sensational and unpleasant aspects of his past as well as to have the slightest details of his private life subjected to scrutiny and inference.

Such sketchy information as recent reports have been based on can furnish no more than a fleeting impression of limited validity. Those who look for Fischer to withdraw completely from the chess world had best remind themselves that he has refuted such predictions in the past. He has always returned to chess to take up play at an even higher level. The phrase "Fischer Fear" refers not to Fischer's own fear of taking up the chess guantlet but to the psychological state of his opponents when they face the terrifying (to them) vitality and health, the superhuman force that Bobby Fischer presents at the chessboard.

Hughes urges bombing end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, said Friday Congress must maintain a "tough determination" to resist any administration pressures to continue military activity in Cambodia after Aug. 15.

"There must be no, but no, resumption of American bombing or other military operations, either secret or open, either illegal or within constitutional bounds in Indochina," Hughes said in a Senate speech.

"As the Aug. 15 deadline approaches, the pressure will inevitably mount to bludgeon Congress and the American people to continue our military involvement.

"As the hour of truth approaches, will we have the tough determination and horse sense to do what has to be done?".

Unions asked to support farmworkers

HONOLULU (UPI) — The president of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union Local 142 Friday urged all union members to support the farmworkers' lettuce and grape boycotts on the mainland.

Carl Damaso said, "We are asking all ILWU members and their families to support the boycotts 100 per cent."

He said the farmworkers were fighting for "the same dignity and fair treatment that union field workers have in Hawaii."

Damaso told members of his union that the farmworkers faced "the gang-up of growers, government, cops, hired thugs and certain trade union cannibals which are trying to deny them a union of their own."

Draft dodgers need feeling of self-respect

Dear Walt: What do you have to say about those draft dodgers who are up in Canada and elsewhere? What do you think should be done with them now that the war is over? My girl friend's brother is up in Ottawa and I don't know where I stand on this issue. — Sid

Dear Sid: I'd like to see all charges dropped against guys who would perform some useful, alternate service in lieu of the Army hitch they ducked. Assiting in a hospital, working to rehabilitate a physically decrepit school, undertaking some ecology project, etc., anything along this line would benefit our country and increase these citizens' own self-respect.—Walt

Dar Ele and Walt: Our sister had this accident and has to be in a wheelchair for three months. This means we have to do our chores plus hers at home. We're not complaining about this, but when we're working she keeps driving her wheelchair right through the space we're working in.

Yesterday was the last straw. We were vacuuming up on ladders to reach the chandelier, and she actually fussed until I got down from the ladder and went over and disconnected the vacuum cord so she could get by. She wouldn't even wait 15 minutes. What do you think of this? — Jeff for Three "Slavies"

Dear "Slavies": We think Sis should be told before you launch complicated cleanup chores so she can secure needed supplies or position herself in an access route to the kitchen or bathroom without having to disturb your labors. If she can't see the fairness of this, ask Mom or Dad to interpret to her on behalf of the short-handed clean-up crew. —Ele and Walt

Dear Ele: The girl I go with takes me for granted. She always expects me to pick her up for work in the morning and get her at the end of the day. If she's had a bad day and doesn't feel like talking to me, she won't. But lots of times she wants me to drop her friends off on the way home and she will talk to them even if she is down.

She has not remembered my last two birthdays, and acts like she's just doing her "duty" lots of times when I kiss her. Do you think I'm letting her make a fool out of me? — Ross

Dear Ross: It seems that her respect for you is minimal, and that the magic in your relationship is a low ebb. Try shedding the "carpet" role and standing up more for your own rights.

Specifically: Arrange to chauffeur only when you really want to and demand that she make as much effort to talk with you when she's down, as she expends for her chums. Remind her at least twice before your birthday falls due and, if she fluffs it off, don't buy a present for her next birthday. ("No, of course I didn't get a present. I thought you'd decided we were too old for that sort of thing after you skipped me three years.")

Most importantly, realize that you can fairly demand either counseling for the two either counseling for the two tionship, or the privilege of dating a range of women including her if your needs aren't being met in the current twosome.

I have the feeling that as you respect yourself more, you will in turn become more vivid and important to this petulent lass. — Ele

Ever wonder what to say on a date? How to introduce a new topic? What to do about silences? If so, send for Ele and Walt's helpful pamphlet "Conversation Hints." Write Teen-Age Date-Line, in care of this newspaper, enclosing 25 cents (one quarter) and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

World of animals

Man should provide shade for animals

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: It made me sick yesterday when we were driving through some blazing heat and I saw this horse standing in a pasture. This poor beast was obviously suffering from the scorching sun yet he could do nothing about it but just stand there. I don't know whether he had water or not but I know he had nothing more shady than a short blade of grass to hide under. It is simply stupid and extremely inhumane to force any poor animal to stand in the blazing sun all day. Will you please be sure your readers get this message? — C.C.

COMMENT: They just have. Unfortunately, others need the message a lot more. Be it horse or hamster or anything in between, two summertime necessities are water and shade. An astrounding number of animal owners neglect to provide one or both consistently. Tens of thousands of animals in this country (let alone elsewhere) suffer needlessly as a result and, of course, many die. Most of us have more than one opportunity in a summer to save such a suffering animal — besides, of course, our own.

DAR DR. MILLER: Once a dog is exposed to distemper, how long does it take for the disease to develop if she is going to get it? —C.T.

Dear C.T.: The average incubation for canine distemper virus is five to seven days. The initial signs of distemper infection may be deceptively mild involving initial respiratory and-or gastrointestinal disturbance lasting a day or two. In its more advanced stages the symptoms become increasingly obvious.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Why does my little tiger-striped kitten, Bangle, have such a big stomach? I guess you could say he is as good an eater as, or maybe better than, most kittens, but he still doesn't eat all that much at one time and still his stomach looks like he has just had an eight-course dinner any time you look at him. — T.F.

Dear T.F.: Your little big-bellied Bangle tiger could be going to pot primarily from parasites. Roundworms are a rather common kitten complaint. The over-ample abdomen, in the young particularly, is one symptom of parasitic infestation. Because it could also be due to other causes, it is wise to have the doctor make the actual determination on whether worming is the answer for Bangle.

Reagan back on the job

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan returns from a month-long "working vacation" next week to hold two news conferences and address the Los Angeles Rotary Club, his office announced Friday.

The governor will hold a news conference Wednesday at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles to announce a new state public safety program. On Thursday, he will hold a Capitol news conference and the following day will address a Rotary Club luncheon at the Downtown Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles.

A spokesman for Reagan said the governor has been conducting his office business since the first of the month from his home in Pacific Palisades. He had no public appointments during the month.

During the week of Aug. 6-12, Reagan is scheduled to address a Sacramento Comstock Club dinner Aug. 6 and a state 4H Leadership Conference Aug. 8 at the AUniversity of California at Davis.

Destructive frogs make experts jumpy

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Carnivorous African clawed frogs, destructive foreign invaders that eat just about anything — including each other —have scientists here puzzled and worried.

The rapid spread of the aquatic pests and the disappearance of several other kinds of wildlife have made officials anxious to deal with the slimy creatures.

Already the Pacific tree frog has disappeared from along a section of the Sweetwater River where the clawed frogs first were found about a year ago. The Western toad, bullfrog and other small animals also are threatened.

The frogs first were found along a small section of the river. Now an eight-mile stretch is infested and scientists see nothing to stop their spread.

Seeking help from abroad, biologist Clark R. Mahrdt contacted the director of nature conservation at Cape Town, South Africa. His recommendation was to introduce alligators to feed on the frogs, an idea not welcomed by the populace.

The frogs, sold in pet stores until recently, now are banned from importation by state law. Besides San Diego County, the frogs have been seen in nearby Orange and Imperial Counties.

Wild colonies of the frogs also have been located in Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming, according to Mahrdt.

The biologist said the frogs, 10 inches long, first were brought to this country in the 1930s for use as a test for pregnancy. They are native to all of Africa south of the Sahara.

Mahrdt said unhappy owners probably dumped the frogs into the Southern California waterways. He said they apparently reproduce all year long, generating 50,000 eggs in a year.

Unhappily, the frogs have the ability to survive just about anything. During the long summers here, the frogs live in a kind of suspended animation, without food, for months in burrows beneath dried ponds.

Although not dangerous to humans or pets, Mahrdt said birds, crayfish, aquatic insects and the like are fair game for the exotic frogs.

The frogs, which get their name from three claws extending from each hind foot, have the ability to jump backwards, turn different colors and release a slimy mucous that makes them "like trying to grab a bar of soap," Mahrdt said.

Lone survivor tells of airliner crash

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — The lone survivor in the crash of a Pan American jetliner said today he heard a "big bang" moments before the plane plunged into the ocean, killing 78 other passengers and crew, including 35 Americans.

The Boeing 707 fell into the South Pacific Sunday at a point one mile off the Papeete shore. The spot was marked today by the vestiges of an oil slick.

"We traveled along the runway for a long time before taking off and then suddenly we went up," said James Campbell, 28, of Wadawasta, Ontario, Canada.

"Right away the left wing dipped toward the sea. I heard a big bang and then we were falling," he said.

"I couldn't believe it. I automatically put my head on my lap and crouched in my seat. After that I remember little.

"I recall oil in the water," Campbell said. "There was a raft near me and I pulled myself up on it. It was hard and I doubt I could ever do it again."

He was picked up shortly afterward by police officer Joseph Zima, one of the first rescuers on the scene. Campbell suffered two broken ribs.

The Canadian's family was expected to arrive in Papeete tonight.

Eleven bodies were recovered from the clear waters. The plane and its black box flight recorder lie 500 yards beneath the surface.

Tahitian officials awaited experts from France—Tahiti is a French territory—and the United States to begin official investigations into the cause of the crash.

Aviation sources said many of the bodies recovered from the wreck were naked or almost naked.

A doctor said, "It was as if a violent blast had ripped off their clothes."

He said the bodies of two crew members were found wearing only their ties and shoes and one passenger was clothed in just a shirt.

Robbery try unsuccessful

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Federal agents arrested a 22-year-old man Friday in connection with an unsuccessful bank robbery attempt a few hours earlier.

The FBI said Edward Thomas Volpert was taken into custody after trying to elude authorities by running into St. John's Hospital where he had earlier been hiding in the hospital's chapel.

Authorities said a young man approached a teller at Santa Monica Bank and presented a note demanding money. The teller refused, and the suspect fled, eluding the bank officers who chased him.

An agent spotted Volpert walking in the vicinity of the hospital and chased him inside to make the arrest. It was later learned that Volpert had been hiding in the chapel.

A federal complaint charging Volpert with bank robbery will be issued at his arraignment Monday, the FBI said. Conviction carries a maximum sentence of 20 years and a $5,000 fine.

Three-year period in West End

Report shows 39% increase in drug users

By TONY AULT
P-B Staff Writer

ONTARIO — The number of active illegal drug users in the West End of San Bernardino County has risen by 39 per cent in the last three years, according to a report prepared for the West End Drug Abuse Control Coordinating Council, Inc. (WEDAC).

The report is entitled "The Facts About Drug Abuse in the West End, 1973." It was written by WEDAC staff epidemiologist Edward Stoliker and includes drug abuse statistics collected up to Dec. 3, 1972. The first report of its kind was issued by WEDAC in 1970.

A comparison of the 1970 and 1973 reports shows that in 1970 there were between 3,335 and 5,281 illegal drug users, while the number to Dec. 31, 1972 is as few as 4,645 or as many as 7,355 users, showing a 39 per cent increase.

Stoliker estimated that as many as 23,000 West End residents have used drugs illegally in the last six years.

"We have no way of really knowing how many users there are because you just cannot walk around and take a census on this kind of thing," said Stoliker.

Stoliker, who bases his study on West End police reports showing the number of individual arrests on various drug and narcotics charges, said "these user numbers are projected on the basis of a study done in Los Angeles which indicates that in California the drug arrests account for about 12 to 19 per cent of the total number of users on the streets. This is accepted by drug epidemiologists as a rather standard way of attaining the data."

The "hard" statistics collected from West End police departments show 883 drug arrests in 1972—a 51 per cent increase since 1970. Countywide drug deaths increased by 88 per cent during the same period, according to death reports filed by the San Bernardino County Coroner's Office.

The county health department data covering the same years, however, showed a 31 per cent decrease in drug-related deaths.

Stoliker explains the difference between the two reports with a reluctance on the part of physicians to publicly acknowledge drug abuse on death certificates in many cases. "It is hard enough on the family that someone has died, and to compound that with revealing that the person was a user and died from drug abuse often seems unnecessary, I guess."

The reports show the misuse of alcohol is rising among those under 25 and and the use of marijuana is finding broader acceptance and usage for those over 25. "Regardless of what other drugs of choice are available in the community, alcohol and grass are pretty much status quo drugs in terms of usage," said Stoliker.

Fewer white, middle-class youths are using barbiturates, the report states, although barbiturate use in the West End remains relatively high. The use of sedative hypnotics "is growing at an alarming rate," the report continues. "Reasons for this could be that more people are using uppers in the morning and downers at night, and some new sedative hypnotic drugs are becoming popular."

High school youths are beginning to use hallucinogens again after the "acid scare" of two or three years ago, the report observes. Pure mescaline, for instance, seems to be more readily available in San Bernardino County than the rest of the state.

A significant development in stimulant use has been the giant "bull market" in cocaine, states the report. "Due to the influence of peer group pressure and the media (Superfly, etc.) cocaine has become the premier non-opiate drug of choice in the black community," Stoliker states.

The use of narcotics, including both heroin and illicit methadone, has continued to rise. The report estimates that there are between 5,000 and 8,000 heroin addicts in the county with as many as half of these in the West End.

Research for the report was done by Stoliker under a grant from the National Free Clinic Council. The grant has funded a small drug education team at WEDAC since January. The team does research on the drug problem and runs training for para-professional staffers of drug treatment agencies.

Copies of the report are available through WEDAC, 225 N. Laurel St., Ontario.

Claremont fire losses rise slightly in year

CLAREMONT — Great expectations for an enviable fire loss record for 1972-73 were spoiled for the Claremont Fire Department June 29 when a Marywood condominium fire resulted in the city's largest yearly fire loss since 1968-69, reported Fire Chief Robert A. Lee.

The estimated loss for the Marywood fire was $122,750, which, added to other losses, gave the city a total of $142,565 for the past 12 months.

The 1968-69 fire loss was $207,985, most of it college fires.

Lee said the tremendous value of mutual aid between area fire departments was demonstrated during the past three months.

Montclair experienced two large fires to which all cities, including Claremont, responded.

Claremont and Pomona responded to a La Verne grass fire.

Lee said that the "citizens of the Pomona Valley may point well with pride to the excellent cooperation between their fire protection agencies."

Lee recalled that in May he headed a task force of fire engines from Pomona, La Verne and Claremont which joined units from Monrovia, Covina, Azusa, El Monte and West Covina in a relay pumping exercise in preparation for the serious fire season anticipated this summer.

Lee said that the exercise designed to reveal weaknesses in communications and operating procedures demonstrated that the fire fighters had improved since the 1972 joint exercise, and that the drill went smoothly with only minor problems.

Under the mutual aid system, Claremont responded 241 times the past 12 months to Pomona alarms, up from 124 the previous year.

Claremont also responded to 33 alarms in other areas.

Pomona engines came into Claremont on 139 alarms, up from 132 the 1971-72 fiscal year.

Firemen conducted 675 inspections, 246 re-inspections, received 92 complaints, found 29 violations and tested 748 hydrants during the 1972-73 fiscal year.

Lee reported that Cpt. Walt Gatten was graduated from Chaffey College with an A.A. degree in fire science. Firemen Lester E. Wolfe completed a five-day course in heavy rescue practices.

Several others including Lee and Assistant Chief Ken Lavoie completed various college and university courses.

General Dynamics missile contract totals $1,150,233

POMONA — A $1,150,233 contract has been awarded to General Dynamics for production of a guidance and control system for the Sparrow air-to-air missile, according to Rep. Jerry Pettis, R-33rd Dist.

Pettis was informed of the contract by the Naval Air Systems Command in Washington, D.C.

"The purpose of the contract," Pettis said, is to use General Dynamics as a second source of supply. This is exciting news since it is a new type of business for the area and could mean significant increases in government contracts in the future.

"I understand," said Pettis, "That General Dynamics beat out some fairly high-powered competition. I think that's a tribute to the workers and management of the firm.

"We are very pleased to have been selected by the Navy as the second source for production," said a General Dynamics spokesman. "This could result in a major new production program spanning several years at the Pomona division.

"Under the $1.15 million contract, General Dynamics will prepare for the Naval Air Systems Command approval the detail production and reliability plans to produce the Sparrow missile at Pomona," he added.

SHADOW'S NO MALE CHAUVINIST

Shadow is big and fiercely male, but he has a mother hangup. The 120-pound, 3-year-old German shepherd, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Mike Osborn of 463 Chester Pl., Pomona, thoroughly enjoys mothering six kittens born three weeks ago to Juliette, a member of the same household. She, however, is not too happy with the arrangement. She ably demonstrates her disapproval by taking the kittens away from him, one by one.

New Chino High principal puts faith in involvement, availability

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

CHINO — Dr. Terry Terril, new principal of Chino High School, emphasizes involvement and interaction for the successful operation of a high school campus.

These two ingredients are essential points in Terril's approach to people. He says he "doesn't know how else to do it. But I'm always open to suggestions."

"Kids are people and will respond to fair treatment. They also respond particularly well to someone showing that they like them. A kid's achievement is tied to his self-concept. If a kid is spoon-fed and held in his place all the time, he will not have the opportunity to achieve an idea of self or for achievement in school," Terrill commented recently.

The 15-year veteran of the education field officially began his duties at Chino High on July 1. He has met with some students, but is primarily concerned now with getting to know the staff and adjusting to a new job.

Terril spent several years as a teacher, director of instruction and principal of junior high and senior high schools in Kansas and Missouri before taking the administrative position of director of the year-round school program in Phoenix Union High School system last year.

When he "got tired of shuffling papers," he applied for the Chino post vacated by Vic Paulson's request for re-assignment.

DR. TERRY TERRIL

"In reality, I missed working with kids, staff and parents. It was an advancement when I went to Phoenix, but I'm not ready to spend my time behind a desk yet," Terril explained.

His former work in Shawnee Mission, Kan., in a district of about 46,000 students is indicative of his love of dealing with young students. He foresees no problems in adjusting to a smaller district like Chino.

"Basically when you're working with kids, they're still kids. They come in different sizes, shapes and colors, but they're still kids. Chino could be more personable for the students and staff because it's smaller," he smiled.

Terril's philosophy calls for both involvement and availability.

"The kids should be involved in the school, in establishing many of the things that are going to happen. When I mention availability, whether it be the principal, assistant principal or a teacher, that person should be out on campus during the day, be willing to listen and respond to what kids are doing and saying."

The principal spoke of the growing voice of legislators in the field of education. He voiced no dismay about the current demand for accountability.

Education has become big business, and like big business must explain the use of funds. Gone, he added, is the philosophy of "pay your taxes and shut your mouth.

"If we're going to deal with a product, the legislators say, show us what you're doing with that raw material or product. Just because we deal with a human commodity doesn't mean we can't measure how well we're doing with it.

"The legislators represent the public and the public is justified in asking for accountability. They also have to realize that we in public education are not there yet in terms of complete accountability," he commented.

Terril looks realistically at the history of conflict on campus between the Angelo and Mexican-American students. He is aware of the crises that have rocked the campus in years past and is optimistic about achieving ways of avoiding future conflict.

"Kids have essentially the same interests. If you're fair, give them the opportunity to achieve not only academically but to have some say in their school, you'd eliminate part of these problems," he said.

"I don't think society can exist without problems as long as we segregate people. You don't understand someone if you don't know anything about them or you're afraid of them. Chino High School is a microism of the town. If we can take a step here so that they will have opportunity and fairness perhaps they (the students) can pass something along to many of the adults in the community," he concluded.

Youngster wins encyclopedia set through P-B feature

POMONA — One question by a Pomona girl is going to provide her family with volumes of answers.

Denise Guisado, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Guisado of 1586 Balboa St., will soon be receiving the Compton's Encyclopedia as a prize for her question to "Johnny Wonder," a Sunday comics feature in the Progress-Bulletin.

"Where do flowers get their smell," asked Denise, who will be in the third grade at Kingsley School this fall.

Her question, along with Johnny Wonder's explanation, will appear in the Aug. 12 issue of the Progress-Bulletin.

"It was her question," said Denise's mother, Elizabeth. "She made it up and I wrote it down for her and then she signed her name."

Mrs. Guisado explained that both Denise and another daughter, Donna, 10, sent questions to Johnny Wonder, but that they had almost forgotten about them when they received a letter this week about Denise's question being chosen for a prize.

"They sent the questions in two or three months ago," she said. "I think it's wonderful and Denise is really excited over winning."

Now 'Sallie Mae,' to help students

The Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSLP) was established under the Higher Education Act of 1965 to provide young Americans with the means of borrowing to finance part of their post-secondary education.

Through the GSLP, a student may borrow up to $2,500 each academic year up to a maximum total of $10,000 extending through graduate school. He may enroll in a variety of post-secondary educational institutions, including vocational and trade schools.

At the core of the program is the issuance of student loans by participating lenders, with the loans guaranteed by state or private nonprofit agencies or insured by the federal government.

The U. S. Office of Education estimates that since 1965 more than three million young men and women attending nearly 7,000 eligible institutions have benefited from these loans. About $4.5 billion in insured student loans is currently outstanding.

From the beginning, however, the GLSP has been hampered by the problem of "liquidity." There—has been no secondary market for student loans. More-over, loan repayments are often deferred for relatively long and uncertain periods of time. Repayment does not commence until 9 to 12 months after a student completes his education and can be suspended by service in the military, the Peace Corps or Vista.

The result has been a decrease in the flow of funds into student loans in recent months.

To remedy this situation and to enlarge the economic opportunities for lower-and middle-income youths to attend the schools of their choice, a government-sponsored private corporation has been created—the Student Loan Marketing Association, or "Sallie Mae."

The new corporation is designed to establish a secondary market in student loans and expects to tackle the liquidity problem in two major ways: By the outright purchase of student loans and by making advances to eligible lenders using their portfolios of student loans as collateral.

Sallie Mae plans to obtain funds for its initial operations through the sale of 700,000 shares of common stock in mid-August. A nationwide underwriting group will be co-managed by Lehman Brothers, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, and Morgan Stanley & Co.

The law under which Congress chartered Sallie Mae requires that advances acquired by lenders be channeled into additional student loans, thus enabling more students to obtain the educational financing they may need.

Good luck to a good man

Californians who have known Herb Klein personally or through his work for some 20 years as Richard Nixon's press advisor hold him in high esteem. They think of him as a warm, good person, wholly professional in his work, and deeply conscientious. That is quite a combination.

Now that he has left the political arena to take on again executive responsibilities in the media field, it isn't only his fellow Californians who wish him the best of luck. On the occasion of his departure from Washington, Godfrey Sperling Jr., national political correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor, paid him this accolade:

"Herb Klein is a kindly man . . .As he leaves us, crinkly eyes and all, there isn't a reporter in this city who doesn't wish him well."

Commendations such as that don't come easily. They are well earned, just as Herb Klein earned his.

Revolutionary

In a column concerning the rather sorry status of plans for this nation's bicentennial celebration in 1976, Washington Star conservative columnist J. J. Kilpatrick asks some rather interesting questions.

"If you want something else to brood about these days, you might brood a while on this: if you had been born, say, in 1724, and had been 52 at the time of the Declaration of Independence, would you have joined the American Revolution?"

For himself, Kilpatrick candidly acknowledges that he "probably would have sat out the war with the Tories." He suspects he would have been "so imbued with loyalty, law and order, that I would have suffered the abuses of the Crown rather than take arms against them."

On the other hand, "supposing that you had been born like Alexander Hamilton in 1757, or like John Marshall in 1775, and you had come to the Revolution at 19 or at 21? It probably would have been a different thing. The boldness and the audacity of the Revolution would have warmed the blood, and the visions of Tom Jefferson would have fired the mind. The 'long train of abuses' would have seemed intolerable then."

The generation gap, it seems, we always have with us. And it is not a bad exercise in self study to think on such things.

Agnew's friends edgy about aide

WASHINGTON — Republican supporters of Spiro Agnew, already plotting a run for the presidency in 1976, are concerned that he is delegating too much power to Maj. Gen. John M. Dunn, now the Vice President's deputy chief of staff.

As Agnew's military aide, Dunn has risen rapidly in the Army ranks from colonel three years ago to two-star general last March. But it is Dunn's rise in Agnew's office that has made the Vice President's friends noticeably edgy.

They fear Dunn's career too closely resembles the spectacular success of Dunn's Army friend, Alexander Haig, now President Nixon's chief of staff. The supporters view Dunn as a potential liability whose position gives the appearance that Agnew's staff is the mirror image of Nixon's.

Haig, currently a four-star general, has agreed to retire from the Army next month after a public outcry that the White House was becoming militarized. Dunn, however, failed to follow Haig's example, although his duties go well beyond the role of military adviser.

Now the second ranking man in Agnew's office, Dunn is the Vice President's chief adviser on foreign affairs. He took over this role two years ago from international affairs expert Kent Crane, who left in a huff after a "personality clash" with Dunn.

More recently, Dunn has taken charge of Agnew's office during the Vice President's frequent travels on the road. Dunn has also become the close confidant of Agnew's most trusted adviser, Art Sohmer, the only man with more seniority in the vice presidential office.

Footnote: In his friendly Boston-Irish brogue, General Dunn said he would give "serious consideration" to leaving the Army if his active military status became a serious liability to Agnew. "The Army has been good to me, but I also like working for the Vice President," he said.

NIXON TACTICS: The details continue to leak out how President Nixon's campaign managers manipulated the media during the 1972 re-election campaign. A confidential California report, for example, tells of staged "news" events, bogus "letters to the editor" and high-pressure tactics designed to stifle the President's critics. The report, "was organized to provide a communication's director for the Committee to Re-Elect the President. Entitled "Communications Report for the State of California," it covers the months of February through November, 1972.

"The Communications Division of the California campaign," states the report, "was organized to provide a propaganda effort unprecedented in previous statewide campaigns." Among other accomplishments, it mobilized a letter writing crew of 1,500 and recruited a "volunteer corps that kept track of news shows and equal time recruitment."

This Nixon Newswatch, as it was called, "was able to apply pressure to stations to give better treatment to the President's campaign than many were inclined to do by themselves."

The Nixon Newswatch also "provided lists of broadcast commentators critical of the President. In some instances, station managers, stockholders and program sponsors sent written letters protesting the use of their funds for certain programs."

Pressure was brought on California TV stations, for example, to cancel my own syndicated TV commentaries. Radio tapes, featuring Vice President

The pots and the kettles

Keep the faith! Beyond the "Watergate" the water runs purer, sweeter than before. When the high and mighty get slapped across the mouth, we all feel it. And now and then we all need it.

Some Americans, recently indignant over lawbreaking by some Republicans, just a year ago were defending lawbreaking by the draft board-raiding Berrigan brothers.

When the Harrisburg Seven were accused of conspiring to kidnap Dr. Henry Kissinger and blow up heating ducts in the Pentagon, they had professors, educators and some clergymen cheering them on.

Now the pots are calling the kettles bad names! The Soledad Brothers and Bobby Seale, Huey Newton, Angela Davis and the New York Panther 13—all were tried but none was convicted, mostly because juries construed the charges against them to have been "politically motivated."

Thus — conversely — lying, cheating, stealing and murder were adjudged politically justifiable. A shake-up was way overdue.

Northwestern University law professor Fred Inbau, says, "The trend of the past 10 to 12 years has been for the law to favor the lawless." In May, 1970, the mayor of New York City was publicly counseling young men to duck the draft laws.

The district attorney of New Orleans, misusing his authority to prosecute, persecuted Clay Shaw. Following the carnage at Attica State Correctional Facility, carpetbagging lawyers defended the radical revolutionaries who started it and dominated the media with their condemnation of the police who put an end to it.

When the troublemakers who had triggered the trouble at Kent State were brought to trial, a former U.S. attorney general pleaded their cause.

Yet the Ramsey Clarks and the Dr. Spocks pretend to be chagrined by the buggy burglary of Watergate. As is the World Council of Churches—which conpired to raise money to support draft dodgers.

And though union leaders and-or elected political leaders in a dozen states are presently accused of misusing other people's money, it's likely we see only the tip of that iceberg.

So there are few indeed, public and private, who have not backslid from meticulous adherence to the letter of the law. Americans have played games across the line between what's avoidance and what's evasion, between what's unethical and what's illegal, and sought self-righteously to justify their incursions in the name of "necessity," "security" or "moral purpose."

Can we really wonder that widespread misbehavior by influential people eventually infused the upper echelons of government? If Watergate provides the emetic necessary to trigger a general regurgitation, we'll all feel better in the morning.

Gossip for today

Here in America our politicians are doing their utmost to curtail pornography and yet let their constituents have it too. To accomplish this neat trick they have, in their infinite wisdom, passed the buck to the local community. The easy way out, they reason, is local option. So why not have local option pornography? That way all the voters should be happy. The town remains pure and undefiled if the majority so wishes but when the purity becomes unbearable all a valued constituent has to do is cross the city limits, lets down his hair, cast aside his inhibitions and still remain law abiding.

But while the politicians are doing so much for the people, what are the people doing for the politicians to keep them law abiding yet pornographically happy? Not much as yet in America, I must confess. However the English people are way ahead of us in that regard. There, a group of Young Conservatives is now proposing security-checked brothels for politicians. The closest we have come to that sort of thing in this country is what one group of politicians not too long ago suggested doing for another group of politicians on a yacht anchored off Miami.

However, in dealing with pornography, it must be admitted that in today's sophisticated, worldly society our politicians are facing a far different problem than they did back in the days when you and I were young. Then about all they had to do to free the country of purient interests was to ban "Captain Billy's Whiz Bang" and carefully watch a certain curtained door in fun zone sideshow tents. It was through that door that gay young blades, after paying the attendant an extra two bits, would hastily sneak to watch Little Egypt do the Dance of the Seven Veils.

OUR MAN IN WASHINGTON

Nixon won't give up tapes without fight

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON— The Senate Watergate hearings have progressed from dull to tedium. Further successes will be risking the national sanity.

At this point in time—the most infectious phrase in history—the hearings have only been able to place President Nixon on the brink of infamy.

The President has been vilified by innuendo; he has been the target of frightened men, eager to testify in an effort to save their own skins; and he has been scathed by politicians who find it easier to attack a personality than to solve problems far more important to the public.

Add to this the inherent anti-Nixonism of the Eastern press, and you have a situation ready made for prejudging.

Some congressmen and columnists have the President set up to be drawn and quartered, with nothing more than hearsay available to convict.

But no one has proved, beyond a shadow of a doubt, that Richard Nixon took part in the planning or coverup of Watergate.

The President is certainly to blame for the gang of clowns he hired who got him into this mess. Yet the hearings, so far a series of contradictive testimonies, have revealed nothing substantial.

Is system still working?

The proceedings give rise to a line of thought that questions the efficacy of such showcase activities. The public is told the hearings "prove the system is still working." But is it?

We are witnessing the most ballyhooed Senate activity this country has ever seen. For what? Certainly not to inform the public. The public already has a firm awareness of Watergate and its implications. That same public also has a firmer awareness of high food prices and inflation in general.

But chutzpah has priority over the monotony of economics and Watergate has exhibited chutzpah. So the Senate sells Watergate.

Are the hearings being held to prove a crime has been committed? Only in the loosest sense.

Special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox has the tools to investigate thoroughly and conclusively the culpability of Watergate conspirators. He also has jury power to convict the guilty. All the Senate can do is rehash testimony and seriously jeopardize subsequent trial proceedings.

Sen. Sam Irvin, homespun oracle in charge of the Watergate hearings, said the other day that he sees "no redeeming features in Watergate." From his adversary position, the senator succinctly stated the case for both sides.

Redemption is a piety Watergate has not shown, nor will it. Those who committed it and those who limelight it are guilty of the same sort of overzealousness for the sake of idealogue, albiet from opposite sides.

May lose political backing

It is being said Watergate will make Nixon a weak President. How so? He may lose some political backing, but the President is still the President and the Constitution has not been rewritten.

Nixon will not quit, the man's history is proof of that. Without indisputable evidence of his complicity, Congress will not impeach him.

(For those who speculate the tape recordings Nixon refuses to give will prove his guilt, remember that Nixon seldom does anything by halves. He has committed himself to protecting the "separation of powers" and, no matter what the tapes may say, he won't give them up without a fight.)

What we see is a President of proven rigidness being assaulted by unproven charges. He won't give and without that, his opponents have nothing to take.

CHP logs 15 road deaths in 6 months

Agency drafts new ideas aimed at reducing mishaps

CLAREMONT — Booze and fast driving are often cited as the main causes for traffic accidents.

But many of the deaths resulting from highway mishaps could have been prevented by the accident victims.

"Nearly all of the 15 persons killed in our area so far this year might still be alive had they been wearing seatbelts," said Capt. W. C. Jones, commander of the California Highway Patrol office here.

Most victims were either ejected or "bounced around" inside their vehicles by the impact.

"People kill themselves by not wearing seatbelts," said Jones. "It's a complete waste of life."

The commander reported 15 persons killed and 462 others injured in a total of 934 traffic accidents investigated the first six months of this year.

This compares to 10 killed and 459 injured in 864 accidents investigated the same period last year.

During the comparison periods, the number of drunk driving arrests increased from 618 to 821, while traffic citations decreased from 20,907 to 20,559.

Several new programs have been employed in a major effort to reduce traffic accidents.

One is a "sector concept" where field officers use their own judgment in patrol assignments.

"This allows each officer to study his beat and go to areas where traffic accidents during the hours they are normally high," said Jones. "Officers thus work where the problems are."

Another program is having patrol units "in view" so they are readily available to motorists needing assitance and also to drivers who need such a reminder to observe good driving habits.

"No motorist is going to pass a patrol car on the freeway while doing 75 or 80 miles an hour," said Jones, "and it's only natural that we drive better when we see a marked unit."

Officers have reported good results from the "in view" program. "Our severity rate is down because the speed of vehicles is down," he added.

Emphasis is also given to keeping drunk drivers off the roadways. More patrol units have been assigned to night hours when drunk driving incidents usually occur.

One patrol area is along Mission Boulevard between Pomona and Ontario. Numerous taverns are located here.

Officers began a new bicycle enforcement program Jan. 1. Some results have been noted.

"We had 10 bike accidents the first six months of last year, and only seven the same period this year," said Jones.

As of June 30, officers had sent 531 contact letters to parents of children observed violating traffic laws.

"The program allows us to notify parentes on an informal basis of the violations," said Jones. "If we can indoctrinate these children while they are small, they will become better drivers as adults."

Many children caught breaking traffic rules have followed the model of adults on bikes. Some adults also failed to follow all the safety rules, he said.

Motorists can have a big effect on the reduction of traffic accidents, said Jones. "We are asking for the support of the public in maintaining good driving habits, using common courtesy, and helping one another."

The commander cited citizen band radio operators as one group which assists motorits with disabled vehicles. "They will also call to report drunk drivers, traffic accidents and any traffic hazards."

Officers also talk to service groups about good driving habits. "These members can have influence on others."

Jones identified the Chino area, sections of Diamond Bar, and the Pomona Freeway as having numerous traffic accidents.

"The Pomona Freeway, now open from Los Angeles through Etiwanda, has become a major traffic artery. It is carrying more vehicles, and thus has a higher exposure rate," he explained.

Many of the Chino area collisons have resulted from right-of-way violations and turning movements, he noted.

Heavy traffic resulting from an auction has caused many accidents involving damage to vehicles. The number of injured persons has been kept down because of the low speeds involved, Jones added.

The Claremont office has 60 officers assigned to patrol 230 square miles of area. Its patrol boundaries extend from Mt. Baldy to the Riperside County Line and the Ontario Motor Speedway to Kellogg Hill.

New people-program outlays sought

10% of Pomona revenue sharing fund proposed

POMONA — A community life commission recommendation that 10 per cent of the $1.4 million in federal revenue sharing funds the city will receive for 1973-74 be set aside for people-related programs will be considered by the City Council Monday night.

The council's weekly 4 p.m. public meeting has been cancelled. The council, however, will meet in executive session Monday afternoon to review applications for the position of city administrator.

Of Pomona's first entitlement of $1.9 million in revenue sharing funds, $140,000 was placed in a contingency fund for people related programs.

Because of grants approved by the council to various community groups, all that remains in the fund is $20,000.

The commission would like to see a similar fund set up using general revenue sharing funds received for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Many applications

Asst. City Administrator Joseph F. Korpsak is recommendating against allocating additional revenue sharing funds for community grants.

All general revenue sharing funds for 1973-74 have been committed with the exception of about $500,000 which was placed in a reserve fund.

But Korpsak said a major portion of the reserves would be needed to balance the budget, to pay for a dental plan for employes approved by the council, and possibly for the acquisition of the adobe La Casa Primera de Rancho San Jose.

"Quite frankly, the intent of the previous general revenue sharing contingency fund for people-related programs in the amount of $140,000 was to be a one-time and one year's basis only," Korpsak said in a written communication to the council.

"Future year's funding utilizing general revenue sharing funds for community programs has not been planned in this or future years' budgets," Korpsak said.

Other matters

—Second reading of an ordinance changing the position of city manager to executive director of redevelopment.

—Second reading of an ordinance creating a youth commission.

—Resolution upholding an appeal filed against a planning commission decision disallowing a red-white roof in approving a conditional use permit for a new Pup N' Taco at 690 IndianHill Blvd.

—Resolution to amend a joint powers agreement with the cities of Claremont and La Verne to provide for the appointment of a Technical Advisory Committee on Drug Abuse.

Other matters scheduled on the agenda include:

—Resolution, held over from July 23, establishing a standard monthly auto allowance for the mayor and councilmen.

—Resolution authorizing an agreement with Claremont for the landscaping and installation of street lights on Arrow Highway between Orange Grove Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

—Approval by parks and recreation commission of an application from Chuck's Blue Room for a family billiard parlor license at 2446 N. Towne Ave.

—Recommendation for the acquisition of property at 325 N. Hamilton Blvd. needed for the expansion of Cherrieville Park.

—Discussion on the estimated 500 abandoned houses in the city.

The applications to be reviewed by the council are from 25 applicants meeting minimum requirements for the city administrator's post and are the second group to be received.

The first group included eight applicants who are still being considered for the job, which pays $40,000 to $45,000 a year. Closing date for applications is Monday. The third group of applications received will be reviewed by the council at a third executive session at a later date.

Southland economic pulse viewed strong

LOS ANGELES — Despite rising living costs, uncertainty surrounding present economic policies and other related pressures, California's economy has expanded at a healthy pace in recent months, Security Pacific Bank reported Friday.

The bank's seasonally adjusted business index for California averaged 158.1 (1967 equals 100) during 1973's first six months, up a sharp 10.6 per cent over 1972's first half.

Security Pacific Bank's just released assessment of California's economic conditions thus far this year attributes this improvement to continued gains in employment, reduced joblessness and further increases in consumer income and spending.

Security Pacific Bank's current regional montly summaries for Southern California, Northern Coastal California and the Central Valley — compiled by the bank's economic research division — analyze strategic indicators in each locale and relate these to general economic patterns regionally and for all of California.

"Analysis of data thus far this year indicates a general uptrend in most state economic sectors, particularly in terms of improved employment — one of the most vital and influential components of our economy," says Vice President John H. Owens.

Commenting on consumer trends within California, Security Pacific Bank's economic spokesman reported a substantial gain in personal income among residents during this year's first half, coupled with a noticeable increase in spending. Owens noted, however, that a portion of California's increased volume of taxable retail sales and department store sales stems from rising prices. "Each major region in California has recorded a moderate to sharp jump in consumer spending since the beginning of this year, which also reflects a 'buy now before the price goes up' attitude," Owens stated.

L. V. cyclist hurt in mishap

POMONA — A young La Verne man was reported in good condition Saturday at Pomona Valley Community Hospital with injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident Friday night.

Russell Henry Hinks, 18, of 4095 Fruit St., La Verne, suffered lacerations and moderate head injuries when his motorcycle collided with a car on E Street north of Puddingstone Street.

The car was driven by Mary Catherine Bangert, of 153 12th St., Upland.

These stations were also given tapes, incidentally, of L. Patrick Gray, then acting FBI director, solemnly declaring that President Nixon would never politicize the FBI. The fact that Gray provided statements for use in the campaign, of course, was itself a political abuse of the bureau.

The letters to the editor campaign, according to the confidential report, was even more successful. "Thousands of letters on selected topics," says the report," (were) written to re-emphasize key issues . . ."

Math, fun blended in new course

CLAREMONT — Learning mathematics while having fun is the goal of a new course being offered next month at the Educational Development Center, Ninth Street and Amherst Avenue.

EDC, formerly a central service of the Claremont Colleges, is a nonprofit organization offering educational programs to the youngsters in the community.

"Discovery in Math" will be taught by Terry Klein, who was trained at the International Montessori Training Center in Bergamo, Italy. He has had several years' experience as director of a Montessori classroom.

The course will offer a unique opportunity for youngsters 6 through 12 to learn arithmetic concepts through play and discovery. From Aug. 1 to 31 Klein will coordinate a class limited to 15 students who will meet daily from 9 a.m. to noon. The class will be both a remedial and an enrichment group, depending on the needs of individual children.

A variety of specially crafted games and materials will be used to engage children's visual and tactile senses which are often overlooked in traditional schools. Through feeling, seeing, and playing with concrete objects, concepts are discovered in a meaningful way. As the child's own imagination is involved, he practices and enjoys applying the meaning of concepts to a broad range of problems.

Fee for the course is $125. Some scholarships are available. More details can be obtained at 626-8511, ext. 3604.

27 delegates coming

Chino sister-city visitors need housing

CHINO — Homes are needed to house a delegation of 27 persons from Chino's sister city of San Juan del Rio in Quaretero, Mexico, Aug. 1-8.

The residents of San Juan del Rio will join other delegations from throughout Mexico and the United States in a Sister City Convention Aug. 1-5. The Mexican nationalists will remain in this West End community for three days following the convention.

Little personal entertaining is necessary by those volunteering their homes. The sister city delegation will spend most days shopping and touring Southland tourist attractions.

Those wishing additional information may call Mrs. Henry Albiol, 627-3950; Mrs. Zeke Cortez, 628-1803; or Chino City Hall, 628-6011, city clerk's office.

Ontario truck driver injured

ONTARIO — A truck driver was injured when his cement mixer overturned on the center divider of the San Bernardino Freeway, but was reported in good condition at San Antonio Community Hospital Saturday.

Eduardo Ayala, 39, of 1609 N. Amador St., Ontario, suffered lacerations to the head and possible back injuries in the accident.

According to Highway Patrol officers, the accident occurred when a tire blew out on the cement mixer, causing the truck to veer across the westbound lanes of the freeway and overturn on the center divider. The accident occurred Friday afternoon.

Dr. King's SCLC may die this year

ATLANTA (UPI) — When assassinated Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., was buried in April, 1968, the Southern Christian Leadership Conferfounded, developed an illness that may prove fatal this year.

The immediate reason for the decline and possible fall of once powerful organization that spearheaded the great civil rights battles of the turbulent '60s is lack of money.

But there also is dissension and in-fighting among the people who once were closest to King. And there is a strong feeling that the SCLC must change its direction from demonstrations, picketing and boycotts in order to survive.

The financial troubles of the SCLC, which is headquartered here, have been a matter of record for the past three years. But they surfaced again, and in dramatic fashion, three weeks ago when the man King picked to succeed him, Dr. Ralph David Abernathy, announced at an emotional news conference he was resigning as president. He made it clear that he felt

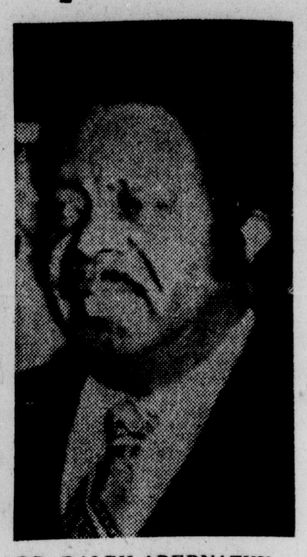
CORETTA KING



DR. RALPH ABERNATHY

SCLC was on its deathbed and blamed affluent blacks in general for not supporting the organization.

Abernathy singled out King's widow, Coretta, for helping to kill off the SCLC. He said she could singlehandedly save the organization her husband founded by sharing money she had raised for the Martin Luther King Jr., Center for Social Change.

No heir-apparent

There is no heir-apparent to Abernathy. When the SCLC holds its national convention in Indianapolis next month there are predictions fighting will break out between three or four factions for the top job.

The SCLC was founded in 1958. It rose to undisputed leadership of the civil rights movement with King at the helm. He led the organization in sit-ins, mass protest marches, picketing and boycotts, much of which resulted in massive civil rights legislation in Congress. The SCLC and King were given much of the credit for passage of public accommodation and housing laws and voting rights.

In 1963, one of the peak years of civil rights activities, money flowed freely into the SCLC treasury. In that fiscal year, it reported income in private and public donations amounting to $735,534.

In succeeding years, the organization's budget moved upward until in 1970 it exceeded $1 million. But by then, the financial pinch was on. The 100 field offices across the country were reduced and the staff cut from a high of 160 to 60.

The Rev. Hosea Williams, president of the SCLC Atlanta chapter and a staunch supporter of Abernathy, said income this calendar year will be about $500,000. He said SCLC has an $80,000 debt, $30,000 of which could be paid off in securities. Staff salaries nationwide run about $300,000. But the SCLC at last report was three weeks behind in paying salaries to some of its field workers.

"Deserters"

What's happened to the SCLC since Abernathy took over, aside from money problems? Williams, who still believes the SCLC should march and picket to enforce the economic demands of blacks, said those who "jumped the team" helped the downfall of SCLC. He named some of these as Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., Rep. Walter Fauntroy, D-D.C., and Jesse Jackson, who now heads a separate civil rights organization PUSH in Chicago.

"The majority of that team was not committed to goals but to the man King," Williams said. "When he was killed they had nothing to hold on to and they deserted the ship.

stamps of the U.S. and affiliated territories, the United Nations and the British Commonwealth postal administrations, past and present. This new 1974 edition has 621 pages, against 602 in 1973, with 13,913 new prices.

Gamblers won a lot--but casino lost

RENO (UPI) — Gamblers often say that you win some and you lose some.

Recently, two California men won a lot and Harold's Club in Reno lost a lot.

Marvin C. Furman of Santa Ana, Calif., won $15,520 on a quarter slot machine. He said it was the first jackpot he ever hit and that he had only put in five dollars before it paid off.

He said he plans to buy a boat with the winnings.

Less than 30 minutes later, Luciano Meconi of San Bruno, Calif., put one dollar in a slot machine and won $7,946.

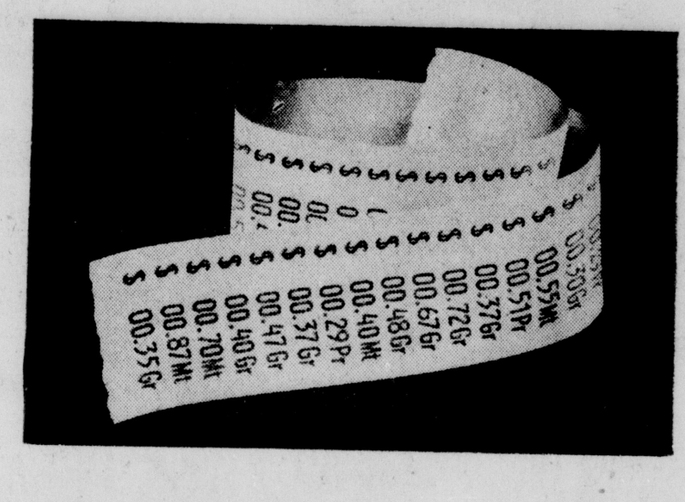
Desert center will study coastal fog

RENO (UPI) — The U.S. Office of Naval Research has granted $67,850 to the Desert Research Institute here to study West Coast fog.

Dr. John Ward said the idea is to improve forecasting of marine fog which forms in the summer when the ocean surface is colder than the overlying air.

Project director Dr. Thomas Hoffer said the purpose of the program is to establish a computer model to predict when and where fog is likely to form and how high and dense it will be.

How we can help. A special message to Alpha Beta customers.



Now that Phase Four has lifted the food price freeze on all items except beef, Alpha Beta, like all markets, is faced with paying more for what we buy.

If you notice a higher price on an item, it will reflect exactly our own increased cost for that item, not a cent more.

Small comfort though it is, please remember that we're not making any money from these price increases. Yes, this is a matter of law. To us, it is also a matter of conscience.

First the good, if not great, news:

Alpha Beta still enables its customers to be in a better position dollar-wise than most other markets. Our total discount pricing policy remains unchanged. So that even with increases in the offing, you'll still be able to enjoy a lower total food bill at Alpha Beta.

Next...

Alpha Beta will avoid raising our prices any-and-everywhere we can.

Next...

If a price hike on an item is absolutely unavoidable, we will try to keep it even lower than what our increase amounted to.

Next...

Phase Four also requires all markets to pass any price reductions that occur on to you. Alpha Beta will be happier than anyone to comply.

The best news yet:

Alpha Beta's Double Discounts. Unquestionably, the most welcome relief any market can offer you. Double Discounts are temporary manufacturer allowances we receive that enable us to drop our everyday discount price on an item even more. And the fact remains, that Alpha Beta has more of these genuinely money-saving prices than any other market—hundreds more! This week alone, you'll find over 700 Double Discounts at Alpha Beta. So please take advantage of them. They add up to the kind of savings it's almost impossible to find elsewhere.

And so, here you have it. A market who, much like you, is trying to make the best of an unhappy situation. And we're doing it. With our continuing discount program. Our Double Discounts. And our sincere desire to insure that wherever you're shopping now...

Summer in Pomona Valley

A relaxed atmosphere pervades all social events planned in Pomona Valley this summer.

Among the many social and philanthropic events charted this Saturday are the San Dimas Community Hospital Auxiliary's Early California Steak Fry, the Pomona Valley Carriage Club Committee of the Hollywood Bowl annual picnic, and the Junior Ebell summer dance.

Scholarships will benefit from the second summer event to be held by San Dimas Community Hospital's party at the Walter Buerger home at 20769 Mesarica Road in Covina. Setting for the steak fry will be the outdoor cook house on the spacious grounds surrounding the home. A band will play for dancing during the evening.

Approximately 350 members of the medical staff and the auxiliary and their spouses and friends are expected to attend the 7 p.m. event.

The auxiliary held its first such event last summer and raised over $2,000. The new hospital opened its doors in November.

Chairman for the affair is Mrs. Robert Garciduenas. She will be assisted by Miss Jan Kishimoto. Mrs. Robert Lowry is president of the organization.

Other committee chairmen assisting with arrangements are Mrs. William Hamic, Mrs. Franz Obrikat, Mrs. Carson Hawk, Mrs. Grant Hunter, Mrs. Eugene Black, Mrs. William Ashdown, Mrs. Larry Taylor, Mrs. James McCloud, Mrs. Max Shull and Mrs. Dennis Green.

POMONA JUNIOR EBELL has scheduled a summer dance Saturday from 8 p.m. to midnight at the Ebell Clubhouse, 585 E. Holt Ave.

"Tahitian Twilight" is the theme for the dance which is open to the public. Music will be provided by a new combo, "One Hand Sam." Refreshments will be available.

Serving as general chairman is Laura Hicks. Assisting her are Eva Castoneda, decorations chairman; Carol Dalquist, publicity chairman; Mary Douglas, refreshments chairman; and Sheri Jernigan, band chairman and coordinator.

Tickets will be available at the door and dress will be casual.

SATURDAY IS THE date chosen by the Pomona Valley Carriage Club Committee of the Hollywood Bowl for its annual picnic before the concert for members and guests.

The group will attend a cocktail party at the West Covina home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Slattery from 5 until 6 p.m. They will then take the bus to the bowl and enjoy a picnic supper with wine, dessert and coffee under the stars.

This year the feature will be "On Stage, U.S.A.," with John Green conducting. Featured will be Karen Armstrong, soprano, and Richard Fredricks, baritone.

Purpose of the club, along with all other Carriage Clubs in the Los Angeles area, is to publicize Bowl programs and to encourage people to attend the various concerts presented under the stars.

Committee members of the local club arranging the event are Mrs. Terrence Brutocao, Mrs. Richard Carr Jr., Mrs. Peter Norell, Mrs. Dennis Slattery and Mrs. Frederick Weis.

EARLY CALIFORNIA

EVENING UNDER STARS

Mrs. Frederick Weis, left, and Mrs. Terrence Brutocao discuss plans for Pomona Valley Carriage Club evening at the Hollywood Bowl with Ernest Fleischmann, artistic director.

SOMETHING NEW

Let's Ask The Cook

Many thanks to all of you who sent green tomato seeds—the kind where tomatoes are ripe when they are still green—as well as other unusual types. I have planted some of each as well as shared a surplus with others who asked about them. One reader took the opportunity to say how pleased she was with a pickle recipe from one of my booklets. That reminded me that all too soon I will be hearing about all sorts of terrible pickle problems. Keep in mind, some of these woes may stem from weather and growing conditions, the kind of vinegar used (never use anything lower than 5 to 6 per cent acidity), the temperature of storage places, methods used as well as time elapsed between gathering and pickling.

Soft or slippery pickles come from using too weak a brine, weak vinegar, not removing scum from brine surface, storing in too warm a place, use of hard water or using cucumbers with blossoms attached. White sediment at the bottom of the jar comes from not using pure pickling or canning salt, bacteria that caused fermentation, temperature process not controlled.

Never use iodized salt Generally speaking, the sediment is not harmful. Hollow pickles are due to faulty growth, improper curing cucumbers standing too long (24 hours) before being processed, high temperature during fermentation process.

A common complaint is shriveled pickles. Again, too much time elapsed between gathering and pickling, too strong a brine at the beginning of curing, too heavy or sweet a pickling solution.

When pickles turn dark it can be from mineral in the water (especially iron), iron cooking utensils, ground spices, cooking too long with spices, or low nitrogen content of cucumbers. Dull or faded pickles come from poor quality cucumbers, may be sunburned or overmature and grown under unfavorable conditions.

Causes of outright spoilage are non-pasteurization, using ingredients that have deteriorated or not using standard jars and new lids.

A while back a reader said she couldn't understand why her pickles were fine one year, spoiled the next year. I advised her to use a boiling water bath for her particular recipe. She was afraid that would make them less crisp, but she did follow my directions.

Her canner was too small to hold two jars of the batch, it was a hot day so she took a chance on those. Sure enough, those two spoiled. She had proved a point to herself.

Nan Wiley gives her own steps to success plus recipes for banana butter, rose wine jelly, hot dog relish and other canned goods in her booklet "Can Your Own Gourmet Winners." To obtain your booklet send 25 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to Nan Wiley, 715 Locust St., Des Moines, Iowa 50304. Please allow three weeks for delivery.

Greek cookbook

Recipes, wines, menus included

With the increase in international travel and the surge in entertaining at home, more and more people are turning to exotic and relatively unknown foods for their guests.

A new cookbook, "The Alpha and Omega of Greek Cooking" by Saul Kreig offers interesting and tasty dishes for the hostess who seeks to be a little different yet wants to tempt the tastebuds of her guests.

Saul Krieg, a master chef and frequent traveler to Greece for the past 20 years, wanted to share his love for Greek cooking for many years. Until recently, however, this was impractical since many of the classic ingredients were not available in the United States.

Since the appropriate wines and liqueurs are important to traditional Greek menus, this cookbook really had to wait until these wines were available in this country. They are now obtainable in most areas.

The cookbook is a collection of ancient Greek receipes and menus which can be prepared in the modern American kitchen. In addition to outlining the history of Greek cooking, the book lists herbs and spices that give the traditional Greek touch, a complete table of wines and liqueurs and details about Greek olives, olive oil, cheeses and the use of lemons in Greek cooking.

The Greeks are Europe's oldest civilization and have contributed to the world in the fields of philosophy, theater, medicine, art and the humanities. They have also given the world a unique cuisine.

Mr. Krieg feels that American cooks are becoming more enthusiastic about learning international cooking and are seeking "safe bets" which are also exciting.

2 cups cooked lima beans
¼ cup olive oil juice of one lemon
1 clove garlic, mashed
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground pepper
1 tablespoon combined chopped parsley, dill and mint
6 whole scallions, chopped fine
2 ripe, medium tomatoes
2 hard-boiled eggs

In a large salad bowl, put olive oil, lemon juice, garlic, salt and pepper and beat well. Add cooked lima beans and stir thoroughly. Sprinkle on the tablespoon of spices. Cut tomatoes in small chunks and add with chopped scallions. Cut hard-boiled eggs in halves and add to the salad. Serves six.

The cookbook is being released in the United States by Macmillan Publishing Company.

What's Going on At Griswolds

Tuesday night we drove to Griswold's COUNTRY HOUSE in Redlands for the regular Tuesday night WESTERN BARBECUE. It was delightful . . . the staff in their western outfits obviously enjoyed being hosts and were even effecting western accents! We sat at tables on the patio beside the waterfall which flows from the hill by the Smorgasbord into a rock pool, and sipped our drinks and enjoyed the music. The cute waitress in her sharp looking Levis brought us a tray of steaks—New Yorks, sirloins or brochettes — and we picked beauties. Maybe it was the friendly serve-yourself atmosphere or the perfect fixin's for the steak—huge bowls of green salad, potato salad, piping hot barbecued beans and garlic bread . . . whatever, it was a great night out. You have time to visit the Redlands Bowl after dinner (similar to the Hollywood Bowl, but smaller and more intimate.)

Jenkins-Hale vows exchanged in church

MRS. JAMES JENKINS

The First Baptist Church was the setting for the Saturday afternoon marriage of Miss Carrie Elaine Hale and James Douglas Jenkins.

Dr. Edward B. Cole performed the double-ring service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ross of Walnut and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jenkins of Claremont.

The bride selected a gown of white nylon over taffeta. Insets of rows of chantilly lace accented the bodice and the long full sleeves. Her mantilla veil was caught to a headpiece of lace and seed pearls.

The bride's attendants were Miss Laurie Landorf, maid of honor, and Misses Diane Chestnut, Honor Classen, Sheri Larkin, Pam Tucker and Aline Welker, bridesmaids. Flower girls were Connie Gray, Jody Gray and Lori Tucker.

Butch Nielson was ring bearer. Serving as best man was Bill Brogie while ushering duties were performed by Jim Forrest, Sam Hancox, Craig Hanney, Ken Shuck and Grant Sontag.

The newlyweds greeted guests during a reception in the patio of the church.

After a honeymoon at Lake Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins will travel to Kansas via Nevada, Arizona, Utah and Colorado. They will make their home in Manhattan, Kan., while the groom majors in veterinary medicine at Kansas State University.

TEACHER LIGHTS UP—Geraldine Harvey used to have to wait until recess to light up her cigars. But now, after closing out 32 years of teaching with the Bureau of Indian Affairs, Gerry (as she likes to be called) can smoke her stogies any time she feels like it.

After 32 years of teaching Indian children, she plans---more teaching

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Geraldine Harvey used to have to wait until recess before she could light up her cigars.

But now, after closing out a 32-year teaching career with the Bureau of Indian Affairs this June, Gerry (as she likes to be called) can smoke her stogies any time.

"I'm sure I'll miss the teaching," she said. "It's been a fulfilling life."

The daughter of a Chippewa-Algonquin father and an Oneida-Iroquois mother, Mrs. Harvey says she sort of "fell in" to teaching as a career. It's stuck with her so long that even in her retirement, "I plan to continue to do some volunteer teaching."

Smokes cigars

Although her 8-year-old habit of cigar smoking (cigarettes gave her a nagging cough, but cigars don't) may have raised some eyebrows along her career, her popularity in the classroom and her successful teaching methods overshadewd any objection there may have been to the habit.

Mrs. Harvey, who never smoked around her students, says she's "cutting down" anyway.

Mrs. Harvey's teaching career, which spanned almost a third of a century, included stops in Oklahoma, South Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Montana and New Mexico. Her most recent assignment was at Tesuque Pueblo school just north of Santa Fe, where she ran a one-room schoolhouse.

She said that "as a youngster" she had planned to be a counselor or advisor at an Indian school

"I majored in sociology, but got into some teaching for my requirements as a counselor and advisor," she said. "During World War II they needed me for some teaching because they were short of people."

Gets degrees

A part-time job led to a full time one and before long "things just started singing and humming in the classroom and I kept going back to college to get degrees."

Although she said she enjoyed seeing the country in her different assignments, it was the youngsters she liked the best about the job.

"I've enjoyed all the places, but it's the Indian children who made it fascinating work," she said. "The Indian children are not smart alecky and they don't have the sophisticated veneer you find in other students. They're living close to nature."

An Indian teacher, she feels, is best for the Indian students.

More demanding

"It's just a visual thing. They see an Indian as their teacher and it means a lot to them," she said. "Maybe Indian teachers are more demanding. I think they make the children toe the line better."

Mrs. Harvey also says she's "happiest around the Indian people," and her pride in being an Indian is evident.

She wears her hair in braided Indian fashion, and wears beautifully crafted Hopi bracelets on her wrists. She speaks no native Indian language, however, because the languages of her parents were so different.

She maintains an active interest in Indian affairs, such as the Wounded Knee incident. She said she supported the position of the American Indian Movement at Wounded Knee.

"Too many people don't have any idea about Wounded Knee," she said. "They've never been up there to see how those people live."

After getting things organized at her home in Taos, N.M., where she will make her permanent residence, Mrs. Harvey plans to travel to Wisconsin this fall.

"I want to learn to grow and harvest wild rice and live with an Indian family—do it the way they do," she said. "I may also do some volunteer teaching among the Iraquois."

Short circuit starts TV fire

POMONA — A short circuit in a television set caused a small fire Friday in an apartment at 2228 Chanslor St., but no injuries resulted.

According to Pomona fire officials, the apartment's occupant, Mrs. Georgia Lund, tried to remove the television from the apartment when a fire began burning around the set's on-off switch.

Mrs. Lund had to abandon the set in the apartment's doorway when the heat became too intense. Firemen were then summoned and extinguished the blaze.

Damage to the set, door and apartment was estimated at $300.

Critical Nixon Signs halted

SALINAS (UPI) — Monterey County Administrative Officer Edwin McCauley Friday ordered signs critical of President Nixon as a result of the Watergate inquiry torn off the walls of the Welfare Department offices.

McCauley explained, "I've always left what should be on county walls pretty much up to department heads." But, he added, the anti-Nixon cartoons and posters did not meet criteria against offensive decorations.

Losing out as world leader

Glory that was Paris tarnished, almost gone

PARIS UPI) — As a world capital, Paris has slipped.

A report published this summer says Paris has lost out as a center of the modern arts, as headquarters for international businesses and as a political center. And it's losing its personality that for centuries made Paris the world's favorite international city.

Based on two years of interviews with businessmen and others in the United States and Europe, the report made for city officials concluded, "Paris once was the capital of Europe, perhaps even of the world. Now it is neither one nor the other."

The 143-page report, "Paris, International City," outlines the city's failure in three areas: culture, economics and politics.

London has become the capital of the arts, London and Brussels tie as European headquarters for American and multinational firms and Brussels is likely to be the capital of the united Europe, the report warns.

Paris De-fizzed

As for culture, "Paris no longer is the site of creative effervescene. Avant garde theater, new music, new clothing ideas come today from London," the report begins.

"Until the 50's, aspirans were obliged to go to Paris to enter the tight circle of creators. Artistic personalities breathed here the air of liberty indispensable to all research, creation, interchange of ideas. Paris was the international culture center.

"Now the rigors of French bureaucracy tend to normalize attempts at originality and artistic creation. Paris is too classic and not adapted to the new dimension of culture of advanced industrial societies— the culture of the masses."

The report said few experimental artistic events originate in Paris such as "The Great Magic Circus", which had great success in New York and London. French artistic personalities such as Pierre Boulez and Maurice Bejart must emigrate to find expression for their talent. Contemporary plays in Paris come from England, Germany or the United States.

The report decided Paris still has two advantages of culture:

"Intellectual and political debates and the publication of theoretical works in history, philosophy, still take place first in Paris. Secondly, the artistic heritage of Paris, architecture and monuments, the beauty of certain quarters such as the Left Bank, Montparnasse, Montmartre...."

"Not like Detroit"

But this second point in Paris' favor is threatened by the current scramble to "Manhattanize" Paris with skyscrapers and snack bars, the report says.

"The current modernization of many Paris sections was necessary or otherwise the capital would be underdeveloped. But haven't we gone too far?" the report questions.

"The building evolution under way is altering seriously the personality of Paris. A great city is a great city only through its personality. We must stop building Paris as Detroit..."

In the economic field, the report stresses that Paris to regain its crown as the No. 1 international city must attract multinational firms to establish their European headquarters here. But a University of Pennsylvania survey made for the report says Brussels and London now attract the most headquarters.

The report noted that London is the financial center of Europe and Paris does not boast headquarters of one European banking association.

As for being a political capital, the report urges that Paris try to become the center for trade and relations with the Communist world, and for the third world of African countries.

$90 million disappears

LOS ANGELES UPI) — A creditors' hearing was held in federal bankruptcy court Friday to begin investigating the disappearance of an estimated $90 million accumulated by the now-defunct Goldstein Samuelson Inc. brokerage firm.

Federal bankruptcy referee Ronald B. Walker said the company, which was owned by Harold Goldstein, esembled a "bookie operation."

Goldstein, 28, has been convicted of three counts of mail fraud in connection with the company's operations. The firm, which only began business in the summer of 1971, was shut down last February.

Big crowd sees L.A. lose

LOCAL - NATIONAL Sports

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

Before a record regular season crowd of 55,185 paid, the Dodgers committed six errors, allowed three unearned runs, and made only four hits themselves off young Jim Barr as the Giants won easily, 5-0.

Only Steve Garvey, Bill Russell, and Bill Buckner could solve Barr's offerings. Buckner did it twice.

Catcher Joe Ferguson was charged with only one of the miscues, but made three bad throws to second base as the speedy young Giants stole three times.

The loss cut the Dodger lead over Cincinnati to four games and over San Francisco to five. Sutton's record dropped to 12-7.

The Dodger ace deserved a better fate. In five innings of thankless labor, he struck out eight and walked none while allowing seven hits. He was charged with four runs, only one of them earned.

Barr, meanwhile, had the Dodgers eating out of his hand with a good fastball and slider. He threw only 84 pitches in recording his second shutout of the season and evening his record at 9-9.

"I'm throwing harder now than I did earlier in the year," he said. "I've got my rhythm and that is the difference."

Alston, searching for something to be happy about, remarked, "I thought we hit the ball harder tonight."

The game trend was established in the first inning. Russell's error put Tito Fuentes on base with one out. Sutton recorded his second strikeout by fanning Garry Maddox just as he had lead-off hitter Bobby Bonds.

The dangerous Willie McCovey worked the count to 2-2 and lined a shot down the right field line. The Giants had a 1-0 lead, and big Willie had a double.

Those two runs were unearned and the visitors added another in the third.

Matthews singled to start the inning. Chris Speier was called out on strikes for the second time and Dave Rader grounded out, Matthews taking second.

Barr grounded to Ken McMullen, making a rare start at third. McMullen fumbled the ball for one error, allowing Barr to reach first and Matthews third. Then, in his haste to try and get Barr, Mac threw wildly to first and Matthews scored.

It was the fifth inning before the Giants scored an earned run. Maddox singled with one out and promptly stole second. McCovey followed with another single, scoring Maddox.

McCovey pulled up lame at first. He was replaced Gary Thomasson but is expected to play today.

Bonds led off the seventh inning with his 27th home run.

Only bright light for the Dodgers was Willie Crawford's diving stab of a drive by Goodson to end the inning. It was the play of the game, but it failed to spark his teammates.

Barr retired 15 of the last 16 hitters he faced including 13 in a row beginning in the fifth inning.

Only Dodger threat of the night came in the fifth inning.Garvey led off with his double. McMullen and Russell were easy outs. Manny Mota had been lingering in the on-deck circle, but Alston called him back to the dugout and sent up left-handed Von Joshua.

As might have expected the way things were going Joshua struck out.

DODGER NOTES. . . Andy Messersmith (9-6) will pitch for the Dodgers in today's 2 p.m. game. Former Angel and White Sox hurler Tom Bradley (9-8) will oppose him. Claude Osteen (11-5) and Ron Bryant (15-7) wind up the home stand Monday night at 8 p.m.

Today's Autograph Day with 16 Dodger players scheduled to sign autographs between 12:50 and 1:20 p.m.

Dodger management is expecting a total attendance of 130,000 for the Giants series. That would put the season total 1,463,000 plus for 57 games on 56 dates (the club played on doubleheader with Cincinatti.)

Meoli, Robby pace Angels in 19-8 rout

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Rudy Meoli, a .202 hitter, drove in six runs with a pair of singles and an inside-the-park homer and Frank Robinson drove in five more with his 539th and 540th career homers Saturday as the California Angels pounded the Kansas City Royals, 19-8.

The 19 runs tied a California record, which was set June 28, 1962, at Boston.

The Angels, who scored more than one run in each of the first five innings, tallied 11 times in the first two innings. California had scored only three runs in their last three games against Texas.

Richie Scheinblum, who had five hits, slapped a two-run double, Meoli a two-run single and Rich Stelmaszek a two-run single in the six-run first. The Angels put the game away with five more runs in the second when Meoli capped the inning with another two-run single.

Robinson smashed a two-run homer in the third and a three-run job in the fourth, his 17th and 18th if the season.

In the fifth, Meoli cracked a liner to right-centerfield which Hal McRae flipped with his glove into left-center and the California shortstop turned it into a two-run homer.

Rudy May, who started for the Angels couldn't survive the first inning despite being staked to a six-run lead. John Mayberry, Lou Piniella and Kurt Bevacqua slapped runscoring singles in the first before the Royals were buried by the second deluge.

Aureilo Monteagudo, 1-0, finished up for the Angels while Ken Wright, 6-5, took the loss.

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

FULLERTON — Tommy Prothro is still with the Los Angeles Rams. If not in body, at least in spirit—a lack of it that is.

In a workout with the Denver Broncos at Cal State Fullerton Saturday afternoon, the Rams displayed little of the fire that seemed to give the Broncos an edge in most phases of the 2½ hours scrimmage.

The Broncos were noisy and spirited as they outscored the Rams, 4-3, in a game-situation goal line scrimmage which climaxed the practice session which was closed to the public.

"I thought the spirit was good," smiled Denver coach John Ralston afterwards. "And that's always a plus."

Ralston's counterpart, first-year Ram coach Chuck Knox was matter-of-fact in saying, "We've made some progress, and we've got a way to go yet. We've got 79 players out here. We want everybody to have a chance."

Both coaches avoided picking out individual players before seeing films of the drills which were setup to allow the offensive and defensive units of each team to work against each other.

On one practice field, receivers and running backs ran patterns against a defensive backfield and linebackers, while at another location offensive linemen and backs ran running plays against a defensive line and linebackers.

Each team used four quarterbacks in both the passing and running drills.

Ram quarterback John Hadl completed 16 of 28 passes for 226 yards and one touchdown to lead the throwers. Jim Harris was good on 13 of 18 for 139 yards. Denver's Charlie Johnson was good on 9 of 16 attempts for 135 yards and one TD. Mike Ernst, a second-year pro from Fullerton, completed 10 of 16 for 141 yards and a score.

The Rams QBs had an edge in total completions and yardage, 32 of 53 for 493 yards, compared to their Denver counterparts, 30 of 51 for 428 yards.

Leading the receivers however, was Denver's veteran wide receiver Bill Van Heusen with six receptions for 128 yards.

Les Josephshon caught four passes for 53 yards and Tony Baker grabbed four for 27 yards to pace the Ram catchers.

Baker, a six-year veteran from Iowa State who came to the Rams a few weeks ago from Philadelphia in the Roman Gabriel trade, scored two touchdowns in the goal line scrimmage.

Denver scored on passes twice in the goal line drill as Johnson and Ernst connected with Riley Odoms and John Dawkins. Veteran back Floyd Little scored once on a dive, and Bill Sullivan, a rookie, crashed through the Ram defense to make it four Bronco TDs.

RAM-BRONCO NOTES: Each club gained four more rookies Saturday as participants in the College-All Star game flew in from Chicago. . . they'll be in uniform with their respective teams Monday. . . joining the Rams were linebacker Jim Youngblood, a linebacker from Tennessee Tech; Cullen Brant, a defensive back from Colorado; Dave Brown, a center from USC and Allan Graf, a guard from USC. Joining the Broncos are Purdue running back Otis Armstrong, USC defensive back Charles Hinton and defensive end John Grant, and Paul Howard, a guard from Brigham Young.

Denver guard Larron Jackson, who was suspended by Ralston early this week for refusal to sign his 1973 contract was still in Denver Saturday, and his attorney said the Bronco management was refusing to negotiate a new contract for the lineman. "Larron badly wants to play football," the attorney, Robert Esperti said. "He wants to play football with the Broncos. He's really concerned about his team and teammates."

La Verne eliminated, but . . .

Gems one victory short of title

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — Greg Ballard broke a 5-5 deadlock with a seventh-inning bases loaded double and Conde Rael hurled 4 2-3 innings of one-hit ball to lead Pomona Post 30 to a 10-5 decision over Covona Post 207 Saturday morning at Citrus College to take command of the District 18 title.

Manager Woody Hansen will call on 'Big B' today at noon when the Gems have a rematch with Covina who came back in the third game with a 11-2 trouncing of West Covina, for the District 18 American Legion title.

Pomona has a tremendous advantage because Covina has to win a doubleheader.

Post 30 is unbeaten in the double-elimination affair while Post 207 has one loss.

The winner would then advance to the Area Playoffs to be held at Northwest Park in Burbank starting Thursday August 2.

Two sour notes marred an exciting day of baseball. The first came when Pomona's Wil Lewallen was struck on the elbow by a Mark Clear fastball to open the game. 'Lew', the Gems' crack shortstop, may have had his season forced to an end when a hospital's report diagnosed a bad bruise and possible fractures.

The other sad note is that La Verne Post 330's season came to a close with a 14-9 loss to West Covina in the second game of the day.

The performance of Ballard, Real, and the addition of six Covina miscues spurred the Gems to a come-from-behind win.

The Gems added a run in the eighth when Jeff Corkill was hit by a pitch and Carmean (who had a perfect day with four walks and a hit) singled him to third. The 'dynamic duo' then pulled off a double steal with Corkill scoring.

Pomona's final run came over on Covina's sixth error of the afternoon.

Ballard ended the day with two hits while Roger Slayton chipped in three singles and Carmean scored three runs.

Rael took over in the fifth frame for starter Keith Hartley who went 4 1-13 innings yielding five runs, four hits and six walks while striking out six. Rael, in notching his sixth win of the season and improving on an 0.82 earned run average, threw 4 2-3 innings issuing three walks and fanning six.

Deac Kennan's La Verne club, who sported a very respectable 29-16 record and 11-5 in league, fought back gamely from an 11-run deficit.

Post 330 was helped out by five run-producing wild pitches and a run scoring error in its comeback effort.

Rick Ortega was La Verne's hitting star with three hits and two walks.

West Covina jumped on La Verne's pitching for 18 hits. Gregg Thompson was bruised for eight runs, nine hits, and one walk in five innings to suffer the setback. Jim Vallone was treated just as roughly as the southpaw allowed six runs and nine hits in four innings.

Lunger qualifies second for L&M

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UPI) Jody Scheckter extended his domination of every phase of L&M Championship Series Saturday by capturing the pole position for the first qualifying heat of today's eventat Road America.

Scheckter, from South Africa, qualified his Trojan with a speed of 115.3 miles per hour over the four-mile circuit, in a near-record 2:04.9 minutes.

Pomona's Brett Lunger had the second best time in qualifying to win the pole position in the second heat. He circled the track in 2:05.5.

Scheckter and Lunger will have the pole for the two 80-mile heats today which will qualify drivers for the 100-mile L&M feature.

Scheckter has burned up the L&M series so far, and holds four-race winning streak coming into today's competition.

Cards belt Fergie early, hang on to slam Cubs, 7-2

By United Press International

The St. Louis Cardinals rapped Ferguson Jenkins for three runs in the first inning and behind the pitching of Reggie Cleveland and Al Hrabosky defeated the Chicago Cubs Saturday, 7-2.

The victory increased the Cardinals' lead in the National League East to 2 ½ games over the skidding Cubs who have lost 12 of their last 14 games.

The red-hot Cards scored three first inning runs to ease the way for Cleveland's 11th victory against five defeats. Lou Brock hit the first of six Cardinal doubles to lead off the first inning and scored on Tim McCarver's double. Joe Torre was hit by a pitch and advanced to third on a single by Ted Simmons that scored McCarver. Torre scored when Bernie Carbo bounced into a rundown double play.

Wayne Twitchell's five-hit pitching and Terry Harmon's run-scoring double in the fifth inning lifted the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Harmon ended loser Jim Rooker's string of 16 scoreless inning when he doubled home Craig Robinson, who had singled and moved to second on a sacrifice.

In night action, San Francisco stopped Los Angeles, 5-0, New York romped to a 11-3 decision over Montreal, Atlanta downed Houston, 3-1, and Cincinnati shaded San Diego in 10 innings, 2-1.

Hank Aaron's two-run single capped a three-run ninth inning rally that lifted Atlanta to triumph over Houston.

John Briggs homered and Tim Johnson and John Vukovich followed with run-scoring singles in the third inning Saturday to give the Milwaukee Brewers a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees.

Briggs, who belted his 11th home run leading off the third, lifted the Brewers to a 3-3 tie. George Scott, who went 3-for-3, Darrell Porter, Johnson and Vukovich then singled to put the Brewers ahead to stay.

Winning pitcher Bill Champion, 3-5, allowed two hits in 4 1-3 innings of relief work while George Medich, who gave all five Brewers runs on 10 hits took his sixth loss in 13 decisions.

In other American League games California shelled Kansas City 19-8 and Oakland beat Texas 6-4.

Run-scoring singles by Deron Johnson, Gene Tenace and Billy Conigliaro and an RBI double by Reggie Jackson capped a four-run fifth inning rally to bring the A's from behind for a victory over the Rangers.

In night action, Minnesota nipped Chicago, 6-5, Detroit shaded Baltimore, 3-2, and Boston downed Cleveland, 7-4.

Sophomore QB leads S.F. past New England, 20-7

CANTON, Ohio (UPI) — Second-year quarterback Joe Reed moved San Francisco to two second quarter touchdowns as the 49ers beat the New England Patriots 20-7 Saturday in the annual Hall of fame exhibition game.

Reed, who was on the taxi squad most of last season, moved the 49ers 45 yards in six plays, three of them pass completions, before Jimmy Thomas swept right end for two yards and a score midway through the second quarter.

Then with eight seconds to play in the half, Reed threw a 29-yard pass to Dick Witcher for the second touchdown, climaxing a 90-yard drive.

The veteran San Francisco defense blanked the Patriots until Tom Reynolds caught a 31-yard touchdown pass from Brian Dowling with 1:53 to play.

Tom Wittum kicked 12 and 17-yard field goals for the other San Francisco points.

Reed played most of the game for San Francisco with John Brodie and Steve Spurrier appearing for only one series of downs apiece.

In the second period, he hit successive completions of 14, 14 and 9 yards. The last one combined with a personal foul to move the ball to the New England nine-yard line line where three running play took it across.

The next time the 49ers got the ball, a penalty backed them up to their 10. After one running play, Reed threw 10 straight passes, hitting seven, the last to Witcher wide open in the end zone.

Five victories for Shoemaker

DEL MAR, Calif. (UPI) — All-time riding champion Bill Shoemaker rode five winners at Del Mar Saturday, including Expression to a length and one-half victory in the $21,925 Oceanside Handicap.

Expression wore down Rise High in the stretch and won going away. Mug Punter was third in the field of eight 3-year-olds.

Clocked in 1:08 4-5 for six furlongs, Expression paid $4 to win.

Shoemaker, who also had a pair of seconds, won the second race on Great Expectation ($4.40), the fourth on Fast Courier ($4.60), the fifth aboard Snow Man ($10.40) and the ninth aboard Ice Cap ($3.40).

Clark strong in scrimmage

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — San Diego's Wayne Clark, the Chargers' backup quarterback last season, completed 4 of 8 passes for 145 yards—including an 80-yarder to rookie Joe Petty of Arizona State for a touchdown — in a controlled scrimmage Saturday.

Seven-year pro Dave Williams and rookie Al Reese of Tennessee State each caught two passes while Bob Thomas, a running back acquired in the off-season from the Los Angeles Rams, led all rushers with 63 yards on 9 carries.

Chino Nat'l District 23 champions

By TOM FAHEY
P-B Correspondent

MONTCLAIR — Chino National used two home runs to offset a brilliant pitching performance by Ontario Eastern's Steve Penn, and defeat Ontario, 4-2, in the finals of the District 23 Little League Tournament Saturday night at John F. Kennedy Park in Montclair.

Both of Chino's homers were two-run blasts. Hector Martinez gave Chino's starting pitcher Gary Niekerk a two-run lead when he parked one in the second.

Scoring in front of Martinez was Ronnie Lopez, who had singled.

Ontario Eastern came right back in the bottom half of the inning with a run of their own. Doug Peters hit the first of this two homers to account for the run.

Peters slugged another round-tripper in the bottom of the fifth to tie the game.

Chino came right back to take the lead and the game with two runs in the sixth when Martinez walked and came home on a homer by Jerry Martinez, his fourth of the tournament.

Penn, the losing pitcher, hurled a gem except for the two homers. He allowed only three hits and two walks, and struck out 14 batters.

Lopez provided some fine defensive play with two outstanding plays. In the fifth he went far to his right to backhand a hard grounder and threw out Ontario runner Penn.

Chino National will move on to the Section 7 Tournament next week at John F. Kennedy Park. It will play the winner of District 24 Thursday at 7 p.m.

Hall's grand slam powers Diamond Bar over National

By JIM McCONNELL
P-B Correspondent

LA VERNE — Powered by Vincent Hall's grand-slam homer and fine relief hurling by Phil Kranenberg, Diamond Bar clinched the District 20 Little League crown here Saturday with a 8-2 triumph over Pomona National.

Hall's fourth-inning blast broke open a close contest and fireman Kranenberg made the advantage stand up. Pomona National had broken on top with a first inning tally, as Donnie Hill scored all the way from first on Rene Escobar's looping single to right.

It looked like National would get even more against Diamond Bar starter Mario Flores, but Escobar was tossed out at home on a steal attempt.

Diamond Bar got the run back to bizzarre fashion in the bottom of the first. Norman Revis hit a high fly to deep right, which Bobby Eckl got his glove on, but the ball popped out and over the fence as Revis touched all the bases. The strange play was ruled a four-base error on Eckl, and knotted the contest at 1-1.

Diamond Bar got to National starter Craig Donahue for the go-ahead score in the third. Joel Nunn was aboard on an infield single, advanced to second on Flores single, and scored on Revis' long double.

The game for Pomona National exploded in the fourth, as Diamond Bar sent nine batters to the plate and six of them came home to score. Flores drove home the first run of the frame with a single, while Revis got home another with his one-bagger and set the stage for Hall. Hall, who had fanned in two earlier at-bats, picked out a Donahue delievery and drove it over the rightfield fence.

Kranenberg picked up for Flores in the second, and hurled five innings of three-hit ball for the win. Pomona National tried to mount a six-inning rally, as Donahue led off with a single and Mark Alba was aboard on an error. But Kranenberg bore down to strike out two of the next three batters to nail down the District 20 crown.

Diamond Bar will now advance to the Sectional playoffs at Montclair's John F. Kennedy Park. They will play Wednesday at 7 P.M. against an opponent still to be determined.

Claremont eliminated from C.M. tournament

LOS ANGELES —The Pomona Valley's last hope for a shot at the state Connie Mack tournament was dashed Saturday afternoon as Claremont's Cardinals were edged, 2-1, by Hawaiian Gardens.

Losing pitcher Monty Moose, embroiled in a 1-1 standoff, weakened finally in the fifth when John Lilley doubled Charley Phillips home on a hit-and-run play with the winning run.

The Cards' only run of the game was tallied in the first when Gary Bach singled, was doubled to third by Todd Ervin, and scored on Jim Ayres' infielder grounder.

Ervin, who finishes the season at .376, put the biggest dent in H.G. pitching by collecting two hits in three at-bats. Bach hit a healthy .378, while Ayres finishes out with a .397 after missing a number of games.

"This is a young ballclub," said coach Jack Halber after the season-ending loss. "Almost everybody will be back next year. I'm really pleased for the most part with what happened this year. I've just got to be excited about next year."

The race over a four-mile course in the Strait of Georgia off Vancouver involved more than 30 competitors.

The boat was manufactured by Coulson's company, San Bernardino Materials Company, for The Rowboat Company, Huntington Beach, and the race was its first test. It also was the first race for Coulson.

The slick, high-speed craft, a California state flag mounted on its stern, overcame all opposition, although Coulson of 2442 Notre Dame Ave., Pomona, reported to his boss, Bill McLaughlin, president of San Bernardino Materials Company, that "it was a tough race."

McLaughlin said that Coulson using aluminum oars splashed his way to victory off Vancouver Island by about 30 yards over his nearest rival.

The new boat, designed by The Rowboat Company and manufactured by the San Bernardino firm, will be marketed as an exercise rowboat for the general public.

"The company expects to sell more than 1,000 boats in the first year," McLaughlin said. "It does represent a major departure in rowboats and it fills the position enalogous to that of a 10-speed bicycle between a regular bicycle and a racing bicycle.

"It is not unstable as are the racing shells, but is is much faster than the normal, conventional rowboat," McLaughlin commented.

"It is designed, "McLaughlin continued, "in such a manner that all major parts of the body—the back, the shoulders, the arms and the legs—are involved in the exercise of rowing the craft."

"Marty expects to be back at Sidney next year to win the race again, as well as hopefully enter other races, which are in the planning stages," McLaughlin commented.

McLaughlin said that his firm wanted to try out the new boat, and read about the races in a yachting magazine.

"Marty was chosen because he is the strongest guy in the company," McLaughlin said. "He had about three weeks to work out, and tried the international orange-colored craft at Elsinore and Bonelli Park."

Janice Metcalf loses to Evert

CLEVELAND HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — Top-seeded Chris Evert defeated Janice Metcalif of Clairemont, Calif., 6-2, 6-2, and second-seeded Linda Tuero of New Orleans eliminated Natalie Fuchs of France, 6-2, 75, Saturday to advance to the finals of the Marie O. Clark Memorial Tennis Tournament.

Miss Evert, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., needed only 20 minutes to win her first set and 21 minutes to take the second.

The winners were to battle Sunday for the $25,000 tournament's top prize of $5,000.

In the finals of the doubles competition, the South African duo of Pat Pretorious and Iana Kloss survived two match points in the second set and went on to defeat Miss Metcalf and Laurie Tenney o Los Angeles, 1-6, 7-6, 6-1.

Sandra Palmer's putt wins Fourball crown

By GIL PETERS

NEW SEABURY, Mass. UPI) — Sandra Palmer sank a seven-foot putt on the first sudden death playoff hole Saturday to give Jane Blalock and herself their second straigrt Lady Angelo's LPGA Fourball Championship.
pick up 2nd pgh bgng The Palmer-Blalock team

Miss Ferraris birdied the 16th hole to put her team one up, but Miss Blalock birdied 17 to tie it and both Miss Little and Miss Palmer birdied 18 to send the tournament into sudden death.

"The putt on 18 was shorter, about six feet," said Miss Palmer. "But that one looked longer" because Miss Little had already made her bird.

"This is the first day we played together well as a team," Miss Palmer said. "The first day, Jane played well and the second day I played well. But today she really played better and I just filled in around the edges."

Palmer and Blalock won the rain-shortened two day tournament here last year with a 14 under par performance that topped the rest of the field by eight strokes.

A total of 19 of the 23 teams entered either tied or broke the three-round par 216 in the $30,000 tournament.

The Palmer-Blalock team, which earned $4,800 with the win, was tied after 54 holes with Sally Little and Jan Ferraris at nine under par 207. But on the 485-yard par five first hole, which Miss Blalock had birdied earlier in the day, Miss Palmer took two shots to the fringe while everyone else needed three.

From there, Miss Palmer chipped to within seven feet and sank her birdie putt. Miss Ferraris' birdie attempt from 12 feet broke off to the left while Miss Little had to struggle for a par.

The teams of Gail Denenberg Sandra Post and Sandra Spuzich-Andy Fischer finished two strokes back at 209. Tied for fifth at 210 were the twosomes of Mary Mills-Pam Barnett, Diane Patterson-Jackie Evans and Margie Masters-Sherry Wilder.

Blalock and Palmer, who had started the round two, strokes back passed Little and Ferraris, who were playing in the same foursome after nine holes.

Weiskopf takes lead in Canada

MONTREAL (UPI) — British Open champion Tom Weiskopf sank a three-foot putt on the 18th hole Saturday for a sizzling four-under-par 68, a three-round total of 208 and a one stroke lead over Forrest Fezler in the $175,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

Weiskopf is the hottet golfer on the PGA tour, with four wins in his last seven tournaments. In the three tourneys he did not win, Weiskopf finished second, third, and fifth.

Entering the third round two shots off the pacse, Weiskopf went on a spree with six birdies. He opened with a birdie, then birdied the par five, 540 yard third hole before bogeying the par three fourth. His third birdie of the day came on the seventh, par four 430 yarder.

Weiskopf birdied the 10th, but lost a chance to go further in front when he bogied the 12th hole.

Fezler, looking for his first ever win on the PGA tour, had an opportunity to tie Weiskopf, but missed a birdie putt on the 18th hole as he fired a one under par 71 and a 209 for the first 4 holes.

Another stroke back, at 210 was Bobby Mitchell. Tied for fourth place were Jim Ferriell and Chuck Courtney at 211, followed by John Schlee at 212, Bruce Crampton at 213 and Hale Irwin at 214. Crampton is the leading money winner on the PGA tour.

Fezler had only two birdies on his way to a 70, but he committed no bogeys and managed to stay out of trouble most of the afternoon. he birdied the ninth and 14th, both 500 yard plus par fives.

Weiskopf, who has won four of his last seven tournaments and finished in the top five in the three that he did not win, was not overly pleased with his game even though he shot the day's lowest score, a four-under-par 68.

"If I don't play well then there are a lot of golfers here who can beat me," he said. "I would love to win this tournament, and if I can win by one stroke I'd be very happy, but I don't want to win by one stroke, I want to win by as many as I can. That's the way I set my goals.

"I would be disappointed if I didn't win, but that's part of the game. If I give it my best shot and someone beats me then that's the way it goes. I like the competition. I'm looking forward to the last round."

Rik Massengale, the only other golfer to shoot a 68, had a two-under-par total of 214 to match Irwin.

Claremont Pony stars need one more win

SAN BERNARDINO —The Claremont Pony League All-Stars need only one more victory to win the Section championship and advance to the Area playoffs in National City next week.

Recreation

Over half of the Pomona Park and Recreation Departments adult softball teams participate in the slo-pitch leagues. The "lob the ball up there and hit it" game commands the attention of 46 of the city's 68 squads. The remainder tackle the harder to hit, more like baseball fast pitch game.

The expansion in the softball the past ten years in Southern California has been in the slo-pitch variety. While I don't have figures to support this, my guess would be that there are actually fewer fast pitch teams playing today than there were in 1963. This is definitely true in Pomona.

When it comes to participation, there are probably twice as many in the game today than a decade ago. The growth can be directly correlated to the expansion in youth baseball.

The interest in playing ball is developed in youth baseball and carries over into the adult years. When spring arrives, it is time to play ball. Baseball, however, doesn't develop fast pitch softbal pitchers. Therefore, without a pitcher, you play slo-pitch.

There are a few, a very few, young fast pitch throwers in the game today. The majority of the top softball teams in the state rely on the pitching of a man age 30 and up.

The last time Pomona had a team in the Congress Softball League, a traveling circuit of the best players, they won the World Championship as the Pomona Bombers. The ace of the staff was Duane Kampius who was in his late twenties. The other pitchers were even older.

Kampious, Richie Stephens and Art Bunge all did their throwing for Bombers their last couple of years the team was on the field in 1965 and 1966. The three still pitch, Stephens in Salt Lake City, Bunge in Orange County, and Kampius was last heard of in the state of Washington.

There is a new pitcher this season in the local leagues that provides a ray of hope for the fast pitch enthusiast. Most important, he is only 18 years old and exhibits promise that few have shown around here in recent years.

Tom Murphy has posted a 6-3 mark so far this year for the Ewart's team in Pomona's "B" league, the National. When you realize what Tom has gone through to play, it is easy to understand why we consider him a top prospect.

Tom didn't play in any of the youth baseball programs that his teammates might have. Since childhood he has suffered from a mild heart condition that caused doctors to say "no" when it came to strenuous activities.

Given green light

Last year he was given the green light and Tom intends to make the most of it. The reason he has picked softball is easily understood when you look at his background.

Gene Murphy, Tom's father, has coached and played on softball teams for years. The elder Murphy managed the fine Lakewood club for a number of seasons with famed pitcher George Pearson.

Pearson, one of the game's all time greats, has been a great influence on Tom. George's take charge attitude is something that the young Murphy is attempting to adopt.

"George has been my idol," says Tom, "He just controls the game."

Tom actually started throwing on the sidelines two years ago. When he was released by the doctors last year, he played a few games in the outfield for his father's American Building team in Pomona.

Gene decided to spend his time coaching his youngest son in Little League this year, so Tom began looking for a team. That's when he came in contact with Pomona High's baseball caoch Vern Davidson, who was looking for a pitcher for his Ewart's squad.

With the exception of a few players including Tom, the squad is made up of high school coaches. The players have had considerable athletic experience, but little in softball with the exception of Davidson and Pete Robertson.

Tom feels that the players have been very helpful and given him great support and encouragment. While the team will finish in second place, Tom thinks they are coming around just right for the SCMAF Tournament.

Davidson says of Tom, "He handles himself real well and nobody treats him like a kid. I think Tom is going to be one hell of a pitcher; he is dedicated."

Tom practices at least three days a week along with two games. He works on fielding his position and lifts weights to develop strength.

While he is small for a softball pitcher at 5'6" and 130 pounds, the dedication and desire that spells the difference between the average and the great is there.

Abdul-Jabbar plays at UCLA

LOS ANGELES — UCLA's Alumni basketball team in the Second Annual Ralph Bunche Basketball Benefit Saturday evening, at Pauley Pavilion, has received a king-sized shot in the arm—in the imposing person of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

The Bruin Alumni, coached by the incomparable John Wooden, will face the Southern California Pro Basketball Summer League All-Stars in the featured half of a doubleheader at 8:30 that night—and they have been quite understandably looking for Jabbar, the super-star who, as Lew Alcindor, led UCLA to NCAA championships in 1967-68-69.

Big League All-Stars hopeful in tourney

SANTA ANA — The Pomona Valley Big League All-Stars hope to earn themselves a trip to Florida this week, but they have seven games to win in order to get there.

The Southern California Division Three Tournament gets under way at 5:30 Monday at Santa Ana Valley High, which will be the site of all the playoff rounds.

The Pomona Valley Stars, officially classified as the District 20 representatives, face a team made up of District 46, 30, and 62 all-stars in the tournement opener.

"I told my wife to get her clothes ready, 'cause we're going to Florida," says an exuberant manager Al Thomas. "They look sharp, real sharp."

According to Thomas, Pomona Valley can safely expect a division championship if the pitchers come through.

"Pitching is going to be the name of the game," Thomas predicts. "They can't beat us offensively or defensively. All we need is some good pitching."

Thomas says that District 20's first opponent is "one of the better teams in the playoffs." The three districts are from the Santa Ana Anaheim area.

Paul Madrigal of the Pomona Northwest-Southwest team will be this evening's starting pitcher for Pomona Valley.

The other starters are: catcher Tracy Cowger of Diamond Bar first baseman Rich Espinoza of San Dimas, second baseman Alfred Thomas of San Dimas, third baseman Dean Sickels of Diamond Bar, shortstop Billy Karr of Diamond Bar, Leftfielder Tim Brown of San Dimas, centerfielder Jerry Levreau of San Dimas and rightfielder Rick Aris of San Dimas.

Trojan shortstop

LOS ANGELES — Roy Smalley, Jr., all-American shortstop from the University of Southern California NCAA championship baseball team, has been named Southern California Athlete of the Month for June by Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation, it was announced by W. R. ("Bill") Schroeder.

Athlete of June

Smalley, whose father had an 11-year career as a major league shortstop, hit .328 during the season for the Trojans, but it was his performance in the College World Series at Omaha and in the subsequent series with the Japanese College All-Stars that earned him the award.

San Bernardino prepares to host Little Leaguers

SAN BERNARDINO — During the third week of July, the long distance telephone calls become more frequent at the Western Regional Little League Headquarters.

Albert E. Houghton, Western Regional director, knows without looking at a calendar what the telephone calls mean. Little League tournaments in the 13 western states have begun.

The telephone calls are from managers, coaches and local league officials who need the assistance of their "chief" umpire. Houghton sits at his desk a baseball throw from the stadium built last year to house the Western Regional Tournament and makes decisions, answers questions and generally helps keep the tournaments running smoothly — from Honolulu to Anchorage to Billings, Montana.

The job is not an easy one. The Western Regional Little League organization governs 1,479 separate leagues and approximately 400,000 young ball players. Only 182 boys will make the trip here to begin Western Regional Tournament play August 13. When the dust clears five days later, 14 boys will have earned the right to fly to Williamsport, Pa. for the Little League World Series.

It all begins with interleague competition. Tournament teams from each league battle for district championships. District winners go on to state finals.

In most western states, state champions are easily determined, since few states have more than eight districts. But in California, there are 62 districts, so the young athletes must compete an extra week to determine the eight district teams which compete in the state tournament, this year scheduled in Santa Clara.

Houghton will be in command August 11 when the first of 13 teams fly in to Ontario International Airport. A total of 182 boys and 26 coaches and managers will participate. All will be housed in dormitories at this handsome headquarters facility nestled against the San Bernardino Mountains.

The week's stay will include picnics, luncheons, and trips to professional ball games in Los Angeles, Disneyland and Southern California attractions. Even though it is a single elimination tournament, each team can expect to play at least two games. A loser's bracket, to determine fifth place has been set up to ease the sting of initial defeat.

The City of San Bernardino is preparing for the teams and their guests. Local businessmen have banded together to form a group called Team 13. Each businessman will host one team, meeting it at the airport, providing transportation to special events, and generally making sure its stay in San Bernardino is a pleasant one. A special bus schedule also has been devised to provide transportation for parents and friends to the stadium for each game.

Each boy competing in the Western Regional Tournament had better bring an extra pair of socks with him. No one is sure just when he will be returning home. Should his team win, he will leave San Bernardino within 14 hours following the championship game on a cross-country flight to Williamsport and the fulfillment of a young ball player's dream — a chance at the World Little League Championship.

If a retired quarterback from Mt. Vernon, Texas, can learn to fly, so can you.

"You're looking at the new Mercedes-Benz 450SE. I'd rather own it than any car at any price I've ever driven."
—Phil Hill

Phil Hill, the only American ever to win the World Championship of Driving, is only one of the automotive critics who've found it difficult to describe the 450SE in anything less than superlatives. And no wonder. The 450SE sedan offers engineering features years ahead of most cars today, features that no domestic sedan — at any price — can match. This is a spacious, 5-passenger sedan. Yet its independent rear suspension system, new "zero offset" steering and front suspension give it handling that rivals a sports car's. It has disc brakes on every wheel — every wheel — to resist fade. Its 4.5-liter, fuel-injected, overhead-cam V-8 engine provides all the smooth, responsive cruising power you'll ever need — and then some.

A remarkable machine, the Mercedes-Benz 450SE. One exciting to test drive. Call us. It's surprisingly easy to arrange.

That's how Hal Wells, professional at Boulder Creek Golf Club near Santa Cruz, explains the creation of America's first live-in golf camp for youngsters 8-18.

Wells will assist touring pro Al Geiberger at the Boulder Creek course in August as they attempt to give this expanding group of potential golfers the best possible instruction to develop their careers.

Tournaments lectures, practice sessions, analysis by closed circuit TV and experience from playing in a foursome with Geiberger are on the agenda or each session.

"It's true that there is more opportunity in golf today than ever before," says Geiberger, whose more than $500,000 in winnings on the tour rank him among the all-time top 20.

Geiberger will head a staff that includes Wells, Joey Rey of Salinas Golf Club, Gary Loustalot of De La Vega Golf Course and Buddy Sullivan of Pastimpo, both in the Santa Cruz area.

Oakland's Fingers overcomes streak

OAKLAND (UPI) — The first 16 weeks of the American League season were hard to take, admitted Oakland's ace reliever Rollie Fingers just before the All-Star break.

A former star at Alta Loma High, Fingers signed with the A's after being named the Legion Player of the Year after pitching Upland Post 73 to the national championship in 1964.

Not long before the midsummer classic, the lanky righthander with the handsome handlebar mustache had the league's lowest earned run average but had no victories to show for it. Instead, he had five decisions in the loss column.

Then during a one-week stretch on the road, Fingers put on a performance that prompted his field boss, Dick Williams, to select him for the A.L. All-Star Game staff.

In that six-game span, Fingers picked up three victories on performances reminiscent of 1972 when he won 11 and saved 21 others.

On the eastern swing, he pitched 11 2-3 innings, gave up no runs and struck out 11.

Fingers' clutch appearances were something the A's needed badly. They left home with a slim one game lead and returned with a definite edge going into the last third of the season.

"He's done the job for us," Williams said as he looked over Fingers' 3-5 record, 1.27 ERA and 10 saves. "Don't look at his won-loss record. Look at his ERA and saves. To me, he's the best reliever around."

Fingers, refusing to make reference to his outstanding year in 1972, said he knew his bad streak couldn't continue indefinitely.

"I felt good in the spring and reported in shape," he said. "I had a good spring except for a couple of times when I got hit hard."

But all that changed when the championship race started. And it stems from the American League's adoption of the designated hitter rule.

In spring training, A.L. managers were able to use all their pitchers, including relievers, in all situations because nothing was at stake.

Once the regular season started, however, hitting specialists made their marks, thereby enabling teams to go with smaller pitching staffs and, more important, allowing managers to stay with their starting pitchers for a longer period — especially in close games.

The A's were no exception.

"Our starters were going most if the way in the early going and I wasn't getting much work," Fingers said. "And it seemed every time I did pitch our guys couldn't score any runs for me."

Slowly, the opposition wore down Fingers and worked him for runs which cost him the game five times.

"I knew it couldn't stay that way all season long," Fingers said, trying to sound convincing. "I'm not doing anything different now and you can see the results."

Originally, the A's had hopes of making Fingers a starter. His credentials in the minors all indicated that he had the arm and stamina to go nine innings.

The A's changed that with Fingers' help in 1971. As a starter, Fingers got rocked frequently and was finally moved to the bullpen.

"I had only four wins, all of them in relief, plus 17 saves and that got people to thinking," he said. "Besides, I was too nervous as a starter. I'd try to think too much on the mound about batters and situations that I'd start aiming the ball. Consequently, I'd get rocked. As a reliever, I just don't have the time to out-psyche myself. Dick just hands me the ball."

Fingers also made a strategic adjustment in the winter of 1971. During winter ball, he put aside his fast ball and worked on a hard curve and a slider.

Since then, he has been Oakland's stopper.

Wall Street rally extends 9 days

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street got high on good earnings and increased dividends and enjoyed its longest rally in over two years on the New York Stock Exchange — nine consecutive days ending Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average did even better, extending its gaining streak to ten sessions by Friday. The index of 30 blue chips rose 25.81 to 936.71, following a 24.21 point climb the previous week.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index added 2.38 to 109.52. The NYSE index shot up 1.17 to 58.36.

Much of the list participated in the rise, with 1,064 gainers, 737 losers, out of 1,985 issues traded.

Activity continued at a brisk pace, totaling 85,402,580 shares for the week, compared with 83,626,420 the week earlier, and 76,257,100 the previous year.

Even with the incredible number of increased dividend actions, and sky-high earnings, many observers still were amazed at the breadth, resiliency and staying power of the rally. There was little doubt the mutual funds and pension funds —the so-called institutional traders—finally had ventured from the sidelines to do some bargain-hunting after months of abstinence. As economic consultant Robert Johnson noted," The funds are starting to commit more of their idle money."

But analysts also agreed the stock market had a long way to go before it could again be considered a "public market." The little guy appeared more interested in securities than he has all year—but he's not in "with both feet." Not yet.

Harry Laubscher of Walston & Co. reported, "We hear the phone ringing a little more often lately. But the man in the street is just nibbling." Ronald Cooper of W.E. Hutton agreed. "We've sensed a better feeling toward the market among our clients. Don't ask me why."

All of which failed to explain why investors suddenly would take such favorable notice of the flood of earnings and dividends, after Wall Street had largely ignored the first quarter results three months earlier. Monte Gordon of Dreyfus Corp. suggested while the market's atmosphere is by no means trouble-free, the pitfalls at least are clearer. "We have some definitions now," he said. "The market is pretty sure the Fed will remain restrictive, interest rates will go higher, inflation will persist."

Interest rates did go higher on Friday. Many of the nation's leading banks increased their prime lending rates by ¼-point to 8¾ per cent, but the market managed to shrug off this latest round of rises just as it had a similar rise to 8 ½ per cent nine days earlier.

U.S. firms 'frightened' by strike in Singapore

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Singapore's sizeable community of "offshore" foreign manufacturers had a scare late last May. United States companies which represent about one-third of that billion dollar operation —names like Gulf, General Electric, Fairchild and Texas Instruments— still are a little jittery.

Young Singapore and Malaysian women paid the equivalent of 29 cents per hour suddenly walked off their jobs as loom operators at a plastic factory owned and run by the Gulf Oil Corporation.

The strike hit all three shifts and shut down or slowed poduction for three or four days. Workers and college students gathered in front of the U.S. embassy to protest the personnel practices of the plant's management.

Tense moment

It was a tense moment for the dozens of American and other foreign manufacturers who have been bringing assembly line-type operations to Singapore since 1968. A lot of money and future planning are tied to the stability of that labor market.

Most of them asked: What next? A wider revolt, perhaps, centering on the great differences between U.S. and local wage scales, already an issue in U.S. labor circles.

It now seems there is small chance that will happen. The strike was snuffed out by the firing of most of the 90 girls involved. In any event, the issue wasn't low wages. It centered around increased work loads.

The rare instance of labor desiance within Singapore's closely controlled work force nevertheless focused attention on the multinational operators here, the wages they pay and the people they employ.

Rely on local people

Much of the activity is generated in goods and services —a substantial community of U.S. petroleum men live and work here. But the most visible and most reliant on local manpower among foreign businessmen are the offshore manufacturers.

The makers of cameras, electric shavers, tape recorders, electronic components, shirts and pants have poured into Singapore by the hundreds in the last five years.

The General Electric Company runs seven plants here. The big California based electronics firms—Faircild, Hewlett-Packard, National Semiconductors, Intersil — have plants. Texas Instruments has a Singapore plant for the manufacture of electronic components. The Sperry Rand corporation hires Singapore girls to assemble electric shavers.

Makes sound equipment

The big Philips Company of Holland, makers of sound equipment and other household hardware, assembles home appliances, radios and record players and runs a machine tool making plant in Singapore, the only one it has outside the Netherlands.

Assembly line wages in Singapore start at about 17 cents an hour, compared to minimums of $2 to 3 dollars an hour in the United States.

People on the production lines are mostly girls, aged 16 to their early 20's. Increasingly, Malaysians here on work permits rather than natives of Singapore are doing the work. They are overwhelmingly of Chinese background, and many are unable to speak English.

Secretarial and clerking jobs, unlike those in the West, pay better than all but the most skilled factory jobs.

Most Singapore factories are concentrated in one district, the industrial satellite community of Jurong. Formerly a swampland, Jurong today is the economic pride of the island state, consisting of more than 500 factories interlaced with parks, broad avenues, community dwelling and recreation centers. The laboring population of Jurong is about 52,000, going up to an estimated 75,000 by 1980.

Most Jurong workers live in government - built high - rise apartments. Tenants are a mixture of families and young men and women, usually single, who hold work permits from Malaysia.

People live, sometimes ingle workers 12 together, in two-room units equipped with simple formica-topped furnishings over bare concrete floors, Hallways are scarred with graffitti in three languages.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The confusion now surrounding the administration's economic policies suggests that a wait-and-see attitude remains prudent" for the Wall Street investor, says Standard G Poor's The Outlook. The letter says the uncertainty surrounding Phase IV "may keep the market hesitant for a while," although most stocks appear to have made liberal allowance for other investor concerns.

"For most wage earners in the lower-middle to upper brackets, a house represents fundamental protection against dollar erosion," Alexander Hamilton Institute says. Although houses have been undergoing rapid appreciation, the striking gains in house values over the last two years may diminish once inflation rates are brought under control, it adds. "But whether houses go up fast or slow," the institute says, "fairly stiff inflation is going to characterize the near and far term future, so a house is still an excellent investment."

'Flinty' role of 'McCloud' series carries far into J.D. Cannons life

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Most actors give the impression of being extroverts, show-offs or compulsive talkers, but not J. D. Cannon, the tough cop in the "McCloud" series who rides herd on Dennis Weaver.

He use his initials because when he began acting in New York City there was a comedian named Jackie Kannon. Rather than risk his full name, Jack Cannon, the actor decided to go with J.D.

Cannon and his wife, Alice—a playwright—have been married 26 years and are childless. Neither do they have any pets.

They live on a small (nine-acre) farm in Rosendale, N.Y. It is a two-hour drive from Manhattan between the hamlets of Kingston and New Paltz. The Cannons call the place a shack. Actually it is an ancient farm house in need of repairs.

It has one bedroom but Cannon plans to add two more to the never-ending building program he has set for himself.

They chose the bucolic area because of the beautiful countryside and the isolation from crowds of people. Still, when the Cannons want the distractions of the city they need only drive to their second home in Greenwich Village, which they do once or twice a month.

They keep the modest apartment in the event J.D. is cast in a Broadway play, a dim prospect but one which he holds dear nonetheless.

It is necesary for the Cannons to spend six months a year in Hollywood, which they do grudgingly, for his role in "McCloud." At one time they rented an apartment in Beverly Hills on an annual basis.

Now they just take a hotel-apartment for the time it takes to complete J.D's work in the NBC series.

Because he has long days with nothing to do while the show is filming, J. D. took up golf but doesn't enjoy it. He does not read anything but the newspapers and is disinclined to socialize in New York or Hollywood.

Often J.D. routes their journey through Salmon, Idaho, where he was raised in the mountain country. He would like some day to live in his native state "if rich Californians haven't bought up all the decent land and ruined it." His background in the Sawtooth Mountain area of Idaho is still evident in his choice of wardrobe: boots and blue jeans. The clothes stand him in good stead on his little farm where he works on drainage ditches as well as installing insulation in the new additions.

In Hollywood J.D. sees Dennis Weaver during their working hours but the two are not close friends and rarely get together away from the set at Universal Studios.

What gives J.D. the most pleasure in life? "Work," he says, unsmiling.

Star on the stage, less so in films

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Lois Nettleton's lengthy publicity biography does not reveal her age but an outline of her career in a theatrical who's who says she made her Broadway debut in 1949.

So she is long past the blooming starlet stage and finds herself in what can be an awkward time for an actress, typed somewhere between Raquel Welch and Helen Hayes.

"Well, I'm not exactly sure what the word means but I guess you could say I'm a star," she says with a gently exuberant smile. "When I do something, I'm in a starring role, anyway.

"Of course then the next thing is being a superstar and I'm not a superstar.

"But why not? I wouldn't mind being able to work where I want, when I want and with the people I want to work with, so I won't scoff at the idea."

Whatever her status in the murky heights of the entertainment world's star hierarchy, Miss Nettleton is just finishing a successful run that establishes her lofty status in the less flamboyant actress hierarchy. She has been playing Banche DuBois, in Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire," in a highly-praised production at the Vivian Beaumont Theater in Lincoln Center here.

Miss Nettleton has appeared in many films and on most of television's dramatic programs this side of the Watergate hearings as well as in sage productions of Shaw, Shakespeare, Giraudoux and other Williams plays. But she can be persuaded to stop saying she enjoys everything she does long enough to admit that, on the whole, she prefers the kind of acting that portraying Blanche involves.

"I enjoy working crossword puzzles very much," she says. "And a role like this is like a puzzle I really like to read a play and study and try to figure out what the character is all about, then convey that on the stage."

Born into a show family biz ("her mother admits," says her publicity, "that Lois, as very young infant, was practically brought up in a trunk"), wanted to be an actress.

"It's nice," she say, "to be doing something you have always wanted to do."

She began serious acting in Chicago, in high school and as a student at the Goodman Theatre. Then she made one of those fabled migrations to New York, armed, her biography says, "with nothing but 118 pounds of strong determination, unusual and compelling blue-green eyes, and enormous talent and about $120.

Her movie career thus far has been largely in B-plus sort of films ("Dirty Dingus Magee," "Come Fly with Me," "Mail Order Bride," most recently "The Honkers"). And her television appearances have been mostly as one of those ubiquitous "guest stars", though she did have her own short-llived series , A"cci, series, "Accidental Family", and has played Lady Macbeth and done a reading of John Donne poetry for the educational network.

"I think that more people have heard of Lois Nettleton every day and I like that," she says.

Art experts for galleries at colleges

CLAREMONT — Pomona and Scripps colleges have announced an agreement for the joint operation of their art galleries and the appointment of two art experts to supervise the galleries and art collections.

David W. Steadman, associate director of the Art Museum at Princeton University, will become director of the galleries of the Claremont Colleges and assistant professor of art at Pomona College.

Mrs. Ann LeVegue, who received her degrees from the University of Michigan, will be acting director of the Lang Gallery and curator of the Scripps Collection during the 1973-1974 fall semester. During the second semester she will also assist in the exhibition program at Pomona's Montgomery Gallery, continue the curatorial work with the Scripps collections, and assist Steadman in developing a joint plan for administering the galleries.

Steadman, a native of Honolulu, attended preparatory schools in Hawaii and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. He received his B.A. degree from Harvard College, an M.A.T. degree from Harvard University, an M.A. from UC Berkeley, and the M.F.A. from Princeton. He alos is a doctoral candidate at Princeton. In addition to his work for the Princeton Art Museum, Steadman was a lecturer and curatorial assistant for the Frick Collection in New York City.

The art department and gallery facilities at Pomona College are in two buildings, Rembrandt Hall, erected in 1914 and enlarged in 1937, and the Gladys Montgomery Art Center, which was first opened in 1958 and enlarged 10 years later.

The Scripps College art and gallery facilities are in the Florence Rand Lang Art Building and the Young Memorial Gallery.

SOUTH SHIELDS, England (UPI) — A man gave away 10 and five pound notes ($25 and $12.50) to strangers in the street, and so surprised five lucky people that they went to the police.

Police suspected the man might be the thief who stole $7,500 in 10 pound and five pound notes from a house in the town.

Southern California:

Hike in tall structures stem from rising values

LOS ANGELES — Rising land values which encourages more intensive use of urban land continues to be a factor in promoting development of high-rise buildings in Southern California, reports a bank official.

"Skyscrapers are a relatively new addition to the metropolitan areas of Southern California," said Paul O'Brien, vice president of Security Pacific Bank. "Until 1958, buildings were restricted to no more than 13 stories largely due to earthqualke considerations.

"Since the repeal of that ordinance, more than 200 new buildings of 13 or more stories and nearly 1,000 structures of five floors or more, have been built."

In 1972, Los Angeles County again dominated Southern California's high-rise construction, he added. It accounted for 57 of Southern California's 92 high-rise projects during the year.

This gave the county 80 per cent of the total high rise valuation, followed by San Diego County with 27 buildings and 15 per cent of the total value. Riverside and Orange counties combined to complete the total.

High rise construction, as a share of total building valuation, increased steadily from 4.7 per cent in 1960 to nearly 12 per cent in 1967. During the past five years, however, its share of total valuation has stabilized.

Other factors are also encouraging the development of high-rise structures for residential, commercial, as well as governmental and service uses," O'Brien said. Technological advances in earthquake-resistant construction have allowed skycraper construction in Los Angeles. Further, during the past decade, there has been a shifting in housing demand away from the more traditional single-family dwelling to multiple units. Both of these factors have made building up rather than out more advantageous.

The bank's research department has, for the past 13 years, conducted a survey of new high-rise buildings, those with at least five stories, in Southern California. For comparative purposes, the bank's economists divide high-rise buildings into three categories—residential, commercial and "other" which includes such structures as governmental buildings, churches, schools and hospitals.

"The trend toward new residential high-rise buildings has shown exceptional strength in recent years in Southern California," O'Bfrien stated. "Total permit valuation, number of new units,and share of total high-rise activity have all advanced rapidly. A record number of new residential high-rise buildings was authorized for construction in the area in 1972. The 33 residential structures authorized last year included 3,530 new living units. For comparative purposes, residential high-rise activity last year nearly matched the cumulative total for the two previous years," he added.

"Although it is true that high-rise residential sturctures represent a relatively small proportion of all multiple units authorized for construction, their share of the total is increasing rapidly."

The commercial sector accounts for the largest share of total high-rise activity, but that share has been dropping in the past two years from 80 per cent of total valuation in 1970 to 62 per cent last year. During 1972, building permits for commerical high-rise structures reached $381 million in Southern California—surpassing the previous all-time high of $355 million in 1970. Both average value and height per commercial structure increased in 1972, while the number of structures dropped to 46, the lowest level since 1968.

Office buildings account for the major share of high-rise commercial construction. It is interesting to note that several of the newer buildings are being built using a "total environment" concept. An office worker now can go to his office in the morning, park his car, have lunch in a plush restaurant, visit his broker, get a haircut, and do his shopping, all without leaving the building. This trend is evident in both the recently completed Atlantic Richfield twin 51-story towers in downtown Los Angeles and in the Security Pacific National Bank's 55-story headquarters building scheduled for completion in 1974.

ALTA LOMA — Sixty per cent of the homes in the Lewis Homes—Alta Loma residential development have been sold.

The two and three bedroom homes are located near Cielito Street and Beryl Avenue. A grand opening was held four weeks ago.

About 30 per cent of the homes sold were to veterans who qualified for a 4¼ per cent Cal Vet financing, said Richard A. Lewis, president of Lewis Homes of California.

The houses feature wood-burning fireplaces, cathedral ceilings and garden kitchens. The living rooms, hallways and master bedrooms have wall-to-wall carpeting.

The purchase price includes built-in dishwashers, self-cleaning ovens, ranges and disposal units.

Lewis also reported a large number of prosepective home buyers visiting the firm's new Presitige Series development in Upland.

The homes are located near San Antonio Avenue and 21st Street. The one and two story model homes feature air-conditioning, wet bars, sunken Roman tubs, custom-carved double entry doors and three car garages.

China trip postponed by Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger has postponed a trip to Peking until after the Aug. 15 deadline for the end of U.S. bombing of Cambodia, apparently to accommodate exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk, it was learned Friday.

Kissinger had planned to make his sixth trip to the China mainland in early August, but administration officials said it had been delayed. Kissinger told a reporter the date for his trip will be announced within the next two weeks.

New home warranty program developed

WASHINGTON —The British are lending expert assistance to America's organized housing indutry in the development of a home warranty insurance program.

Andrew Tait, director general of the National House Builders Registration Council of Great Britain, will serve as advisor to the National Association of Home Builders officers and executive committee.

The association, representing 71,000 member in the U.S, is in the process of developing such a buyer-builder protection plan.

An extensive NAHB study has found tht such a program would be feasible. Several committees have been working on complicated details to form such a plan.

Tait heads the private organization in Great Britain that certifies 99 per cent of all builders and developers, grants to buyers a 10-year insurance policy against damage from major structural defects and builder non-performance, and conciliates disputes between buyers and builders.

At the invitation of George C. Martin, NAHB president, Tait went over many of the details of the British experience with the NAHB board and its committees at the May meeting.

The board then approved a warranty program in principle and directed development of plans.

Tait again came to Washington this month for meetings with various committtees which are developing the procedures and documents necessary to implement such a program.

Some people have more than one story.

Not us. Our story is always the same at Orchard Lane: one-story condominium homes with two or three bedrooms—for people who don't like to climb stairs...who resent strangers dancing on their ceiling...who are bothered by the patter of little feet overhead...who want maximum quality throughout their home.

Love it and leave it. Take off whenever you like—for a weekend or an extended trip. With all exterior maintenance taken care of by the Homeowners Association, there are no bothersome chores to keep you home. But when you are home, there's much to enjoy at Orchard Lane. All windows are fully draped...many rooms are fully carpeted. There's a color-coordinated, built-in range with continuously self-cleaning oven...and an automatic dishwasher. Other features include cathedral ceilings, ash cabinets, Formica countertops, cultured marble pullmans...even fireplaces in some models. Then there's the swimming pool, the Jacuzzi, and...well, you'd better come see the rest. It's a real value, priced from Welcome to Uplander Village. Your condominium home is just about ready. All we need are your personal finishing touches to make your new home feel like home.

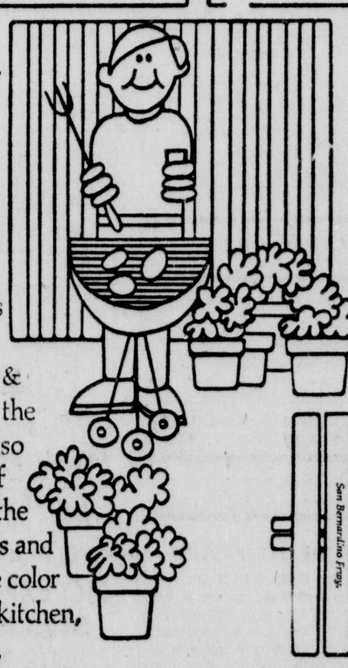
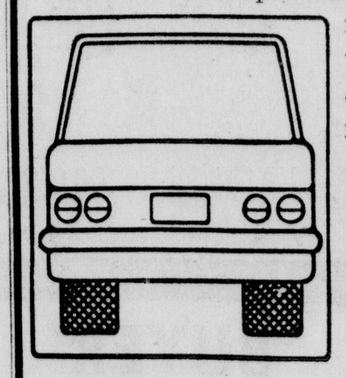
The landscaping is in, lush and blooming. There's a fenced-in swimming pool with cabana and restrooms. And enclosed garages. And every condominium home comes with a large, private enclosed patio. Big enough for furniture and a barbecue.

And that's just the outside. Inside there are two bedrooms and 1-3/4 baths. (That's 3/4 more bath than any other 2-bedroom condominium in Upland under $22,000.) The modern kitchen comes with a dishwasher, disposer and gas oven & range. You get to pick the appliance color. You also get to pick the color of the shag carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallway. As well as the color of the linoleum in the kitchen, dining area and baths.





And, there's air conditioning. Big 14,500 BTU air conditioning for those long summer days.

Another thing you'll like is our circulating hot water system. It guarantees that the water will be hot as soon as you turn it on. Not five minutes later.

Okay. What does all this luxury cost? Very little. You only need 5% down plus modest closing costs to move in. The loan is for 30 years. And the monthly payments are surprisingly low. Ask for a price list.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—Some of our school desks are slanted. When books are put on top they slide right off. I have discovered that putting an eraser underneath a book will keep it on my desk.—BETH

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for mothers whose children wear two-piece pajamas that snap together. I always snap each pair together after they are washed and before they're put away. There's no more searching for the right tops and bottoms.—KATHY

DEAR POLLY—I used a plastic garbage bag to make rain outfits for my lifelike dolls by cutting strips twice the length from neck to ankle. I then cut a slit so it can slip over the doll's head. To make rain hats I cut a square, place that on the doll's head and then put a rubber band around it to form a crown and brim. They look great.—LISA

DEAR POLLY—To prevent black marks left on my refrigerator shelves, I always put elastic bowl covers on the bottoms of drink cans that are to be stored there. You will never forget to put another can in place of the one you use. The cover is a reminder.—DELLA

DEAR POLLY—A well-known silver cream we use to clean our silverware is also great for cleaning and whitening white patent leather shoes, purses and other imitation or vinyl leathers. I advise against using it on baby's white shoes if he is at the shoe-chewing age. —VENETA

(Polly's Note: I rubbed the cream on with a paper towel, and then off and shine with a clean towel. No rinsing.)

DEAR POLLY—Tennis shoes with impressions on the rubber soles carry in so much dirt that we now leave a dry scrub brush at the back door. Everyone brushes the bottoms of their tennis shoes before coming into the house. The floors are much easier to keep clean.—SUZANNE

DEAR POLLY—Save an old toothbrush for your little girl to use as a hairbrush for her doll.—SHERRIE

DEAR POLLY—When I plan to serve soft drinks at a large party there usually is no room in the refrigerator to ice them. I put about an inch of water in my washing machine and put the bottles in it with a lot of ice. This also is more convenient. The refrigerator does not have to be opened and closed so many times.--MARY T.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

DIANA BORNEMAN, ANTIGO, WI, ASKS:

"DO FISH HAVE EARS?"

YES. FISH HAVE EARS, BUT A FISH'S EARS ARE BURIED DEEP IN ITS HEAD. PROBABLY, HOWEVER, A FISH CANNOT HEAR WELL AT ALL. FISH HAVE A SPECIAL SENSE TO HELP THEM "HEAR" MOVEMENTS IN THE WATER. A ROW OF SMALL PORES CALLED A "LATERAL LINE" RUNS ALONG THE SIDE OF A FISH'S BODY FROM HEAD TO TAIL. LATERAL-LINE SENSE HELPS THE FISH FEEL VIBRATIONS IN THE WATER, SUCH AS THE APPROACH OF ANOTHER FISH OR THE FOOTSTEPS OF A FISHERMAN ON THE BANK OF A STREAM. PERHAPS YOUR FOOTSTEP IS MORE LIKELY TO FRIGHTEN AWAY A FISH THAN IS YOUR VOICE.

What's a Little Family War When There's a Movie to Make?

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CURT GOWDY, television sportscaster

If you had your way, what changes would you make in football?—Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Football should be football, not some English soccer kicker running out in a tuxedo and kicking three points. I would have football's extra-point kick abolished. Instead, have the ball put on the three-yard line with the option of running or passing for the point-after-touchdown. And I'd have kickoffs moved back to the 30-yard line, so we can see the ball run back. Guys like Jan Stenerud are kicking it into the end zone every time. The same goes for punt returns. Linemen on the punting team shouldn't be able to leave the line of scrimmage until the ball is kicked.

FOR HOPE LANGE

Dick Van Dyke always seems so good-natured and friendly. How is he to work with?—B. K., San Gabriel, Calif.

● Dick is one of the loveliest, most unegotistical, most talented men I know. If I have a gripe, it is that Dick is too patient. If something is not right, he holds back on saying anything. He struggles on and on, trying to make it work out. Then, just before we shoot, there are a lot of changes, which add extra pressure before a show.

FOR SEN. CHARLES H. PERCY (R-Ill.)

With the price of gold going up and up, what is the Government doing with its holdings?—A. Penn, St. Joseph, Mo.

● The U.S. holds 276 million ounces of gold. So on paper, we're the biggest gainer from the wild speculation. But do you imagine that the price would stay at $120 an ounce if the U.S. sold any of its gold? We should break the backs of the gold speculators by selling some of our gold stocks.

FOR ALISTAIR COOKE, journalist and TV host

FOR MRS. PAT NIXON

Why do you always wear long-sleeved dresses or suits?—Mrs. W. E. Nothwehr, Albert Lea, Minn.

● I prefer the look of elegance of a long sleeve. For my official duties, I find that suits are the most practical and comfortable style of clothes to wear. But I do have daytime and evening wear with short sleeves and I like to relax in pants outfits. I also wear slacks at Camp David and at home in San Clemente.

FOR VALERIE HARPER,
Rhoda Morganstern of the "Mary Tyler Moore Show"

You play a Jewish lady on the "Mary Tyler Moore Show." Are you Jewish?—N. J., Hackensack, N.J.

● No, my mother's maiden name was McConnell. Her ancestors are Canadian, Irish, Scotch and Welsh. And on the Harper side, they are French, English and, according to my sister, American Indian. But I think her addition of American Indian came after she saw Jeff Chandler (who was Jewish) play Cochise.

FOR MICHAEL CAINE, star of "Sleuth"

In the cops and robbers movies you've been in you've run around and been generally athletic. Are you good at athletics?—F. L. Worth, Laramie, Wyo.

● I never do any sports. I completely and utterly lack any sense whatsoever of competition — professionally, socially, privately. So there's no point in my competing in anything. I'll tell you what I do like—pin tables (pinball machines, you call them here in America). I'm very good at that — up to Olympic standards, if they ever put pinball in the Olympics.

FOR SYBIL LEEK

What is a "witch mark"? You mention one in your book, "Diary of a Witch."—Lynne Anne Quackenbos, Nanuet, N.Y.

● It's something like a birthmark, appearing on the shoulder or the lumbar region of the back. It's usually raised, and quite small, but is often recognizable as a distinct object, such as the foot of a bird, or two fish. Families of witches often have the same witch mark in each generation, in the same place on the body.

FOR JANET LEIGH

I read the other day that your two children from your marriage to Tony Curtis were living with him and his wife instead of with you. Why?—Penelope Tolker, St. Louis, Mo.

● We have two daughters, Kelly, 16, and Jamey, 14½. Kelly has never really lived with her dad, and she wanted to stay with him for a while. So she is now with Tony and his wife. For how long, I don't know. She may come back and stay with my husband and me, or she may want to be on her own. But Jamey is living with me.

FOR HERMAN RAUCHER, author

In your book, "Summer of '42," were Hermie's experiences related to your own? If not, how did you get the idea for the book?—Tom Lawrence, New Albany, Ind.

● "Summer of '42" was totally autobiographical, written primarily in memory of my good friend, Oscy, who was killed in Korea on my 24th birthday. The screenplay was written first, in two weeks, as pure catharsis. With the film finished, Warner Bros. suggested that I write a book to help promote the film. The book's release preceded that of the film and it became a best seller. Now, with the success of both book and film, I have a new guilt to juggle—for all of it was the indirect result of the death of a very brave and beautiful and nuttily marvelous friend.

Bob Roberts is the entertainment director at one condominium. "People come to Florida to live, not to die," he says.

Mrs. Elanda Smith is the largest realtor in Hallandale. She feels today's young families "prefer clustered living."

The Buy-Your-Own Apartment Boom: Facts and People Behind "the Dream"

The condominium phenomenon is sweeping the country, of course, but on that glittering South Florida strip called the Gold Coast, it is staggering, astonishing, amazing—all the adjectives an adman can assemble. And even these fall short of the gasps that greet the endless rows of huge stone towers as tourists drive south on Highway A1A between Palm Beach and Hollywood, Fla.

There are high-rises, waterfront mid-rises, golf-course complexes with garden apartments, villas and town houses—all being sold almost as quickly as they are built. The buyers are retirees, semi-retirees and "snowbirds," a Florida word for people who have decided to ditch snowbound hometowns for a place in the sun.

One president of a booming condominium complex, Larry Wilkov, agrees wholeheartedly that Florida is the world capital of condominium construction, and well he might. His complex, Hemispheres in Hallandale, has 1,300 apartments and more than 4,000 residents.

"This is a city in itself," he says. "We have middle-aged working people, retirees and just people who find our apartments less costly than maintaining a home. Oceanfront land is too costly for one-family homes. Condominiums put oceanfront living within the means of the average person."

But how average is average? The prices start at $12,000 for a one-bedroom apartment that certainly will not face the ocean. Such apartments are sold, for the most part, to senior citizens of moderate means. (Studio apartments simply don't exist.) For oceanfront living, buyers have to set their sights at $60,000 or above—and they can pay as much as $150,000 for a three-bedroom apartment in one of the newer luxury buildings. The average price is probably $29,000 to $39,000 for an apartment facing the Intracoastal Waterway.

Semi-retirees and snowbirds are touted on the economic advantage of buying a second home for vacation use, with a view to eventual permanent residence. Security is also sold as an advantage of "clustered" condominium living.

But everything isn't always peaches and cream. Not right away, at least. A South Florida psychiatrist, Dr. Gilbert H. Berken, says: "These retirees are separating from their total social background, from their positions of power in business and from a lifetime of accumulated interests. They are basically a pioneering people making a total break with the past for a better way of life.

"The first six months to a year is the critical period in adapting to the tremendous change. Most accept it, but many are not flexible and many fail. No matter how beautiful or how costly the condominium, they cannot enjoy it.

"Condominiums are great equalizers. For instance, an ex-truck driver and an ex-lawyer become neighbors joined in cooperative ownership of a property. Titles become unimportant. But condominium living does have a certain degree of regimentation that some individualists can't tolerate."

A new social life is also part of the package when retirees buy into the condominium concept. For these new buildings quickly establish a form of self-government, form their own social clubs and entertainment committees. Each building caters to the emotional needs for companionship and provides such things as art, craft and language classes; cookouts and cocktail parties; golf, fishing and shuffleboard tournaments; movies, lectures and nonstop card-playing.

In the giant complexes, professional entertainment directors schedule activities all day, seven days a week, all of which led one resident to observe: "We're living in an adult camp."

At Hemispheres, Wilkov's ocean - to - Intracoastal - Waterway four-tower complex, entertainment director Bob Roberts schedules activities for all ages —teenagers to senior citizens. "People come to Florida to live, not to die," he says.

Roberts is a former professional athlete and dancer who was once crowned Mambo King at New York's Carnegie Hall. He and his wife plan sports events for the wide-ranging indulgence of every resident—basketball, badminton, shuffleboard, bocci, handball, bowling, boating, dart-throwing and

But Think Twice Before You "Come on Down"!

Florida, arch-rival of Southern California and for years the symbol of Chamber of Commerce boosterism, is finally having second thoughts. The "Come on down!" commercials have abated. Occasionally, the mood is also one of "Go on back!"

Why? Consider these facts:

- Florida's population has nearly tripled in 25 years. One-third of that population lives in the strip from Palm Beach to Fort Lauderdale to Miami. And people are continuing to pour into Florida—at the staggering rate of 3,000 to 4,000 a day!
- Urban ills are becoming a nightmare. During one week last spring, Dade County experienced a typhoid outbreak at a migrant-labor camp, a contaminated-water scare at Miami Beach, and a huge fish kill in Biscayne Bay. Power failures on successive days blacked out most of Miami.
- Construction has taken place at a mind-boggling rate. Building permits in Broward County (Hollywood and Fort Lauderdale) rose from $600 million in 1970 to about a billion dollars in 1972. Last year in Dade County, new-building permits were obtained for 41,000 apartment units and 11,000 single-family dwellings.

swimming meets. The Robertses are not content with helping only those who come to them. "This area is full of widows who are recluses. They are afraid of their new existence, but we seek them out. We involve them in activities," Roberts says. "We even have a special club for unattached women. If anyone feels neglected or alone, it has to be his own fault."

It was Roberts who introduced big-time show business into the "condominium circuit." "For a $2.50 ticket we bring names into our own theater," he says. "All people have to do is walk out of their apartments into our oceanfront auditorium. No traffic or parking worries." Some of the stars he helped bring in are Jack Carter, Dick Shawn, Marty Allen, Jan Murray, Allan Jones, Henny Youngman and Cab Calloway.

"Physicians in this community should be alerted to the manifestations of depression in the senior-citizen group so that proper referral can be made," says psychiatrist Dr. Berken. Dr. Berken conducts senior-citizen rap sessions that he uses as an inexpensive method of therapy. Dr. Berken believes that the life-style of people in a condominium is determined by their skill in selecting their own building—choosing an environment conducive to their enjoyment. "They have entered into a micro-community with its own government and social activities," he says. "A lot has to do with the quality of leadership that determines the function of the condominium."

"Condominiums are great equalizers. For instance, an ex-truck driver and an ex-lawyer become neighbors joined in cooperative ownership of a property. Titles become unimportant."

The condominium boom started about eight years ago, in 1965. Toward the end of 1972, there were about 85,000 occupied units between Broward and Palm Beach counties, with hundreds more in various stages of planning and construction. According to the Florida Condominium Commission, there are more than 175,000 units in the state, most of them in Dade County (Miami) and Broward County (Fort Lauderdale).

Despite higher construction costs, apartments, villas and town houses are being snapped up at incredible dollar volume – particularly in the country club-golf course concepts. Fort Lauderdale's Inverrary, home of the Jackie Gleason Golf Classic, had a dollar sales volume of $15.2 million in 1972. Palm Aire Country and Golf Club in Pompano Beach had $12 million in sales. These two finished the year at the head of the pack.

Hallandale's largest realtor is Elanda Smith, and she is a specialist in condominium resales. People used to buy apartments as an investment, she says. "But now people want to be able to travel, to close their apartment doors and not worry. Also, there are the young singles or young families who can put ten percent down and then make monthly payments that don't exceed what they ordinarily would pay anyway for rent. Young families prefer clustered living. They prefer belonging to a cultural and social group, rather than just being a house number on a street."

While young families can buy condominiums with ten percent down, many older buyers prefer to pay all cash. Mrs. Smith says it's common for a buyer in the 70-year bracket to secure a 25-year mortgage, mostly on lower and medium-priced units. "But the big-money buyers often come in with all cash."

Is Summer Relaxation Making You Look Older?

For months you looked forward to the relaxation of summer. Swimming and picnicking with the children. Weekend trips with your husband. Lying in the sun to unwind totally, body and soul. The kind of peace and relative quiet that would help you slow down a little from life's hectic pace and enjoy yourself with your family. And of course, you hoped that summer relaxation would show itself in your appearance, making you look less harried and thus a little younger.

Instead, you find that summer is taking its toll. The sun, the wind-blown sand, the sudden changes of temperature as you go from searing sun to air-conditioned restaurants and stores, all are causing complexion dryness. The dryness, which accents lines and wrinkles, can make you look decidedly older. Just exactly the opposite result of what you hoped from summer's relaxation.

Many young-looking women in countries around the world have discovered that they cannot get through the summer beautifully without their beauty secret. This summer, share their secret, a unique beauty blend containing tropical moisturizing oils and natural moisture. This world-famous fluid is known in the United States as Oil of Olay moisturizing lotion. The remarkable blend penetrates the surface layer of the skin quickly. There it works with nature to ease away the dryness that can make you look older, and helps maintain the vital oil-moisture balance, an essential element needed for skin to look as young as possible. Oil of Olay softens and smooths summer-ravaged skin, helping to replace the natural moistness robbed by summer weather. The remarkable beauty blend sets up a protective barrier to keep nature's own moisture from being stolen by harsh summer weather.

During most of the year, a morning and night application of Oil of Olay is enough to keep your skin younger-looking. But during the summer months, you may find your skin needs more frequent pampering. Whenever your complexion feels dry or taut or slightly rough to the touch, lavish on extra Oil of Olay, no matter what the time of day or night.

Never forget to apply the unique beauty blend before you go to bed each night, to do its lovely work quietly for hours while you sleep. And again in the morning, whether or not you wear makeup. As a makeup base, Oil of Olay leaves no sticky after-feel, so your cosmetics go on smoothly, without streaking or discoloring. And even if you prefer to go barefaced in the summer, skin-loving Oil of Olay leaves your skin with a moist glow as it pampers your complexion for hours. You will find this world-renowned beauty blend at your drugstore.

Summer Beauty Hints

After sun-bathing, take a tepid tub to remove your sun-protective lotion. Then generously smooth on Oil of Olay, paying particular attention to those areas most easily dried out by the sun—the skin around your eyes and mouth.

* * *

Even if you have been an Oil of Olay® user throughout the year, remember that more of your skin is exposed to the weather during these summer months. Soothe on the beauty blend wherever low-cut dresses, shorter sleeves and sports clothes have left your delicate skin naked to the ravages of summer dryness.

Ryan O'Neal and His Child-Star Daughter Tatum:

"We've Had Our War... But Now It's Over"

Steve Schapiro/Transworld Features

Ryan O'Neal (with Tatum): "I don't need to be in 'Cosmopolitan.' Even the 'Life' interview turned out badly. They called me a brash young man. And when I did a piece for 'Esquire,' they killed me all over again. I don't really know why I sit here with you."

When I arrived at his two-story beach house, Ryan O'Neal was playing Frisbee with a friend. He was in a good mood. The night before I had seen his latest film, "Paper Moon," in which he gave the best performance of his career—yet was sometimes upstaged by his nine-year-old daughter Tatum.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Did you suggest that your daughter be in the film with you?

RYAN: No. Peter [director Peter Bogdanovich] suggested it. I wasn't at all sure she should do it. First of all, I was worried that she wouldn't do a good job. It was the first thing she's ever done. She'd only been on one film set—when I did "Peyton Place" years ago. I'd intentionally kept her away from sets until then. Also, if she hadn't done a good job it would have been a reflection on me since she's my daughter.

FW: What effect did it have on your relationship with her?

RYAN: We had a terrific war on our hands, and I'm glad it's over. Like she couldn't remember her lines—when she didn't want to remember them. And she had no discipline whatsoever. When we did night shooting, she wanted to go to sleep instead. I'd tell her she couldn't sleep, she'd have to do that during the day. And she'd say, "Well, I can't sleep during the day because it's light outside!" And I'd say, "Here, drink some coffee. That'll keep you awake."

FW: What was her biggest problem?

RYAN: Some last-minute changes that had to be made in the script. There's a scene where she stands at the desk and picks up a box of candy. A couple of things were changed in it. Initially she was supposed to ask for Dentyne chewing gum, but because we couldn't get any it was changed to Juicy Fruit. And the girl's hair wasn't blond, it was

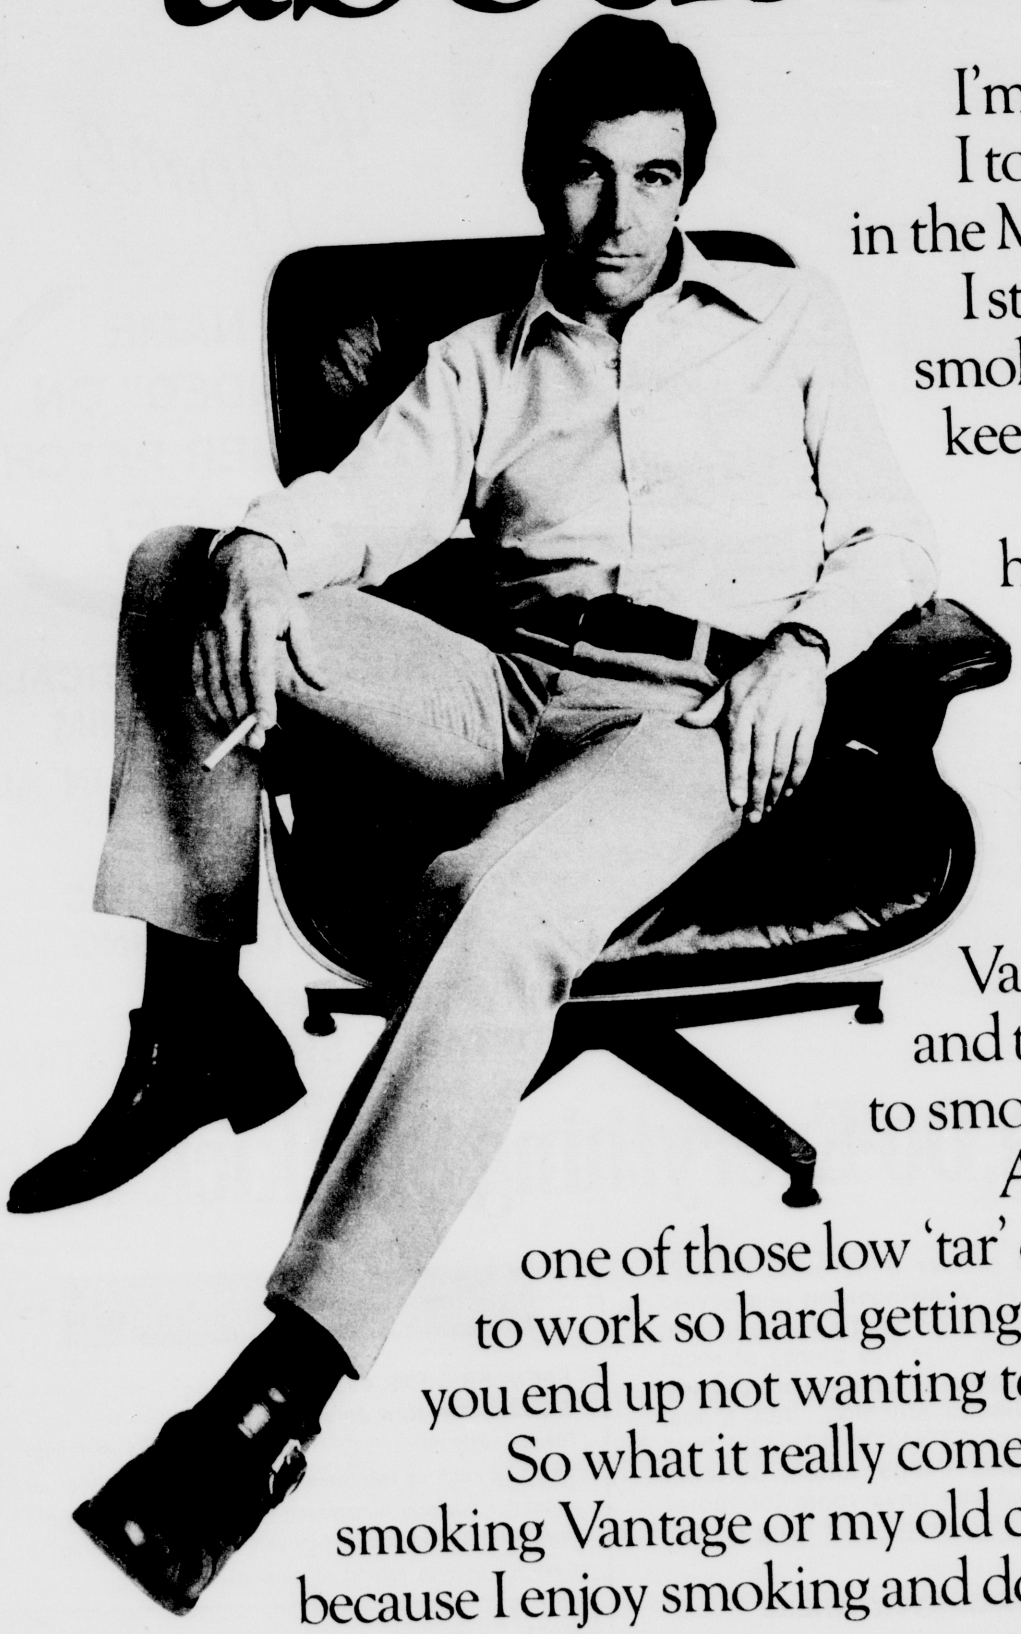
What I'm doing about smoking.



I'm smoking Vantage.

I took up smoking more than 15 years ago in the Marine Corps.

I started smoking then because I wanted to. I smoke now because I want to. And I intend to keep on smoking as long as I want to.

But that doesn't make me bury my head in the sand and ignore the stuff in the papers about smoking.

My attitude is, OK, if high 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes are a concern to me, I'd better do something about it.

So I did. I started to smoke Vantage. Vantage gives me the flavor of my old brand, and that takes some doing, because what I used to smoke was way up there in 'tar' and nicotine.

And Vantage is not one of those low 'tar' cigarettes you have to work so hard getting some taste out of, you end up not wanting to smoke it.

So what it really comes down to for me is smoking Vantage or my old cigarettes, because I enjoy smoking and don't want to give it up.

red, and she had to comment on it. For this particular scene we had to do 44 takes. There was another scene that ran for seven pages and had to be done in one take because we were riding in a car. We had to do that one over and over again.

FW: How do you feel about some critics saying Tatum stole the picture?

RYAN: She's an O'Neal. If the picture is stolen by an O'Neal, that's good.

FW: Has the film changed Tatum in any way?

RYAN: Yes, it's made her more poised.

FW: But do you find her harder to handle?

RYAN: On the contrary. I find her easier to handle because, as I said, we've been through our war together.

FW: You've been married twice, to two actresses. Do you think it is possible for an actress and an actor to be married?

RYAN: Of course. I was.

FW: But it didn't last, did it?

RYAN: How long is a marriage supposed to last? Mine lasted four years. I think that's pretty good. Besides, it wasn't the career pressures that broke it up. If anything, careers will enhance a marriage.

FW: Was there any problem because your wives' careers moved up faster than yours did when you were married?

FW: The advantages of having done "Love Story" are obvious. Were there any disadvantages?

FW: No complaints?

RYAN: Well, I didn't get paid very much: $25,000. And that was after I got $125,000 for the previous picture. Actually, I don't think anybody realized that my character in "Love Story" was just an extension of Rodney Harrington in "Peyton Place."

FW: After you did "Love Story," Bob Hope introduced you to the Academy Award audience as "Hollywood's Leading Boy Actor." Did you mind?

RYAN: I hated it. I like Hope, but I resented it because I worked hard on the Academy Award show.

FW: Most leading men today have a kind of rugged look. Do you think your handsomeness is a detriment?

RYAN: I don't like the way I look. And I've lost a lot of critics because of my looks. Pauline Kael won't like me no matter what I do. When she reviewed "The Thief Who Came to Dinner," she singled me out especially for criticism. She said I looked too easy, too relaxed for someone of my age, that I had too much confidence in myself.

FW: Do you?

RYAN: Well [grinning] . . . she may be right.

FW: Why do you dislike interviews?

RYAN: They don't turn me on because they don't turn out well. When "Peyton Place" was still on the air, the studio lined up innumerable interviews. I did them all. Even the fan magazines. I allowed the writers and photographers into my home. And some of the stuff that came out was terrible! I felt the only way to avoid it was to stop giving interviews. I don't need to be in "Cosmopolitan." Even the "Life" interview turned out badly. They called me a brash young man. And when I did a piece for "Esquire," they killed me all over again. I don't really know why I sit here with you.

FW: Why do you?

RYAN: To get Steve [publicist Steve Jaffe] off my back.

FW: How good a fighter are you?

RYAN: Not bad. Except I once boxed Burt Reynolds. He hit me so hard that one of my ears almost fell off. Then I fought with Joe Frazier once, and he hit me so hard both of my ears almost fell off. Someday I'd like to do a fight story in a picture. In fact, we're working on one.

FW: Talking about Burt, would you pose in the nude like he did?

RYAN: No, I wouldn't. They asked me. Actually they asked Clint Eastwood first, then me, then Burt. But it wouldn't have worked for me. It did for Burt. His expression was just right. Like it was all a joke. It did a lot for him.

AMAZING NEW ISOMETRIC BEAUTY BAND

LIFTS YEARS OFF YOUR FACE!

These photographs are completely unretouched.

Harper's Bazaar

Lauded by Harper's Bazaar, "Preserving you . . . a new device that helps you attain a longer lasting youthful look . . ."

How would you like to give yourself an instant face lift . . . see sagging skin, lines around your mouth, bags under the eyes and telltale crows feet smooth out as if some miracle of youth had suddenly touched your face? Sound too good to be true? Not at all! Because Mark Traynor, the man behind a thousand beautiful faces, has created a real beauty coup — an isometric beauty band you can wear all day . . . or just a few minutes before bedtime . . . that literally lifts your face . . . restores that smooth youthful look and at the same time helps hold muscles and tissues so that your face looks younger and firmer.

Wear the look of youth as you build back beauty into your features

The Isometric Beauty Band, developed by one of today's most famous TV Makeup artists, works two ways: as a beauty lift, and as a facial exerciser. When you wear it during the day it firms up facial muscles, takes up the slack in the contours of your face, widens your eyes, and gives your face a zesty, vibrant look.

A Simple Band of Beauty that Works Isometrically

It's really all so simple! You merely slip it on, fit it to your head size, then wear it as a stylish headband. Or you can wear it under a wig! From the moment you put it on, it begins to work its magic. Wearing the band draws the facial muscles upward smoothing out the contours of the face. Utterly amazing results will be yours from the moment you put it on.

Yes, You Can Live Alone Without Being Lonely (I Know, Because I'm Doing Just That)

By Harriet La Barre

"It is... harder to be lonely when you're curled up cozily in a soft chair drinking tea out of a Wedgwood cup ($2.50 secondhand) ...than if you're standing in the kitchen gloomily sipping out of a chipped mug...."

Tyrone Dukes

Harriet La Barre is the author of "A Life of Your Own" (McKay, $6.95). She is familiar to FAMILY WEEKLY readers as the author of the column "The Diet Watch."

"Tell me," the radio interviewer in Miami asks, "is there a best way to get rid of loneliness?" And in Boston, a TV interviewer says, "What about when you come home, and there you are, looking at four walls?" And in Chicago: "You mean you're never screamingly lonely?"

They all ask. They ask because I am a widow who's been living alone ever since my husband died of a heart attack seven years ago, and because I wrote a book about how to live alone successfully, happily.

Lots of people assume that loneliness has to go with living alone, the way bread goes with butter. And true enough, I know many divorcees, widows, separated people and other live-aloners who are miserable: This divorced friend stuffs herself at the refrigerator; that separated friend escapes into depressing little sexual adventures. Plenty of live-aloners brood out of windows on sunny Sundays, feeling helplessly alone. Dozens. And so, for a while, did I.

But somewhere around the spring of 1967, that struck me as pretty ridiculous—a waste, what with all the possibilities of enjoyable living. Was all that loneliness really necessary? I wanted to become part of the river again, instead of watching from the banks. And I did. So now, "No," I say to the interviewer, "I'm not lonely because. . . ." Because what?

Because, for one thing, I stopped waiting around to be asked to dinner occasionally by married friends who viewed me as a third wheel, an outsider. Instead, I deliberately formed my own enjoyable group of friends: single friends, men and women, to share a meal with, go to movies with, walk with, share interests with. Let the married couples be the outsiders!

I knew a few single people, but only casually. Meeting people wasn't difficult. I met plenty at the magazine where I then worked; and I discovered that if you take a course in something that interests you—whether poetry, Chinese cooking with a wok, or politics—you can't help but meet people who are on your particular wavelength. But making friends was harder. I found I had to take the initiative—most people would rather die than admit they don't have bushels of friends. I didn't want to admit it either. But I did take the first step: I entertained people.

The very word, entertaining, was a chiller—until I realized that giving new acquaintances a cup of tea was "entertaining" them; and that if you added a tunafish sandwich and it was on Saturday noon, you'd given them lunch—which is nice to do before a movie, and not that expensive. I finally worked up to inviting a crowd of ten to my 3½-room apartment. They were all people I honestly liked—why ask anybody else? The hardest thing was to stop worrying that people might decline—but I discovered that they're delighted to come. I also found they're happy with spaghetti and inexpensive wine. Or chili, crusty bread and beer. It's the companionship, not the food, that people come for. And they, in turn, invite me back.

Holidays were a problem. Will I spend Christmas alone? was a bloodfreezer. So I established a rule: If nobody invites me anywhere by December 5, I invite eight or ten single people for a Christmas Day buffet.

Empty weekends have been another menace. But the secret of happy weekends, I learned, was simple: Plan activities ahead. That's vital. So for a dollar I bought a calendar with the whole month on each page, and I began making dates and plans with friends for weekends ahead.

Since I'm the type who can turn into a jellyfish if I don't have the backbone of a structured day, I also schedule daily activities: so many hours for work, so many for a personal study program. I even schedule hours for lazy, luxurious grooming. With a structured day like that, it's almost impossible to be lonely.

But I also prize aloneness: the privacy to reflect, to listen to music, to grow, to become. To have the simple joy of reading a book. I think it's a mistake to believe that aloneness must necessarily be loneliness and that you should do something to "take you out of yourself." Why not, instead, occasionally go deeper into yourself? Sophisticated aloneness is what I'm talking about; it's even good to have a project like learning a language or to appreciate different kinds of architecture. In my case, my interest this season is Greek mythology. Time and privacy are vital to me because of it, and there are certain evenings that I defend fiercely as a tiger against telephone conversations, dates or other interruptions.

I also insist that it's harder to be lonely living in a home or apartment that has charm and comfort, a place that's a delight to come home to. Having such an apartment doesn't have to ruin your budget, either; you can create plenty of charm with paint, inexpensive fabric and contact wallpaper. One of my best anti-loneliness investments was deciding that only the most attractive living was good enough for me: this kind of luscious pink cushion, even if I had to make it myself; that thick bedroom rug, even if it took a billion (it seemed) green stamps to get it. It is also harder to be lonely when you're curled up cozily in a soft chair drinking tea out of a Wedgwood cup ($2.50 secondhand) and reading an absorbing book from the library, than if you're standing in the kitchen gloomily sipping out of a chipped mug and with only yesterday's newspaper at hand. Eating well, I find, in comfort and warmth, also does a lot to dissolve loneliness.

We all need love, and those warm friendships provide much of it. Meantime, having an interesting, aesthetically satisfying full life makes you more likely to attract the romance . . . and, when you do, to decide with better balance whether that particular love is worthwhile or not. So: "No," I say to the interviewer, "No, I am not lonely, because. . . ." fw

No woman ever says no to Winchester.

Take a puff. Blow in her ear. And she'll follow you anywhere. Because one whiff of Winchester's sexy aroma tells her everything she ever wanted to know about you. But was afraid to ask. It tells her you're a man, but a man of taste. A taste for mildness. Lightness. She takes a puff. Winchester's filtered smoothness tells her it's not a cigarette. Not just another little cigar. It's a whole 'nother smoke. And she knows that you know: where there's smoke, there's fire.

Winchester. It's a whole 'nother smoke.

Fleas: How to Kill Them Before They Get on Your Dog

Warm weather is flea time for Bowser. Inasmuch as fleas hop around a lot, depositing eggs in grass, Bowser's bed and your carpet, it isn't enough to deflea your pup. After you have taken care of him with either an Aerosol spray or a dip, go after the house and yard. It's the only way to break up the life cycle of Mr. Flea. Give Bowser's bed and/or doghouse a thorough housecleaning. After you have scrubbed and vacuumed, spray the whole area with a nontoxic insecticide. (Your veterinarian will give you the name of one that is safe around pets.) Be sure to get into the dark crevices—that's where the flea breeds. Your carpet may have to be cleaned professionally. Keep tabs on Bowser for a stray latecomer and spray frequently. Stand him on newspapers while you're applying the spray, comb out the dead fleas, and then burn the papers.

A Light Rice Dish For Summer

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares Florentine Rice Quiche. "I first tasted this recipe at a friend's home," she says. "She served it in thin wedges as an hors d'oeuvre. It was delicious! But I suspected that a larger wedge would make an excellent main dish for light meals. So I tried it on my family one hot evening—and it was a success!"

A tasty new way to serve spinach and rice is this recipe for Florentine Rice Quiche. Florentine always means "with spinach."

FLORENTINE RICE QUICHE

2 cups cooked rice
⅔ cup finely grated Swiss cheese
1 pkg. (10 ozs.) chopped spinach
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
½ pt. (1 cup) cottage cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
6 tablespoons heavy cream or evaporated milk
3 drops hot-pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon nutmeg

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Grease a 9-inch pie pan.

2. In medium bowl beat 1 egg. Add rice and Swiss cheese; stir well. Spread rice mixture evenly in prepared pie pan, making a crust. Refrigerate until ready to fill and bake.

3. Cook spinach as directed on package. Pour into strainer and press out all liquid. Add butter to drained spinach, set aside.

4. In medium bowl beat remaining 3 eggs, stir in salt, cottage cheese, Parmesan cheese, heavy cream, hot-pepper sauce and nutmeg. When well blended, stir in spinach.

5. Pour filling into prepared rice crust. Bake for 30-35 minutes, or until firm.

6. To serve, cut into wedges.

Makes 6-8 servings

Make-ahead notes: 1. Prepare crust early in day and refrigerate until needed. 2. Prepare filling ahead and refrigerate until needed. 3. Assemble pie just before baking. We suggest this make-ahead method to help prevent a soggy crust.

Doctors' Tests Show How You Can Actually Help Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to Inflammation and Infection. Also Get Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Rectal Itching and Pain in Such Tissues.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

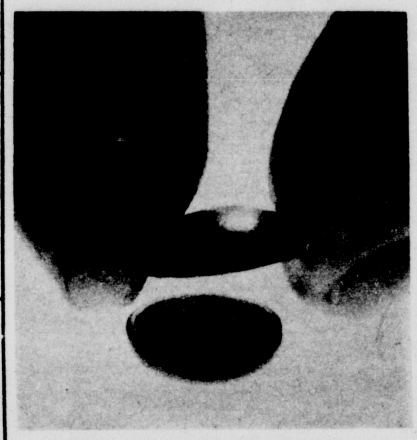
(It's made with smaller doses of two laxatives.)



Some single ingredient laxatives work on the "Sunday punch" theory. One big dose of a strong laxative that can knock your system for a loop.

Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are made up of two separate laxatives that combine the surety of a strong laxative with the gentleness of a mild one.

Together they help ease you to regularity without sudden urgency upset.

And because the dosage is pre-measured, Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are thorough and so predictable you can almost set your watch by them. Take two tablets at bedtime. Get a good night's sleep. And you can expect to be back on schedule in the morning.

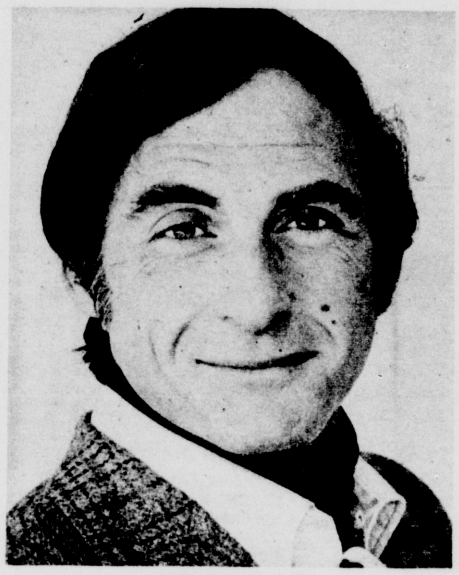
What in the World!



SID CAESAR
His hobby is war

QUOTE: Surprisingly, Sid Caesar's prime interest in life—aside from his work and his family—is war! "I read a lot and mostly books on war. It holds a tremendous fascination for me. I also have a terrific gun collection. What is there about war that fascinates me? You learn history from it. And about people. You begin to realize that while man has grown tremendously in his technology, he's never taken advantage of learning from the human side of it. The suffering. The misery. It interests me on various levels—like Stonewall Jackson using the same tactics first employed by Hannibal; technology and how it grew to the point where man has created the ultimate weapon; and most of all, how little man has learned about avoiding wars after having been involved in them throughout history." UNQUOTE.

Do young children have ESP? "All living organisms apparently have a capacity to sense certain kinds of signals sent out by other forms of life. These signals are most clearly felt in danger situations. In one plant experiment, a polygraph recorded a response from a common houseplant at the exact moment when some live shrimp were dropped into a pot of boiling water three rooms away.... The degree to which children possess this capacity is not really known, but it is probably a factor in the child's ability to know what the mother is thinking and feeling in many situations. Because language is a more efficient means of communication, this capacity becomes very much less used in later life, as do touch, sight, and sound methods. If you are angry or sad, children will almost certainly know it even if you try to hide it from them." From "Discipline Without Tyranny," by Loren Grey (Hawthorn Books, $4.95).

CINDY AND BILL SCHART
They wrote a letter

"I didn't mean to make this such a long letter," Cindy Schart wrote FAMILY WEEKLY, "but I did want you to know that it was your article that brought us our son, David Matthew Schart. I read in FAMILY WEEKLY [July 23, 1972] about a Vietnamese child adopted by a couple in the U.S. through Friends of the Children of Vietnam. My husband Bill, just returned from Vietnam and about to return to graduate school, and I, a teacher then working as a waitress, decided to write to Friends." Cindy and Bill—both 26—sought Divine Guidance in deciding to adopt. "You've got to believe what you're doing is right," Bill says. Cindy adds, "It takes patience and prayer—I prayed a lot." The Scharts are one of four families living at Chaco Canyon National Monument, where Bill is an archaeologist.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

SNACK THIEF

Alarms are put on safes and things,
And the alarm goes off and rings
When some outsider tries to enter
And force his way into the center.
Insiders, too, need an alarm
To keep their insides out of harm.
I mean a buzzer, bell, or siren
Or some device that you could wire in
To make a warning shriek and roar
On your refrigerator door.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

When I told our five-year-old son that he would soon be getting a new brother or sister, he literally jumped up and down with joy. Then he sobered abruptly and said, "You'll have to go to the hospital to get the baby, won't you?" I told him I would be gone for two or three days. He looked thoughtful for a moment and then brightened suddenly. "Let's let Daddy go and get it," he said.

He flashed the message, "Get out of my way. I'm a battleship."

Came the reply from the set of lights, "Get out of the way yourself. I'm a lighthouse." —Claudia E. Ruster

"DEATH OF A SALESMAN": A TRUTH IN SIX WEEKS

Twenty-four years after its Broadway debut, Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman" endures as a modren theatre classic. This acclaimed play, winner of the Pulitzer Prize and the Drama Critics Award, was written in the amazingly short time of just six weeks.

The powerful television production of "Death of a Salesman," directed by Alex Segal and starring Lee J. Cobb and Mildred Dunnock in their original Broadway roles of Willy and Linda Loman, will be presented Thursday at 9PM on CBS.

First broadcast on the Network in May of 1966, the television special combines the immediacy of theatre with the front-row intimacy of television in a production hailed by critics as a landmark in television drama. The special also stars George Segal and James Farentino as the Loman sons, Biff and Hap, as well as Edward Andrews, Albert Dekker and Gene Wilder.

Works of art stand the test of time because they have a basic ring of truth. In "Death of a Salesman," Miller asks a troubling question we can all recognize, "What does it all mean?", loud and clear through the aging salesman, Willy Loman.

Mildred Dunnock and Lee J. Cobb, re-creating their original Broadway roles, confront changing, disorienting times, in Arthur Miller's powerful drama, "Death of a Salesman."

With this soul-searching query at its core, Miller completed the play in a mere six weeks, drawing on his own life and experience, for Willy Loman's home is reminiscent of the young Miller's home in wright's 30 uncles were traveling Brooklyn, and many of the play-salesmen. Moreover, Willy's son Biff, the football hero, might have something in common with the young Miller, who was a football player at Abraham High School in Brooklyn.

Miller has described the birth of "Death of a Salesman" as "growing from images of the need to leave a thumbprint somewhere on the world . . . and the knowing that one has carefully inscribed one's name on a cake of ice on a hot July day." Miller's own thumbprint in "Death of a Salesman" is one that will not soon melt away.

Denise Nicholas has had real-life experience for her portrayal of student counselor Liz McIntyre on ABC's Room 222. While attending the University of Michigan, the pretty Detroit native tutored eighth-grade girls who were considered problem students at a black elementary school in Ann Arbor. Denise majored in political science at the university and minored in Spanish, becoming so interested in the language that she performed in a Spanish play and takes frequent vacations in Mexico. For several months in 1963 she worked as a secretary in the international department of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency, and later changed her major to English when she returned to the university. During the summer of 1964, Denise read plays and wrote critiques for the Free Southern Theater at Jackson, Miss., later touring with its first play, "In White America." She next went to New Orleans with the theater with which she again went on tour. While in New Orleans she took her first acting lessons. Denise had enrolled at Tulane University to study art and was teaching Afro-American history to youngsters when Viveca Lindfors enlisted her for a tour in "Three Boards and a Passion," playing northern college towns. Later in New York she appeared off-Broadway at the Judson Poets and the Old Reliable Theater Tavern. One of the plays was "Viet Rock." She next worked as a private secretary to Douglas Turner Ward, director of the Negro Ensemble Company; and studied acting with Paul Mann, dance with Louis Johnson, and voice with Kristin Kinklater.

"I might as well have a good time, because it isn't going to last much longer," says Linda Lappin, 26, during the NBC Reports program, "But Is This Progress?", airing on NBC, Tuesday at 10PM. Ms. Lappin was chosen by executive producer Fred Freed to represent the youngest of the three generations through whose eyes the program explores the drastic technological changes that have taken place in our society in this century. The others are two couples: Lawrence and Martha Bulmore, in their 70s; Cal and Dolly Coran, in their 40s. The program was filmed in the area of San Jose, the fastest-growing city in California. Linda is product, beneficiary and victim of the technological revolution, and it has made her wary. She doesn't believe in things as do the Bulmores and the Corans. She left home when she was a teenager; was involved in drugs; was married for five years and is now separated. She lives near the sea and wants to get away from a civilization she calls plastic. "Plastic is man-made," she says. "It doesn't come from nature; it's shiny and harsh; it has no form of its own. To me, things that are real are like dirt . . . the trees, the sky . . . the things that come from nature. All of our luxury is futile. We are having a power shortage, yet they come out with newer and newer gadgets." Linda works on a computer, "a box that does magic things but things that are really terrible. It's frightening to be on the other side of a computer, feed in data, and have it spit out instantly. You feel like you're actually a tool of the computer."

WAYNE ROGERS... DISARMIN' CHARM

In just one season on television, the engaging grin, boyish enthusiasm and disarming charm of Wayne Rogers as 'Trapper John' in the CBS series, M*A*S*H, has made him one of the most popular new personalities with audiences, who respond to his naturalness and wry sense of humor. This coming season, M*A*S*H will move to a new time spot on Saturday evenings between All in the Family and Mary Tyler Moore on CBS, giving viewers a triple-play of fun and heartwarming characters to amuse them. A native of Birmingham, Ala., Wayne attended school there and entered Princeton, majoring in history. He later joined the U.S. Navy, serving as a navigator for three years. Following his discharge, he joined New York's Neighborhood Playhouse and also studied acting with Sandy Meisner, supporting himself with a variety of jobs such as waiting on tables at Schraffts and being a Long Island lifeguard in summer. He began his career with off-Broadway roles in such plays as "One More Day" and "Chaparral", and shared a walk-up apartment with another struggling actor, Peter Falk. His first television break came with a running role in the daytime serial, Edge of Night, leading to national companies of such plays as "Bus Stop", "No Time for Sergeants" and "Under the Yum Yum Tree". His movies roles include "Odds Against Tomorrow", "Cool Hand Luke", "W.U.S.A." and "Pocket Money". Wayne is 6'3", 190 lbs., with blonde hair and blue eyes and an athletic build he keeps in shape playing tennis and basketball.

'In a Pickle'

JULIE HARRIS AND RICHARD LONG

"Julie Harris is the first lady of the theater, as far as I am concerned, and many others agree," comments director Jerry Paris in introducing the star of ABC's Thicker Than Water (Wed. 8PM) comedy series to studio audiences each week. Miss Harris, who has won two Emmys and four Tony Awards, portrays plain Nellie Paine, fortyish and single, in the British-derived series about a bickering sister and brother forced to live at home for five years and run the family pickle factory in order to earn inheritances from their 80-year-old father, Jonas. Richard Long stars as the playboy brother Ernie. Malcolm Atterbury co-stars as Jonas.

Tom Egan, producer of the taped half-hour series from Bob Banner Associates, Inc., commented, "Ernie has been away for years when he hears his father is dying and comes home to be near him. Nellie and Ernie will each inherit $75,000 provided they run the factory of 14 employees that their father founded. That's the catch because Nellie and Ernie are like a brother and sister 'Odd Couple.' Unlike the original British series, "Nearest and Dearest" in which the father died in the pilot, old Jonas—spry of tongue, at least, remains a pivotal character in Thicker Than Water.

"The old man never goes," Egan noted, smiling. "Whenever it suits his purpose, he becomes deaf or forgetful or whatever . . . He gives the feeling that he is milking his octogenarian frailty, real or imaginary, for all it's worth."

The series cast includes Jessica Myerson, who plays Nellie's cousin Lily, and Lou Fant as Lily's husband Walter. To the delight of all, the cast functions happily like a stock company. To a person, they enjoy the experience of working before an audience each week at the ABC Television Center in Hollywood.

Miss Harris, who recently received her fourth Antoinette Perry Award for her sensitive portrayal of Mary Todd Lincoln in "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln" has played numerous comedy roles during her illustrious career. "But comedy must be very real or it is not funny," she points out. She cites Chaplin, the Marx Brothers, W.C. Fields and Lucille Ball as comedic giants whose application of that principle she most admires. To Miss Harris, the role's the thing. She views her alter ego in Thicker Than Water, her first television series, as having a Cinderella-like potential to blossom—maybe.

"The story is charming and I love the people in it because they are very real," she said, "greedy, yes, and often silly, but loving, too, and quite human. And we, the actors, are having a great deal of fun."

Richard Long summed up the feelings of all recently when he remarked during rehearsal, "I don't know yet whether or not we have a hit in this series, but we certainly are having a good time." Long, a veteran of five previous ABC Television Network series, the most recent of which was Nanny and the Professor with Juliet Mills, noted, "I'm delighted to be working with both Julie and Atterbury. They are great performers. I like the idea of working with tape, especially for comedy. A live audience is better for comedy performances and I'm sure any actor doing comedy would prefer it to film when it is physically possible."

Added Long, whose previous series were Maverick, Bourbon Street Beat, 77 Sunset Strip, The Big Valley and Nanny and the Professor, "It's been a long time since I worked before a live audience, about three years and that was a Colorado Springs annual rodeo audience. I love being back."

THE CORNER BAR

"The Corner Bar" opens again with its easy laughter and colorful customers Friday at 9:30PM, when Alan King Productions' summer show returns to ABC with two new stars. Produced in New York City, The Corner Bar, a replica of a neighborhood tavern in the big city, is peopled with authentic Gotham characters. The saloon is their clubhouse, their forum and, at times, their arena. Individuals all, and of varied occupational backgrounds, they may disagree frequently, but it is their yeasty give and take that produces the warm and wacky humor of the brew.

After three retakes on the spinning merry-go-round, there were more than a few regrets about that decision. Everyone reeled off the carousel, dizzy and unsteady. No one was positive what the finished film would look like, since the circular and up-and-down movements had upset everyone's equilibrium. The next evening, screening rushes of the Battersea Fun Fair filming, Cooper and his crew were delighted to learn that the cinematic gymnastics had been worthwhile after all. The film was colorful, exciting and filled with movement. It conveyed just what the executive producer wanted.

At least some portion of each Make A Wish program will have been filmed in London or elsewhere in England in an effort to broaden the frame of reference of the program's youthful audience. The remainder of each show will be shot in the United States and includes imaginative animation created especially for Make A Wish by Folio One, a New York firm.

LONDON—The script called for filming Tom Chapin, personable young host of the ABC News children's program, Make A Wish, seen Sundays at 11:30AM, on a spining merry-go-round while he sang a song. The problem was that the horses on the elaborate carousel in the Battersea Fun Fair — London's Coney Island — were all prancers, that is they all moved up and down, thus making it virtually impossible to get a clear camera shot of Chapin.

One solution was to film the carousel at rest. But Lester Cooper, Executive Producer of the Peabody Award-winning children's program rejected that. He wanted movement. A second solution required some athletic prowess on the part of the film crew. That called for the cameraman to climb on the back of a loping carousel horse and film while a muscular assistant held him in place. The Make A Wish unit opted for the second solution — because they thought it would make for far more exciting film footage.

INSIDE the tube & OUTSIDE hollywood

by Bill Mahan

Mary Ann Mobley (Mrs. Gary Collins) has been acting in feature films and television ever since winning the MISS AMERICA title in 1959. She is still devoted to the business of being an actress, but is more interested in her daughter, Clancy, and her husband than she is in picture making. "I'd love to do a series," she says, "but I'd prefer to be second or third banana rather than the star. I want to spend the bulk of my time with my family." Besides acting, Mary Ann does one or two personal appearances every month somewhere around the country. The remuneration for those is large and Mary Ann loves to do them. What she enjoys most, however, is working with Gary on the stage. They'll shortly be doing CACTUS FLOWER together. I'm a believer in togetherness but living with someone and working with him too seems a bit much. Mary Ann says it's the only way.

"Why?" I questioned.

"Well," she drawled in her lovely southern accent, "it never seems to fail that when I work with a strange actor the first scene we do together is the big clinch. I think every actress is a little nervous when she starts a new role and to have to start it that way is terribly difficult for me. Doing it with Gary eliminates that problem. Also, it's easy to talk to Gary about ideas and interpretations. We don't fight about things and he's a very intelligent man." Out of all the actors and actresses I know the only two I can name who seem to work well together as husband/wife, actor/actress teams are Mary Ann and Gary and Barbara Bain and Marty Landau. They are also the only two couples I can think of whose names rarely turn up in the gossip columns.

I understood thoroughly what Mary Ann meant when she talked about the kissing scenes. In 1951, when I was briefly considering acting as a career, I had a small featured role in 20th Century-Fox's TAKE CARE OF MY LITTLE GIRL, starring Jeanne Crain, Dale Robertson and the late Jeffrey Hunter. My part was that of Jeff's roommate in college. He was the big wheel and I was the new pledge. My first scene was dancing with Jeanne Crain. I hadn't even been introduced to her. Worse, I couldn't dance. She put me at ease quickly and told me to just shuffle around—the camera was on our faces, not our feet. I told Jeff about it and he said "You think that's bad, my first scene was grabbing her and planting a huge kiss on her lips. This is my first picture and Jeanne is a star."

'BACK TO THE FARM'

"You can't Take the Farm Out of the Boy" might well be the title of this week's Lawrence Welk Show, (Saturday, 7PM, KTTV, Channel 11), a rural frolic dreamed up by the farm boy from Strasburg, North Dakota, com-

Tunes include "Down on the Farm", "Suddenly There's a Valley", "Rose Garden", Guy and Ralna dueting "Cottonfields", and Sandi, Gail and Mary Lou (The Farmerettes) trill "Honeycomb". Joe Feeney offers "Beautiful Morning", Bobby and Cissy terp to "Chicken Reel" and "Turkey in the Straw", and Henry Cuesta and his gang swing out to the fun tune, "By Heck". Guestar Anacani solos Mexico's beautiful "Rancho Alegre", Ken Delo frolics with "Surrey With the Fringe", and Tanya Welk offers "Over The Rainbow". Bob Lido and his Hotsy Totsies fun-it-up with "Mountain Music", and "Shenandoah" is sung by Dick Dale.

Lawrence dances with Cissy King to "Put Your Little Foot Forward", along with all of his performers, and the entire ensemble makes merry with a barnyard chorale of "Old MacDonald Had a Farm", featuring Ralna Hovis. Others include "Shine On, Harvest Moon" (Jim Roberts), "Old Apple Tree", (Arthur Duncan), "Greener Pastures", (Clay Hart), and "Peace In The Valley", (Bob Ralston at the organ).
